Street Widening Begins

The city of Sikeston began a street widening project yesterday. Franklin Street is being widened from North Street to Crescent Street.

Franklin is now 20 feet wide, but after the curb and sidewalk have been removed, it will be widened to 32 feet.

The city began cutting down trees yesterday to allow this work to be done.

This effort is expected to improve the traffic flow off of Allen Boulevard, W. Raymert Miller, city manager, said.

City crews are doing the work.

Kosygin May Visit U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Amid speculation that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin might attend, the Soviet Union pushed a drive today for an emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly to take action against Israel.

The drive was slowed, however, by a prolonged debate in the 15-nation Security Council on a Soviet resolution calling on Israel to pull back its troops from Arab territory occupied during the six-day Middle East war.

The Soviet resolution was expected to be rejected by a decisive vote, clearing the way for action to convene the emergency General Assembly session.

Britain's Lord Caradon, addressing the council, suggested that the question of disengagement and troop withdrawals would require discussions on the spot. He noted India already had proposed that Secretary-General U Thant send a special representative to help with the problem.

"I believe that we should go further," he said. "And consider the appointment of a mediator so that an immediate start can be made in settling the foundations for a lasting peace."

Wage-Hour Talk For Kiwanis

Richard Meyer of Cape Girardeau, representative of the wage and hour division of the department of labor, told the Kiwanis club about 1966 amendments to the fair labor standards act at the club's meeting Tuesday at the Holiday Inn.

Defense Budget Clears House

WASHINGTON (AP) — History's biggest appropriation bill, a $70.3-billion Defense Department measure, went to the Senate today described as a House expression of all-out support for the U.S. military effort in Vietnam.

It cleared the House late Tuesday 407 to 1 after predictions the $20.3 billion it earmarked for the Vietnam war wouldn't be enough and amid demands for stepped-up Vietnam military operations.

The money, added to $43.7 billion available from previous bills, would finance Defense Department activities for the fiscal year starting July 1.

It was the largest money bill ever brought before Congress.

At the height of World War II, defense appropriations to $86.4 billion, but were provided in several bills.

House Rejects Remap Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House today rejected a proposed House substitute bill realigning the state's 10 congressional districts and and started debate on the bill as passed by the Senate.

Opposition to the House plan came primarily from the Republican minority, from southeastern Missouri Democrats and from St. Louis Negro voters.

The Republican minority lined up in favor of the Senate bill because it would make it possible for the group to extend its control over two more districts, making the Missouri delegation a possible six Democrat-four Republican split.

Now the Republicans have two sure districts in the 2nd of St. Louis County and the 7th of southwestern Missouri. These districts would be relatively unchanged in the Senate version and the GOP would have improved chances in the 8th and 6th districts.

The 18th, now represented by Democratic Congressman Richard H. Ichord of Houston, lies generally in central and east central Missouri.

The 6th of northwestern Missouri now is represented by Democratic Congressman William R. Hull Jr. of Weston.

Most of the complaint against the House version was that it would put the St. Louis Negroes in the 2nd District instead of 1st. Negroes in the 2nd feel they should have a chance of electing a Negro congressman if left in the 1st as the Senate bill does.

The House version also would have put Ichord in the 10th District of southeastern Missouri where Rep. Paul Jones, D-Kennett has said he is retiring after this term.

Spokesman from southeastern Missouri said they didn't want Ichord in the 10th because he would not be conversant with the problems of the Bootheel area.

His supporters wanted him back in the 8th if they could juggle its makeup to make his re-election surer.

The House quit for lunch as an effort was being made to rebuild the 8th District more to Ichord's benefit.

Opponents of any change cautioned that even a simple House amendment to the Senate bill would put the whole issue of redistricting in the hands of a conference committee and might mean failure to redistrict this session.

That would either force a special election later this year or require Missouri congressional candidates to run at large next year.

Bike Stolen From Yard

Bill Branum, 411 Edmonson, reported that a bike was stolen from his front yard after 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Injured List Expands to Nine

Nine were treated Tuesday in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Robert Black, received cuts on his knee while installing a screen door; Anna Cochran, was burned when a pressure cooker exploded; Maye Tinker, Kirkwood, was burned when a pressure cooker exploded.

Terry Lee Hedges, Charleston, fell out of a tree and injured an arm; Margaret Thurman, Charleston, fell in the yard at her home; Charles Simmons, fell out of a tree and fractured an arm; Raymond Haralson, Essex, 22 months, swallowed fly spray.

Michael LeGrand, fell and cut his head; Michael Hawkins, East Prairie, was hit over the eye with a shovel.

Rusk Reports Russia Warming To Nuclear Pact

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Russia today was reported ready to join the United States in moves for speedier international action to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk advised fellow foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the Russians have agreed in recent days to the presentation of a jointly-drafted but incomplete treaty of nonproliferation to the Geneva Disarmament Conference.

The American-Soviet draft that is being prepared to go before the 17-nation Geneva conference would contain a blank Article 3, dealing with the sort of controls and safeguards needed to insure that signatory countries do not cheat.

The focus in today's debate was on the Middle East and France's foreign minister, Maurice Couve de Murville, declared French opposition to imposition of any United Nations settlement in the area.

Later the ministers went into secret session on Vietnam. After the conclusion of the meeting, Rusk took a plane for Washington.

Rusk told the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's ministerial council Tuesday that the United States had seen no signs of movement toward peace in Vietnam and that the key to a settlement still remained with Hanoi.

He reiterated the U.S. intention "to carry out its commitment" in Vietnam.

Rusk's brief comments on Vietnam and his statement that "some progress" had been made toward agreement on a nonproliferation treaty led to today's secret session for a more detailed discussion.

Mariner 5 Races Soviet Space Probe

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Mariner 5 spacecraft raced a heavier Soviet probe toward Venus today to penetrate with electronic fingers the planet's mysterious veil of clouds and help scientists see if Venus is a fit place to live.

The 540-pound Mariner 5, less than one-quarter the weight of the Soviet Union's Venus 4 craft launched two days earlier, rocketed from Cape Kennedy at 1:01 a.m. today on the first U.S. venture to Venus since 1962 and this nation's first planetary probe in more than 2½ years.

Mariner's fiery Atlas-Agena booster rocket threaded to an imaginary needle in space to send the windmill-shaped spacecraft toward its distant target 212 million miles away.

"We are going precisely where we expected to go," project officials reported after tracking the spacecraft for several hours. Mariner 5's flight path is well within the capability of an onboard motor to adjust its path later in the flight, they said.

"Spacecraft performance also appears to be very good," said Allen E. Wolfe, Mariner 5 system manager for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., which oversees the Mariner 5 project.

Wolfe said experiments to study radiation in interplanetary space were turned on and the craft's four power-producing solar panels deployed. Guidance sensors aboard the $35-million Mariner 5 locked onto the sun for orientation as planned.

During a brief 26-minute encounter Oct. 19 when Mariner 5 is to pass within 2,000 miles of Venus, electronic fingers of high-frequency radio signals were to penetrate through dense Venusian clouds to study radiation levels and atmospheric temperatures, pressure and density.

These findings would be important to scientists trying to deduce whether Venus can support life.

No camera was aboard because of a weight limitation.

Mariner scientists said they did not know whether the U.S. craft or the Soviet 2,438-pound Venus 4 would arrive at the planet first.

$475,176 Grant for Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Southeast Missouri Development Corporation has received a $475,176 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity at Washington for an eight-week summer Head Start program in the Bootheel.

The grant will be used to finance the program for 16,665 pre-school children in Stoddard, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin and Scott counties.

A preservice training program for employes will be held next week at Portageville high school. Instruction will begin June 26.

Car Parked at Church Stolen

Mildred Hays, 2102 Indiana St., reported theft of her automobile to police. The car is a light green 1959 Pontiac. It was taken from the vicinity of the Assembly of God church after 7:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Dexter Couple Hurt in Mishap

DEXTER — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Geary, Dexter, were injured in a ramming car accident today at 12:15 a.m. on highway 62, one and one-half miles east of Dudley.

They were driving east in a 1962 Chevrolet when their car was struck in the rear by a 1966 Chevrolet, driven by James McClard, 33, Dexter.

Mr. and Mrs. Geary were taken to the Poplar Bluff hospital with back injuries.

McClard was given a summons for careless and imprudent driving.

Man Returned to Madrid County To Face Charge

NEW MADRID - Lloyd Burton, formerly a resident of New Madrid County, was apprehended by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Flint, Mich., in connection with a stolen farm machinery charge in New Madrid county last January.

Burton was held in the Genesee County, Mich., jail. W. L. Ramsey, New Madrid county sheriff, brought Burton back to New Madrid county June 2 and he was held in the county jail until his preliminary hearing, which he waived last week.

He was bound over to circuit court.

Burton is charged with eight counts of grand larceny. Bond of $4,000 was posted for him yesterday and he was released.

Burton had been named by Alfred Patton of Marston as one of two men who sold him stolen farm machinery. Patton, charged with stealing and possession of stolen property, is also out on bond.

Light Turnout

Gas Franchise Wins 165-7 Voter Approval

In one of the lightest votes cast in a city election only 172 citizens of 7,000 registered, balloted in the Associated Natural Gas franchise election Tuesday - a two and one-half per cent turnout. The vote was 165 for 10-year renewal of the franchise to seven against.

Five precincts gave unanimous approval. Seven negative votes were divided among three precincts.

There were no absentee votes cast. An official canvass of the vote will be made Friday afternooon at a city council meeting.

Voting by precincts:

Ward one, precinct one, police station, 24 for, one against.

Ward one, precinct two, Ethridge Tire Co., 15 for, none against.

Ward two, precinct one, Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet, 17, for, four against.

Ward two, precinct two, Lincoln school, 32 for, none against.

Ward three, precinct one, Sikeston Motor Co., 21 for, none against.

Ward three, precinct two, Lewis Furniture Co., 16 for, two against.

Ward four, precinct one, National Guard Armory, 24 for, none against.

Ward four, precinct two, Imperial Lanes, 16 for, none against.

A 20-year Associated Natural Gas franchise by which the company serves the city expires Sept. 30. The new franchise proposal approved yesterday extends it 10 years but contains two five-year renewal options.

Mosquitoes Have Landed and City Has Situation Well under Control

The mosquito situation is improving.

Nightly fogging to rid the city of the pests will continue until the war is won probably throughout the summer, City Manager W. Raymert Miller reported.

The street department is in charge of the fogging of insect spray to kill the pests.

Ordinarily, the department takes two nights to cover the town. They begin in the west half of the city so that the fog spreads with the prevailing southwest wind.

Tonight and Thursday and Friday nights the department plans to cover the city by beginning at 7 p.m. and working for nine to ten hours until the job is complete.

The mosquito problem has been more severe than normally.

Miller said that Charleston had the same problem and was using the same fogging machine to get rid of mosquitoes.

Miller said that the mosquitoes seemed to be an area rather than a city problem.

90 Attend Opening of Coffee House

Ninety attended the opening of the new coffee house, the Mustard Seed, last night.

The first hour was filled with informal piped in records, followed the second hours by Kim Nash, a singer from St. Louis. Miss Nash played the guitar, sang folk songs, and recited contemporary poetry.

Miss Nash has filmed a television show in Hollywood, entitled the "Rock Revolution."

Tomorrow evening the coffee house will show a film, Coffee House Rendezvous. The coffee house is open from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A happening which is the highlight for the evening will take place about 8:30 p.m.

The basement of the parish house of the First Methodist church serves as a meeting place for the coffee house.

Jones Fined for Disturbing Peace

Kenny Bill Jones, 228 Alabama St., Sunday was charged with disturbing the peace on Magnolia Drive. He was fined $15 and released Monday.

Terry K. Hixson, 228 North Handy St., was charged with operating a motorcycle with no protective head gear on East Malone Tuesday. He will appear in city court tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Vegetable Freaks Beginning to Sprout

Carolyn Paullus, 502 Lanning, discovered a tomato - potato plant in the garden of Delmar Denton of Scranton, Ark., a relative.

This unusual plant was planted as a pototo vine but Sunday Miss Paullus and Denton discovered it was bearing tomatoes. They dug it up.

Six tomatoes were growing above the ground, and three potatoes were sprouting from the vine below the ground.

One tomato was sliced for verification.

The radish was nine and one-half inches long. It weighed 14 ounces.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A WONDERFUL NATION, A WONDERFUL FLAG

June 14, 1777 was just another day in a dreary series for the new United States. The war did not go well: the British were about to invade the colonies from Canada by way of Lake Champlain. There had been few victories for the Continental Army. Trenton and Princeton had done little to stem the tide.

In Philadelphia, the routine was reflected in the actions of Congress. There were debts to be paid, and there were other small matters that needed attention.

The Congress appropriated money for several militia companies, then authorized the Marine Committee to do something with colonial ships on the Delaware in the event the British appeared "on said river."

Amid other marine matters, the representatives passed a one sentence resolution, without explanation or introduction. It said:

"RESOLVED: that the flag of the United States be made of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

Congress then suspended Captain John Roach, commander of the Ranger, because he was "of doubtful character," and gave the captaincy of the Ranger to a John Paul Jones. With this and other matters decided, Congress adjourned until the following Monday. Some historians believe that the flag resolution - being sandwiched between matters of the Marine Committee - was proposed by this committee.

In passing the resolution, Congress intended that the Grand Union flag not be used by its army. The Grand Union displayed the crosses of St. Andrews and St. George and thirteen white and red stripes (the six white stripes had been imposed on the red field of the British Red Meteor flag). The resolution thus removed the stigma of the crosses which had long been symbolic of ties with Great Britain.

The flag resolution may have removed a stigma, but it created doubts about flag design. There were no instructions as to the specific arrangement of the stars, or about the size of the stars and stripes. As a result, seamstresses improvised at the sacrifice of uniformity.

Many variations of the flag appeared on land and sea during the Revolution. None, however, was supplied by the government. Congress did not officially supply the army with the true standard until 1783, after the Revolution was over.

Historian B. J. Cigrand says the Stars and Stripes was flown for the first time over American troops under fire on Aug. 3, 1777. Col. Peter Gansevoort, with a garrison of 600 men, was in command of Fort Schuyler, formerly Fort Stanwix, when it was besieged by the British. On Aug. 2, reinforcements of 200 men of the 9th Massachusetts Regiment under Lieutenant Colonel Mellon reached Fort Schuyler with ammunition and supplies. They brought word of the new flag.

The following day the Stars and Stripes was raised over the walls of the fort; the white stripes had been fashioned from a soldier's ammunition shirt, the red was from the petticoat of a soldier's wife, and the blue was from a cloak which Capt. Abraham Swartout had taken from the British at Peekskill. The story is authenticated by a letter written by Captain Swartout to Colonel Gansevoort in which he requested authorization to draw on the army quartermaster stores to replace the material taken for the flag.

There is a theory, not supported by documentary evidence, that John Paul Jones was the first man to raise the Stars and Stripes. Shortly after the flag resolution was passed, Jones proceeded to Portsmouth, N. H., where, at his request, a group of girls gathered together in a "flag bee" and fashioned an ensign for him. He is said to have raised it aboard the Ranger on July 4, 1777.

The first sea action of the Stars and Stripes took place on Sept. 4, 1777. Capt. Thomas Thompson, in command of both the Raleigh and the Alfred, took the British vessel, Nancy, after she had dropped behind the Windward Island fleet, of which she was a part. After overtaking the remainder of the fleet, the Raleigh was able to run in close to the commodore's ship, utilizing the Nancy's coded signal book. At close range she ran up the Continental Colors, ran out her guns, hulled the British ship with the first broadside, and shattered her rigging with the second before being driven off by superior forces.

On Feb. 13, 1778, Paul Jones, in command of the Ranger and the Independence, stood off Quiberon Bay, near Lorient, France. Jones was determined to receive an official salute for the American flag from the French admiral, LaMotte Picquet, who was in command of the fleet inside the bay. The admiral sent word that, since Jones was the senior American Continental officer in European waters, Picquet would return the same salute he was authorized to give the admiral of any republic; four guns less than the salute first rendered. Jones wanted gun for gun and waited until Feb. 14 in order to verify Picquet's answer. Finally satisfied, he sailed in, fired a 13-gun salute, and received nine. This was the first foreign salute given the Stars and Stripes.

The story of Betsy Ross and her connection with the first American flag has become a tradition. According to the classic story, Betsy Ross, a young Philadelphia widow who supported herself and children by her excellent needlework, received a visit from Washington, Robert Morris, and George Ross, her deceased husband's uncle. They described a flag and asked if she could make one for them. She agreed to accept the job but recommended that five-pointed rather than six-pointed stars be used. This first flag is said to have been made almost a full year before the congressional resolution of June 14, 1777.

There are no written reports or records to verify the theory, and it is supported entirely by stories handed down by word of mouth from the direct descendants of Mrs. Ross. If the story cannot be proved to the satisfaction of the historians, neither can it be conclusively disapproved, historian Cigrand believes.

Many historians agree that one Francis Hopkinson was more responsible for the flag design than any other person. He was a delegate to the Continental Congress from New Jersey, a member of the Marine Committee, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In 1779, he sent a bill to the Board of the Admiralty for "A Great Seal for the United States of America, with a Reverse, A Seal for the Board of the Admiralty, and The flag of the United States of America."

His request was turned down, and the report states that he "was not the only person consulted" in formulating the designs, and that he therefore did not deserve full payment.

In 1794, the flag was officially altered to consist of 15 stripes alternate red and white and 15 stars arranged in five rows of three each. It remained unchanged until 1818, when it reverted to the original 13 stripes but provided for each state in the Union to be represented by a star on the union of the flag.

TAX ON SOCIAL SECURITY

The President recently announced plans to tax the Social Security benefits paid to persons over 65. The Social Security system was designed as a non-voluntary program. Taxes were paid on the money withheld to support the system; now the administration wants to tax the senior citizen twice; once when he pays the premium and second when he receives the benefits from the program.

Congress should seriously question this attempt to change the orginal intent of the Social Security system and place additional burdens on our already overburdened senior citizens.

NEW YORK (AP) — Life is an adventure in irony, and this is particularly true in the case of Werner Klemperer, the actor.

Werner, son of Otto Klemperer, the famed symphony conductor, and his family fled their native Germany in 1933 because of the rise of Hitlerism.

Now Werner, who later served three years as a corporal in the American Army, makes a tidy dollar playing a bumbling Nazi officer, Col. Wilhelm Klink, on the CBS television comedy program, "Hogan's Heroes."

Although he has had a lifelong hatred of war and violence, nobody since the late Eric von Stroheim has come along who can play a foreign military villain with quite the heel-clicking authenticity of Klemperer.

Werner finds it hard to define just why he can do this so well. "Acting is largely a matter of accurate observation," he said.

"I suppose I must have seen many German officers when I was a boy in Berlin, but" — he added wryly — "I don't remember ever shaking hands with one.

"I don't find it a particular psychological hurdle, to play Nazi officers, so long as I can be very sure that I can give them the kind of dimension I feel they deserve.

"But I don't want ever to play a good Nazi, and I don't want to act in Germany. No, not now."

Something of a specialist in unsympathetic roles, Werner has also played Bulgarian villains, Dutch villains and Russian villains, but his big desire is to play an Oriental villain.

"With my bald head and a little makeup I think I'd be very interesting," he said.

After fleeing Germany, the Klemperers spent two years in Switzerland, then came to California where the father became conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony.

Werner, then 13, learned enough English in three months to enter high school. He appeared headed for a career as a pianist, but gave it up.

"I didn't have the desire," he said. "Desire and talent usually go hand in hand. If the desire isn't there, chances are that the talent isn't there either."

Werner chose the theater after wartime work with an Army Special Service unit led by actor Maurice Evans.

Urbane and sophisticated, Werner at 45 feels he has carved himself a comfortable niche and says he has no desire to be either rich or famous.

THIS IS WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF

It used to be that a man could lie down at night and sleep the way he wanted, dream or not as he chose, in the sanctity of his castle. The world could knock him about as it would during the day, but night time was his . . . a retreat from automation, mechanization and frustration.

But now, do you know what's happened? They're doing a time study on our dreams. They've actually got batteries of researchers, complete with time clocks, watching every twist of our eyelids. It seems that we give ourselves away when we're dreaming by the speed of our eyelid movement.

They now know that we have four to five dreams a night. Yes you do, even though you don't recall them. Our dreams are spaced at regular intervals of 60 to 90 minutes and the sleep between these dreams is the most restful to us. Our first dream of the night tends to be short, usually about 5 to 10 minutes. Subsequent dreams tend to be longer with the last dream of the night often lasting 30 to 40 minutes. Women dream mainly about dates, clothes and the home. Men about sports and the job.

During one series of experiments, volunteers were deprived of dreams by waking them through the night when dream periods were just started. This was fine the first night. However on succeeding nights dream periods started more frequently and volunteers had to be wakened more often. These findings suggest that dreaming is somehow a vital and necessary biological phenomenon.

No, you can't escape the researchers. But, while you're trying, pleasant dreams.

TRAVEL-TIME TIPS: You know the tricks, of course, about hanging unpacked clothes in a steamed-up bathroom to remove wrinkles? After they've hung awhile, remove them from the damp, humid bathroom and allow to dry out in another room . . . Another good idea, anytime, is to hang a dampened terry towel over a hanger in a closed closet. Any minor wrinkles will come out of the clothes.

Don't worry if your job is small, and your rewards are few . . . Just remember that the mighty oak was once a nut like you.

A CODE OF ETHICS UP TO CONGRESS

The distressing thing about the expulsion of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell and the committee-recommended censure of Sen. Thomas Dodd is not so much that two members of the most exalted legislative body in the country have been found guilty of wrongdoing by their peers.

In any group of 535 men and women, subject to the pressures and responsibilities that congressmen are, it is inevitable that a few will succumb to the temptation to use their public offices for their private benefit. And when they do, part of the blame for it must rest on Congress as a whole for having failed to set up clear and enforceable standards of ethical conduct for it members.

The sad thing, however, is that neither man admits any fault in himself.

Powell, adopting the pose of a martyr, maintains that he did nothing that most other congressmen are not guilty of. Dodd, with perhaps some justification, claims he was "judged by hindsight" with standards of conduct that have yet to be defined.

Be that as it may and whatever their guilt or innocence -- and both men alone know in their hearts the full extent of either-- their usefulness as legislators has now ceased. This is a pity, for both have performed valuable service in the past for their constituents and their country.

The shadow of suspicion has fallen over every congressman because of the Powell and Dodd cases. Congress owes it to itself, as well as the nation, to set up rules and machinery which will restore the confidence of the people in their lawmakers, if not prevent replays of such scandals altogether.

A big husky private descended from a bus, waited for the puny GI behind him to get off, then stuck his foot out and deliberately tripped him.

The frail GI got up from the sidewalk, brushed himself off and glared at the bully.

"Did you do that on purpose, or were you trying to be funny?"

The big private sneered, "Why you little squirt, I did it strictly on purpose."

"Well, OK," was the relieved reply, "because I don't like that kind of joke."

It is a real gambling town. Everywhere you look you run into gambling. I saw a little old man all huddled up in a corner. I reached in my pocket and took out $2, and I said, "Here, old man, chin up!"

I came back the next day, and the same old man was there. He jumped up in front of me with a fistful of $1 bills, and he said: "Here."

I said, "What's that for?"

He said, "Chin Up came in. Paid 11 to 1."

The doctor's patient was a beautiful young showgirl who complained of nervous tension. He prescribed a program of tranquilizing pills for her and told her to come back in a couple of weeks and let him know how she felt.

When she returned the doctor asked her if she felt any different and she replied, "No, Doctor, but I've noticed that other people seem a lot more relaxed!"

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

NASSER'S LAST GAMBLE

On May 27, Drew Pearson reported in detail how President Nasser was in serious trouble at home, and how he was taking one last desperate gamble to come out on top by challenging Israel.

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Russell Long, D-La., got so impassioned in his defense of Sen. Tom Dodd the other day that he delivered a scorching attack on the senate ethics committee because it had recommended Dodd's censure. Long said the committee had censured Dodd because it feared criticism from this column if it failed to do so.

Later Sen. Long delivered a lame apology to the ethics committee; but there was no apology for charging us with blackmail.

On a point of personal privilege, therefore, we should like to report on the six members of the senate ethics committee and what we have said about them in the past.

All are conscienticous, hard-working senators entrusted with a job extremely distasteful to them, that of passing judgment on a fellow senator. While they overlooked many of Dodd's weaknesses and leaned over backwards to be fair to him, nevertheless they were airtight in the findings which they made.

Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the Democratic chairman, we have reported to be "a courtly philosopher, with such a reputation for fairness that he's been in the presiding officer's chair more than Alben Barkley. No noisy demagogue like his predecessor Bo Bilbo, he says that the wage-hour law was a boon to the south by raising its economic level . . . at a prayer breakfast where Democrats and Republicans forgot religious differences as well as political ones, Stennis sounded the keynote by calling for a return to spirituality."

This column has sometimes reported critically regarding Sen. Stennis's position on civil rights, but never regarding his honesty and fairness.

A MORMON TEACHER

Sen. Wallace Bennett, Republican co-chairman of the ethics committee, is married to the daughter of the late Heber Grant, President of the Mormon church. Bennett for many years taught in the Mormon sunday school of the Chevy Chase Chapel and today, though he no longer teaches, is a regular attendant.

We have reported that Bennett is the former President of the National Manufacturers Association and follows the conservative policies of that organization. He has been opposed to most of the economic policies of the Truman, Kennedy and Johnson administrations, but he has been consistent and honest in that opposition.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., is a former governor of Kentucky, former ambassador to India where he did an outstanding job, and has held many special diplomatic posts.

We have reported that Sen. Cooper follows a broad bipartisan policy on foreign affairs and frequently has been called in by Democratic Presidents for consultation. He was especially useful in advising Kennedy how to handle the Berlin problem at the very start of his administration, though Kennedy spurned the advice.

Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., has served in congress longer than any other member of the ethics committee. As a young member of the house of representatives, he received the Collier's distinguished service award for his work in attempting to streamline legislative procedures. He was co-arthur of the congressional reorganization bill with the late Sen. Robert La Follette and more recently sponsored a bill for senate reorganization.

As a young congressman, Monroney had the courage to vote against an oil price increase though he comes from a big oil-producing state, and against the farm bloc on subsidies though Oklahoma is also an important agricultural state.

We reported how President Truman offered Monroney the job of secretary of agriculture, which Monroney declined on the ground that he didn't know enough about agriculture. He never capitalized on Truman's job offer.

CRITIC OF SENATE CONDUCT

Monroney understands the consequence of unethical conduct better than most senators because he defeated Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma after Thomas was revealed by this column as having used his strategic position on the senate agriculture committee to influence the commodity market at the same time he was investing on the commodity market.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., is another legislator who came up from the ranks in the house of representatives. We have described him as "having a spotless family life...studied for the priesthood, has the confidence of labor and farmers, is the idol of liberals in both the house and the senate."

Generally he has tried to plug tax loopholes from his vantage point inside the senate finance committee and has fought a courageous war against central intelligence secrecy. In this he has been completely substantiated by the facts, though rebuffed by old guard senators when he asked for an investigation of the CIA.

McCarthy is an old personal friend of Sen. Dodd, and at one time proposed secret rather than personal friendship and voted to recommend Dodd's censure.

Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., is a newcomer to the senate and the youngest member of the ethics committee. However, he has also been one of the most forthright in cross-examining witnesses and one of the toughest in urging that the senate maintain a high standard of ethics.

Originally a Virginian, Pearson served in Kansas during the war, liked it and returned to live there and engage in Republican politics. He has just been reelected for a full six-year term.

These are the men who spent more than a year conscientiously hearing testimony and carefully scrutinizing the record of their colleague from Connecticut. They are not susceptible to political blackmail and we resent Sen. Long's implication that we might resort to such tactics.

H.L. Hunt Says

COUNSELORS FOR FREEDOM

The Youth Freedom Speakers movement, which is spreading throughout the country, will benefit greatly from the establishment in each area where a YFS chapter exists of a board of counselors to guide these young people who are determined to speak up for freedom.

Each chapter needs the encouragement and guidance of a group of responsible men and women who have an interest in young people and who want to help foster what can become a great positive force for liberty. A board of counselors in a typical city might consist of fifteen persons. They will serve as the organizational backbone of the YFS chapter.

The counselors screen and accept young volunteers who wish to become speakers and assist them in preparing themselves to speak effectively and forcefully. They maintain close contact with churches, schools and other youth organizations in their area as sources of volunteers.

Counselors also maintain continuous contact with patriotic groups, churches, service clubs, and other organizations holding meetings. They should keep in touch with the press and other media of communications to assure proper and adequate publicity whenever young speakers are to appear on a program. Arrangements can be made for the appearance of speakers on radio and television.

The YFS board of counselors, made up of business and professional men and women of high standing in their community, can hold regular meetings of their own to keep YFS chapters moving. The board can do a great deal toward making pro-freedom sentiments fashionable, for its members' concern with YFS will be noted in the community. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

U.S. Waterfront Labor Leaders' Secret Apparatus Poised to Starve Out Arab Alliance.

NEW YORK: Even before there was blood on the sands of the Sinai, an intelligence alert was flashed along all U.S. and Canadian coasts by American waterfront labor leaders. The word went out to locate every ton of cargo, in every ship, in every port, loaded or waiting to be loaded, bound for any and all Arab League nations.

Messages arrived swiftly. In a few days, the Seafarers' Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO's 600,000 member Maritime Trades Dept., knew of $1 billion worth of such freight on order by the Arabs.

He and his colleagues learned that there were 43 ships in U.S. and Canadian ports, some with the good and grain already in their holds and some still awaiting dockside tonnage.

The American waterfront labor leaders then were ready to implement their long-planned ultra-secret "Operation - Target Cargo" aimed at starving Arab lands and crippling their low level economies.

"Operation - Target Cargo" is skillfully designed to go for the jugular of Israel's enemies - the same nations which have been harassing American seamen for years. It hits at the cargoes moving to - and from - Arab ports in the ships of any nation including our own. Picketing the four or five United Arab Republic vessels which put into American harbors is dramatic and symbolic. But the Arabs don't haul 10 per cent of their imports or exports in their own craft. Over 90 per cent of their ocean-borne economic lifeblood is in foreign freighters - American, British, Liberian, Greek, etc.

It took intricate intelligence operations by the Maritime Trades Dept. to locate all the Arab-bound tonnage. This remains the unions' secret. But the details were ferreted out - and the first of the targets were and are the food shipments scheduled to leave for Arab lands in June and July. These may still be hit.

The freighters marked for immediate target action (such as the Liberian ship The Pheax, which early last week was in a Canadian harbor loading 21,000 tons of wheat for Algeria) carry corn, barley, wheat, vegetable oil and dried milk. Some were scheduled for Egypt, some for Tunisia, some for Morocco.

These food shipments are government-generated U.S. "give-away" cargoes dispatched under Public Law 480. Tunisia, which sent soldiers to bolster Gen. Nasser, was set to receive, for example, 36,000 tons of barley in four freighters. Some have been loaded. Some not. Egypt was to get flour, dried milk and cornmeal in four ships. Morocco has been awaiting heavy tonnage of wheat and corn in 11 ships.

A Greek vessel, the World Glade, is scheduled to take on 25,000 tons of wheat in U.S. gulf ports later this month for delivery to Morocco. At the same time, Hall's men targeted the Alexander Voyazides, set to take 13,500 tons of barley in a California port for Tunisia.

Food shipments are set for Algeria (wheat); Jordan (flour and vegetable oil); Iraq (flour and vegetable oil); Lebanon (flour).

The AFL-CIO waterfront strategists have not decided what action to take. The situation is too fluid.

But the apparatus will be kept intact to hit India if New Delhi continues to bait the U.S. while Washington keeps feeding the subcontinental nation.

Far more than food is involved in "Operation - Target Cargo." The waterfront men now have a complete schedule of spare parts, cloth, light machinery, etc., destined for the Arab lands. Without these, say the project directors, the Arab lands would crack because it would take months to readjust themselves to the U.S. maritime boycott by finding new sources of supply in a wartime world.

There's nothing coy in the friendship of American labor leaders for Israel. For many years now, they have been close to Israel's labor movement, Histadrut - which now has almost a million members. During the first hours' fighting, Louis Stulberg, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU) president, learned that the hospital the ILGWU has built in Beersheba, Israel, had gone on a war footing - but that five babies were born during the cannonading - all boys, two of them Bedouins.

The Teamsters moved swiftly too. When they learned that the Israeli bus system had become inoperative because both men and women were mobilized and because all trucking was militarized, Joe Konowe, assistant to the Teamsters national president, headed for Israel. He's still trying to get there for a survey which will be followed by a stream of volunteer American truckdrivers and longshoremen. This is only part of the story. But it is evidence enough to show the shadowy outline of a vast machine which can hit high gear while others in more polished and diplomatic halls specialize in verbal high indignation.

Priscilla Righter

Priscilla Righter Crowned Queen of Job's Daughters

Priscilla Righter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Righter, was crowned honored queen of bethel 27 of the International Order of Job's Daughters Saturday night at the Masonic Temple.

The temple was decorated in purple and white, colors of the organization. Over the queen's chair in the east was a purple and white drape, a white Bible with purple bookmark and white lilies. On each side was a large arrangement of white daisies with baby breath.

Bethel Guardian Mrs. Aquilla Grimes and Associate Guardian, Aquilla Grimes, were escorted to the east by the installing senior custodian, Debbie Ingram, and installing junior custodian, Carolyn Clinton. Mrs. Grimes opened the installation ceremony and Grimes escorted into the bethel, Miss Carol Werneck, the installing honored queen. Mrs. Grimes introduced Miss Werneck, as a past honored queen and past outstanding girl of the year of Bethel 27.

Miss Werneck accepted her position in the East and asked that the other installing officers be escorted into the bethel. The installing officers were: installing guide, Katie Blanton; installing marshal, Melinda Morrison, installing chaplain, Nancy Turner, installing senior custodian, Debbie Ingram, junior custodian, Carolyn Clinton, recorder, Lucile Mount, musician, Mayme Jean Poage; and soloist, Patti McMullin. The installing officers were introduced and escorted to their stations.

The Holy Bible was brought into the bethel by the installing chaplain. As the choir formed an aisle of honor on either side of the altar and the installing chaplain knelt to open the Holy Bible, Miss Patti McMullin, soloist, sang "I'll Walk with God."

The American Flag was presented west of the altar by the installing marshall. A tribute was made to the flag by the installing honored queen then all sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and the flag was escorted to the East and the Pledge of Allegiance was given.

After the audience was greeted by Miss Werneck, and a prayer was given by the installing chaplain, the Bethel officers were introduced: honored queen, Prissy Righter; senior princess, Claudia Ham; junior princess, Beth Montgomery; guide, Kay Stauffer, marshall, Debbie Collins; chaplain, Lana Dillender; recorder, Margaret Morrison; treasurer, Sharon Beaird; librarian, Peggy McMullin; musician, Sherry Baker, assistant musician, Betsy Carney; first messenger, Sheila Clinton; fourth messenger, Donna Wheeler; fifth messenger, Carla Colwick; inner guard, Jamie Ward; outer guard, Debbie Miller; senior custodian, Jane Campbell, and junior custodian, Sally Mitchell.

Miss Righter was escorted to the altar by the installing guide and installing marshall. She knelt while the installing honored queen placed the crown of honor on her head and invested her with the cape of royal purple velvet. Miss Righter was then honored by an original song to the tune of "Sweet Violets" by Debbie Collins. The new honored queen was then escorted to the East by her father, where she was presented the gavel and a copy of the by-laws of the organization. At the conclusion of the installation, the recorder read the proclamation.

During the escorts and honors ceremony, the junior past honored queen, Miss Debbie Ingram, was escorted to west of the altar where she received her past honored queen's jewel and a dozen red roses. Miss Patti McMullin sang a song to the tune of "Red Roses" to Miss Ingram.

Miss Colwick was requested to be escorted to the East and was presented a gift of appreciation by Mrs. Grimes, bethal guardian, for her loyalty and willing assistance to the organization. Honorary certificates were presented to Mrs. Poage, Mrs. Mildred Canedy and Miss Mount for outstanding service and devotion to the bethel.

The associate guardian then escorted Miss Ingram to the east where she received the title of outstanding girl of the year and a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Grimes and from the Bethel. A orchid was also presented to Miss Ingram. While she was being escorted back to her station, Debbie Collins sang an original lyric commemorating Miss Ingram's reign.

The ceremony of escorts and honors continued with the introduction of visiting honored queen Karen Sander and members of Bethel 51 of Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Gene Collins, director of sociability, Miss Mount, secretary, Mildred Baker, Treasurer, Worshipful Master Leonard Overbey and the Rev. Joseph Wagner of the First Methodist church. The Masons and Eastern Stars were acknowledged and then Miss Righter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Righter, and sister, Lesa, were escorted to the East and introduced.

Miss Righter then closed the ceremony of honors and escorts, and after the installing chaplain approached the altar and gave the closing prayer, members sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" and formed a cross. They knelt and sang "Nearer My God To Thee". The Rev. Mr. Wagner gave the benediction.

Job's Daughters and their guests then assembled in the recreation hall for reception to honor Miss Righter and new officers. The tables were decorated with purple candles and ivy clusters. The centerpiece, a tall crystal with falling purple gladioli, was circled by purple satin ornaments and ivy. Nadine Collins, chairman of the reception, was assisted by Mrs. Dale Ham, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Joel Montgomery, Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Mrs. T. E. Campbell, Mrs. Lynn Ingram, and Mrs. Righter.

BELL CITY — Mr. and Mrs. Chester Arnold will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at a reception from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the dining room of the Methodist church.

MARGARET FULLER:

Drudgery is as necessary to call out the treasures of the mind as harrowing and planting those of the earth.

STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM:

It is one of the odd myths in America that teen - agers not only are hell-bent but also that they are alarmingly on the increase, a mushrooming threat. The teen - age population is, of course, growing as the population of the country grows.

But at the moment fewer than 40 percent of all Americans are under 20, and this is not a startling proportion. At the time the Declaration of Independence was signed, over half the nation was under 18.

Miss Watkins Is Honored

BELL CITY -- Miss Sandra Watkins was honored at a wedding shower in the Methodist church dining room Friday.

Hostesses were Mrs. Gene Wheeler, Mrs. Joe Karnes of Sikeston, Mrs. Thomas Rendleman and Miss Mary Rendleman.

Oran Opens SEMO League Action With 10 - 2 Win

ORAN -- Tinkoff and Ruffin combined to pitch a one-hit 10-2 victory over Lutesville in Oran high school's opening game of the SEMO baseball league yesterday.

Oran had little trouble with the visitors. It pushed across three runs in the first inning and added two in the third, three in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Lutesville's runs came in the second and sixth innings.

Hamm had a perfect night at the plate with a 4-4 performance, including a double and scored four runs. Teammate Whorton had a three for four performance.

In the preliminary game, Oran blasted the visitors 12-2 in four innings.

Aaron Joins 2,500 Hit Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hank Aaron joined the select club of players to reach 2,500 hits but neither he nor the Atlanta Braves discovered the fact until some 24 hours after the slugging outfielder reached the coveted plateau.

The 6-foot, 180-pound Aaron collected a home run and single Monday night against the Philadelphia Phillies to join the 2,500-hit select circle, occupied by only 41 other batters.

"I didn't know how many I had," said Aaron when asked why he didn't mention it Monday night.

"We didn't realize it until we did a recheck," explained a Braves spokesman. He started the season with 2,434, and has 66 so far this season. That's 2,500, even in the new math.

The spokesman explained the club statistician forgot to record an official scoring change that gave Aaron a hit and took away an error charged to Philadelphia's Rich Allen in the second game of an April 30 doubleheader at Atlanta.

Aaron accepted the latest honor of his 13-year career in the same stoic manner he reacts to all of his slugging accomplishments — 10 years a better than .300 hitter, five times a 40 or more home run producer.

He talked about his favorite subject hitting, and almost floored his listeners with this gem — he's been doing it all wrong.

How wrong can you be to be so right?

Aaron explained that he has a hitch in his swing which prompted Manager Billy Hitchcock to suggest he teach the rest of the Braves the same hitch.

"I wouldn't mind teaching hitting," said Aaron, "but I wouldn't teach anybody to do it my way. I've been doing it all wrong."

"I've got a hitch in my swing and I hit off the front foot. Now I wouldn't teach those things.

"The big thing in hitting," said Aaron, "is bat control. Stan Musial, for example hit off the front foot. Like me, he was way out in front of the ball. But he kept the bat back until the last split second. You can commit your body, not the bat. That's your leverage."

Aaron said most good hitters have a hitch in their swing, naming the Phillies' Rich Allen and Willie Mays as "just a few."

"I'd try to help a young fellow with his own style, not mine," Aaron concluded.

Aaron didn't wait around admirring his 2,500th hit. He went right out Tuesday night and whacked No. 2,501 and 2,502 enroute to the 3,000 plateau. His 2,502nd — a single — knocked in the only run as Atlanta beat the Phillies 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Phil Niekro.

He admits it would be nice placing his name alongside Ty Cobb, Musial, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Napoleon Lajoie, Paul Waner and Cap Anson — baseball's only members of the exclusive 3,000-hit group.

Reds Split Doubleheader With Mets

Hughes Wins Fifth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cardinal pitcher Dick Hughes contributed to three-run scoring bursts in the second and third innings at Pittsburgh Tuesday night and then held the Pirates off for a 7-4 St. Louis victory.

Curt Flood of the Cards doubled in the first and scored on a single by Orlando Cepeda. In the second inning a walk, single by Julian Javier, fielder's choice for Hughes and a hit by Lou Brock accounted for two runs. Flood then drove in the third run of the inning with a single.

In the third the Cards loaded the bases and Hughes singled home two runs. He then scored on a sacrifice fly and throwing error by Roberto Clemente.

Jerry May, Manny Mota and Willie Stargell of the Pirates all tagged Hughes for bases-empty homers. Hughes also wild-pitched a run home in the ninth and bowed out to reliever Joe Hoerner. Hughes got credit for his fifth victory against two losses.

The Cards meet Pittsburgh again tonight with Bob Gibson slated against Billy O'Dell.

Willie Mays, usually a starter, surprised no one by turning out to be quite a relief hitter, but relief pitcher Phil Niekro stunned everyone by proving himself no slouch as a starter.

"I'm still pinching myself," said Niekro, whose knuckleball fluttered Atlanta by Philadelphia 1-0 Tuesday night in his first start after 24 relief appearances.

Mays, who entered the game in the sixth inning, took his success as a substitute more nonchalantly, as usual, after hitting a grand slam in the 10th inning to boost San Francisco over Houston 6-2.

"Grand slams don't make any difference to me," he said. "Winning ball games does."

Elsewhere, the Cincinnati Reds and New York Mets were still pinching themselves over rookies Gary Nolan and Tom Seaver.

Nolan blanked the Mets 6-0 on six hits before Seaver halted the Reds 7-3 in a twi-night doubleheader.

Ron Santo's home run shoved the Chicago Cubs by Los Angeles 3-2.

Niekro, who relieved 28 times without starting in his third season with the Braves in 1966 before being sent to the minor leagues, made the most of his starting chance. The only hits off the 28-year-old pitcher were a two-out double by John Callison in the fourth inning and a leadoff single by Gene Oliver in the eighth.

He struck out five, walked three and got the run he needed to even his record at 2-2 when Hank Aaron singled in a run off Rick Wise in the sixth inning after a walk and Tito Francona's hit.

"I thought I'd get tired, but as the game went on, I found myself getting stronger and stronger," he said.

He admitted he liked this new assignment, but added "I'll pitch wherever they want me — wherever they need me most."

The Braves gave him their answer. "They said I'm starting Sunday in Houston," he said.

Mays, who was scheduled to sit out his second straight game because of fatigue and a stiff back, hoped to be back in the Giant lineup tonight, despite his success as a reserve.

He had entered the game in the sixth inning as a pinch hitter, but grounded into a double play with the bases loaded with Houston leading 2-1 on pitcher Dave Giusti's two-run homer. He got another chance in the 10th after Jim Hart tied the game with a solo shot in the eighth.

Mays connected off Barry Latman, who came in after Giusti walked the first hitter. Willie McCovery's hit and another walk loaded the bases.

The homer was Mays' eighth of the season, 550th of his career, seventh grand slam of his career and first slam since April 1962.

Nolan, a 19-year-old right-hander, won his fifth game in six decisions as he allowed only one Met past second base, struck out nine and walked two.

But Seaver, 22, cut the Reds' first place lead over St. Louis to 2½ games with an eight-hitter for his fifth triumph in eight decisions. He lost his shutout in the ninth when an error set up a three-run pinch-hit homer by Art Shamsky.

Santo connected for his ninth homer in the sixth inning off Don Drysdale, 5-6, breaking a 2-2 tie. Jim Lefebvre had hit a two-run blast for the Dodgers, but it wasn't enough to prevent them from losing their eighth straight game.

Frazier 8-5 Favorite To Beat Chuvalo July 19

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Joe Frazier was made an early line 8-5 favorite over George Chuvalo today for their significant 12-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden July 19.

The matchup of the heavyweight contenders figures to be a war as long as it lasts. It pits a young puncher in the 23-year-old Frazier against an iron-jawed, body banger in the 29-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto.

"This fight is going to be so good, I'd like to sit back and watch it myself," said Chuvalo at a press luncheon when the fight was announced Tuesday.

Frazier, the 1964 Olympic champion from Philadelphia, has a 16-0 record as a pro, including 14 knockouts. Chuvalo, never stopped or floored, has a 46-13-2 record, including 39 knockouts.

The durable Canadian has won 11 straight by knockouts over mediocre opponents since he lost a 10-round decision to Argentina's Oscar Bonavena a year again. On March 29, 1966 he lost a 15-round decision to heavyweight champion Cassius Clay at Toronto.

Frazier has demonstrated he can punch and can fight back after being tagged. Bonavena floored him twice in the second round last Sept. 21 but the Philadelphian rallied to win a split decision.

10-Run Sixth Lifts Detroit Past Minnesota And Ends 5-Game Skid

Making a little go a long way is nothing to be ashamed of, but the Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins were stretching the point Tuesday night.

"I sat right there and saw it, and I don't believe it," said Detroit Manager Mayo Smith after the Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak by chopping and slicing their way to a 15-10 verdict over the Twins.

Fifteen runs were scored — 10 by Detroit — in an hour-long sixth inning marked by the absence of an extra-base hit.

"It was one of the worst games I've ever played in," the Tigers' Al Kaline said after what started as a pitching duel between Dennis McLain and Dean Chance turned into a Punch and Judy fiasco.

In other American League games, Kansas City nipped Baltimore 1-0, Chicago blanked Washington 6-0, New York topped Boston 5-3 and California swept a twi-night doubleheader from Cleveland 8-3 and 5-3.

The Tigers fell behind 5-1 before raking Chance and three successors for 10 runs — on eight singles — in the sixth. Detroit paraded 14 men to the plate, with the first 11 reaching base. Kaline and Willie Horton each had two hits in the inning while pinch hitter Jim Price and Don Wert drove in two runs apiece.

The Twins then batted around in their half of the sixth, scoring five runs — the last three when center fielder Mickey Stanley dropped Bob Allison's two-out fly ball with the bases loaded.

In all, there were 10 singles, five walks, one hit batsman, three errors two wild pitches and a passed ball in the full inning.

Detroit then pulled away with a three-run salvo in the seventh as Dick McAuliffe homered, Wert tripled, Kaline doubled and Horton singled.

The Tigers wound up with 19 hits, the Twins with 12.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter hurled a four-hitter for his second successive shutout as the A's shaded the Orioles and hard-luck left-hander Steve Barber.

Two walks and Bert Campaneris' double in the second inning produced the game's only run. Hunter struck out six and allowed only one runner past first base. Barber yielded three hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The White Sox blanked Washington behind Tommy John's three-hit pitching and a three-run homer by Ron Hansen. John fanned nine Senators in breezing to his fifth victory in eight decisions.

Hansen's homer capped a four-run rally in the sixth after Ken Berry extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a run-scoring single.

Tom Tresh slapped two singles and a double, driving in two runs to help the Yankees top Boston and snap a four-game losing streak. Steve Whitaker also had three hits for New York while Fred Talbot and reliever Dooley Womack checked the Red Sox.

Don Mincher drove in three runs with a double and single, Jimmie Hall hit a two-run homer and pinch hitter Bubba Morton stroked a two-run single in California's twilight victory over the Indians.

The Angels won the nightcap behind rookie Rick Clark, who ended a personal six-game losing string with relief help from Bill Kelso. Four Cleveland errors contributed to the Angels' seventh victory in their last eight starts.

Johnson Talks on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says his pledge to back territorial and political integrity of all Middle East nations— issued before Israel's rout of its Arab foes— remains unchanged.

But he told a White House news conference Tuesday that how this policy will be effectuated "will depend a good deal upon the nations themselves, what they have to say and what their views are, what their proposals are."

Some observers saw in Johnson's remarks a hint that the United States would not oppose any changes in boundaries worked out between Israel and her Arab neighbors, Egypt, Syria and Jordan— some of whose territory Israel occupies.

With most of the news conference dwelling on the Middle East, Johnson also challenged suggestions his government had failed to realize the seriousness of the Israeli-Arab crisis before war broke out.

He was asked specifically about a Baltimore Sun story which he was told quoted a U.S. Embassy official in Cairo as saying the administration was not as sensitive to the crisis as it should have been.

"I do not believe anyone very high in the administration would feel that way about it," said Johnson, adding the Middle East has occupied a good deal of our thoughts, our attention, and the time of some of our ablest leaders in our government ever since I came into the executive branch in 1961.

"It still does."

The President reiterated the United States played no part in the Arab-Israeli war. Egypt, Jordan, and Syria have charged U.S. airplanes participated in Israeli attacks on Arab targets.

Steelman Takes Up GOP Attack On Hearnes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — "Instead of an innocent 'summer jobs for youth program' we have uncovered a massive 'help re-elect Gov. Warren E. Hearnes program,' " the Republican state chairman, Dorman L. Steelman, charged Tuesday.

He referred to a study of 392 names of successful job applicants at the supposedly nonpolitical state highway department. The study was made by Republican volunteers using names supplied to Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, by M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the department, Steelman said.

The study showed the list included 269 Democrats, 39 Republicans, 65 political independents, Steelman said.

"At least 20 per cent of the Democrats are sons or close relatives of Democratic office-holders, county chairmen, legislative chairmen, committeemen, committeewomen, honorary governor's colonels, party workers, former candidates or officials, or relatives of the governor himself," Steelman said.

Despite the notice that the idea was to help needy students continue their education, Steelman said, the list includes "sons of prosperous businessmen and attorneys."

Not one Republican was found from St. Louis city or county on the first list, he said.

Cole County (Jefferson City) had 14 Democrats and no Republicans.

Four Democratic youths in Kansas City admitted they got their jobs through pull with politicians, Steelman said.

The governor's hometown of Charleston, with a population of less than 6,000, ranked sixth among cities winning referrals from the governor's patronage assistant, Floyd Warmann. There were nine referrals from that relatively small town and all were Democrats.

The governor has insisted that politics was not a factor in job placements at the highway department.

He has said that if political endorsements were required it was done at the local level and not at the state level.

An overworked surgeon was heard lamenting the possibility that he and his family might have to cancel their vacation trip. Asked if he couldn't arrange for his partner to take care of his emergencies, he quickly explained that such provisions had already been made. What was holding things up, he said, was the difficulty of finding someone to take over his son's newspaper route.

Threat of Starvation Hovers Over Egypt

EDITOR's NOTE: Garven Hudgins, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Cairo, was expelled from Egypt last week with 576 other Americans. He arrived in Athens Monday.

By GARVEN HUDGINS

ATHENS (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser has fought and lost what he called his "battle of destiny" and brought his country to the brink of starvation and civil war.

Already in deficit to every country with which it traded before the outbreak of war June 5, Egypt now is close to bankruptcy. It doesn't have the solace of revenue from the Suez Canal, blocked by sunken ships.

Without assistance from the outside, the population of Egypt's principal cities will starve by September. That is how long experts believe the country's current supplies of wheat will last. The masses in Egyptian cities exist on bread.

In its blitz Sinai campaign, Israel captured wells which supplied half of Egypt's oil production. Egypt had hoped to become an oil exporter within two years. Now it will need to import oil for the foreseeable future.

The impact of Nasser's debacle in Sinai has not yet struck the Egyptian population. But when the grim toll of Egyptian troops in the six-day war becomes apparent, public discontent is certain to mount. It is highly doubtful that Nasser's cover-up excuse that American-British intervention defeated him will be able to withstand the shock wave.

Reliable reports indicate Egypt suffered up to 40,000 casualties in Sinai as Israeli jets blasted exposed columns in the desert.

There already are signs of a potentially explosive division among Nasser's close associates.

If it comes to a showdown, a vicious civil conflict could result.

Then there is the army, whose junior commanders must feel disenchanted with the Nasser regime. Its future course is uncertain.

For the moment, Nasser's appeal still is effective and he clearly has the support of the masses. They are not yet starving.

Egypt now has about $120 million in foreign currency reserves, $90 million of which it claims is in gold. The government owes $200 million to Western countries, including $170 million to the United States.

Annual income from the Suez is $230 million — Egypt's largest foreign currency earner. But the canal now is blocked and the Israelis are camped along its eastern banks.

Even before it went to war, Egypt had a $456-million balance of trade deficit which now will increase as a result of the dim outlook for the country's petroleum production.

The Soviet Union may now be reluctant to put up substantial new aid for Egypt. Soviet support for Egypt during the swift war was largely verbal, and Nasser's disappointment was reflected in at least four hasty meetings he had with the Soviet ambassador to Cairo, Dimitri Pojadaiev, during the week.

Nasser's best hope lies in such wealthier Arab neighbors as Kuwait, Libya and Bahrain, which may be willing to come through with loans in the name of Arab solidarity.

The Nasser regime continues to brainwash the Egyptian population, which so far has not been told the dimensions of Egypt's defeat.

Cairo newspapers are full of accusations against the United States, branded the architect of Israel's victory. Cairo radio directs a steady drumfire of propaganda against the United States. The average Egyptian firmly believes the United States supplied air support for Israel.

Egypt suffers from a disastrous technological gap. The Egyptians had good planes and good radar equipment, but they did not know how to use either effectively.

According to one report, Egyptian pilots at the Abu Sweir airbase were drinking coffee in a ready room when Israeli jets swooped over the field and destroyed all their planes in a napalm raid. The radar was not operating.

Nasser has effectively played the United States off against the Soviet Union for many years. But now he has ruptured ties with the United States, and there is dissatisfaction in Egypt because the Soviet Union did nothing practical to aid Egyptian forces in the war.

Late last week, Nasser held two meetings with the Chinese Communist ambassador to Cairo. Peking seems eager to step into the vacuum. That would give Nasser a chance to play China against the Soviet Union. Peking already has given wheat and a $10-million loan to Nasser.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—In how many categories are Nobel Prizes awarded?

A—Five — Physics, Chemistry, Physiology and Medicine, Literature and Peace.

Q—How long did it take George Frederick Handel to compose his greatest oratorio, the "Messiah"?

A—He composed his crowning masterpiece in 23 days by working without interruption.

Q—How does the wing of a bird sustain flight?

A—It acts somewhat like an oar and a carrier at the same time. The wing pushes back the air with its wide surface, then glides forward with the least possible resistance.

Senator Jennings Randolph of West Virginia: "New York City counterfeiters were turning out bogus money. Due to some mechanical defect, a batch of bills in $18 denominations came off the press. The counterfeiters were about to destroy the bills when a fellow city slicker advised that he could take them to the hills of West Virginia, where the people, he said, wouldn't know the difference. So he took off for the hills.

"At a country store in the mountains, the city fellow threw one of the $18 bills on the counter and said, "Hi, Sport, could you fix a stranger up with a little change?"

Now Is the Time for Men To Obey Commandments

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Testing the Ten Commandments may seem to be like a woodpecker's rat-a-tat on a giant redwood. Yet this is a permissive generation, seriously flaunting accepted moral standards. Much that is happening today makes us seem to be the counterparts of those who were worshiping the golden calf when Moses returned to them. They came up with one of history's lamest excuses when their leader berated them. "We thought that you had gone from us," they whined. What will we say? "We thought God was dead?"

Look up into the reality and presence of God and you come face to face with your neighbor. No religion that is vital can remain personal; it becomes social. Nor can we look at what is happening around us and claim to be innocent bystanders. Families break down; highway horrors are escalated; sex becomes an economic idol; property is misused and veracity flaunted. When these are accepted as normal, we are in trouble.

Look again at these five of the Ten Commandments:

Honor your father and your mother.

You shall not kill.

You shall not commit adultery.

You shall not steal.

You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.

If these seem to have a negative pose, look at them in their positive statement:

Respect, love and serve parents and those in authority.

Help your neighbor in all of his physical needs.

In matters of sex, words and conduct must be pure and honorable.

Help your neighbor to improve and protect his property and his means of making a living.

Defend your neighbor, speak well of him and explain his actions in the kindest way.

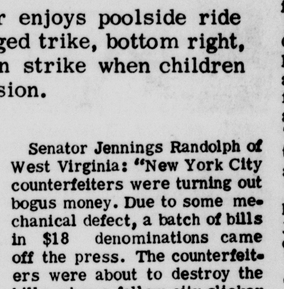
To snub or ignore these is to end in that typical pose of our time, "I've not done anything worse than anyone else."

That's when the old truism is obvious, "A good conscience is the invention of the devil."

All of this leaps out of an ancient setting and into the items of this newspaper. Contemporary news reveals the need for a family structure that is meaningful, with housing and education to strengthen the home. Read of wars and violence and consider our personal involvement. Think of the ways in which we trifle with fidelity. Observe the ways in which stealing goes on even when politely disguised as just being shrewd. Look deep into your conscience and consider the times persons are prejudged, emotional words used and scorn heaped before the facts or circumstances are known.

One of the saddest sentences in literature is recorded in the final statement of an Old Testament book, the Book of Judges. "In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes." In our permissive society too many come to a similar place. It is a time to re-examine the things that matter most.

(NEXT: The Look In.)



The star-spangled street where you live

You can't always see the stars and stripes on the homes and apartments in your neighborhood, but they're there just the same.

A big percentage of American families own U.S. Savings Bonds. Many of these star-spangled families have been buying Bonds since they were first issued 25 years ago.

Altogether, Uncle Sam has sold $150 billion in E and H Bonds. About $100 billion of these have been cashed in for college, retirement, new furniture, emergencies, and down payments for those homes.

Americans still own a nest egg of nearly $50 billion in Bonds for tomorrow's needs. And as the nest egg grows, Uncle Sam uses the dollars to help support our fighting men in Vietnam — and help keep our economy strong.

You can help make Uncle Sam's future, and your own, more secure by joining this star-spangled savings plan.

Why not start now? Sign up for Payroll Savings where you work, or buy Bonds regularly at your bank.

Firearm Link Retained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has okayed for another year the program under which the military gives free ammunition to the National Rifle Association—strongest of the groups trying to influence gun-control legislation.

A defense appropriations bill approved by the House Tuesday included $1.9 million to cover the cost of ammunition given by the Army's Division of Civilian Marksmanship—DCM—to 5,800 shooting clubs around the country.

These clubs all are affiliated with the NRA. An Army regulation permits only NRA members to get the ammunition.

NRA affiliates also are the only groups eligible for another DCM program under which military weapons are lent to civilian shooting clubs for practice and familiarization.

How much of NRA's membership of 823,000 can be attributed to the link with DCM no one can say but NRA mentions the arrangement frequently in its advertisements for new members.

The free ammunition and the lending of the guns are all part of long-standing Army policy. Men who learn about guns as civilians, the theory goes, make good marksmen when they go into uniform.

"These weapons and ammunition are used only for prescribed military courses of fire," NRA's public affairs director, John Hess, said. Every bullet fired is accounted for by NRA, he said.

The advisory body that guides the DCM program, the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice, also has a strong NRA flavor. Its members include the president, executive vice president and four advisory council members of the NRA.

But the embrace is being loosened. An attempt is being made by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor to get a broader range of viewpoints on the board.

And the NRA's authority to be the only source nominating civilians to the board ended last year and these nominations now can come from a variety of sources, said the board's executive officer, Lt. Col. Joseph B. Berry.

Because of its strong opposition to some gun control bills Congress is considering, NRA is often accused of being the dominant force in a powerful national gun lobby.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., author of one of the strictest gun control bills and a principal target for those opposed to strict controls, says the opposition is powerful but not centrally directed.

He gets it from all directions—from the NRA, other members of Congress, gun magazines, manufacturers, weapons importers and gun owners everywhere.

"I think it's a loose thing," Dodd said of the opposition. "I think they're acting independently of one another."

An aide to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., sponsor of a bill less stringest than Dodd's, sees the people fighting the various legislative proposals as large in numbers but hardly a unified force.

"Compared with organized labor and the AMA," he said, "these people aren't even in the same league."

The Dodd bill would outlaw interstate mail-order sales of handguns - pistols and revolvers—to individuals, although a person could make a mail-order purchase by having his local dealer place the order for him.

It would permit mail-order sales of rifles and shotguns, after the seller notified police in the purchaser's area of the impending sale. An additional seven-day wait would then be required before the weapon could be mailed.

The Johnson administration has offered an even tougher bill that would prevent mail-order sales of shotguns, rifles and handguns.

Hruska's bill places no restrictions on mail-order purchases of rifles and shotguns. It permits mail-order purchases of handguns after the notification and seven-day wait procedure.

Not long ago television station KTRE in Lufkin, Texas, went off the air for several hours because of transmission difficulties. A hand bearing this hastily scrawled message appeared on viewers' screens: "We have temporarily lost our slide informing you that we have temporarily lost our picture. Please bear with us."

Supreme Court Ruling Gives Press More Leeway in Reporting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has broadened the freedom of the press to report the activities of public figures involved in newsworthy public events.

The court took this significant step Monday as it threw out a $500,000 libel judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker against The Associated Press in a Texas court.

In the main opinion, Justice John M. Harlan said there was no evidence of personal prejudice, incompetency or malice in the way AP reported Walker's activities at the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford in 1962.

At the same time the court upheld by a 5-4 vote a $460,000 libel judgment won by Wallace Butts, former athletic director and football coach at the University of Georgia, against the Curtis Publishing Co.

Harlan wrote: "The evidence is ample to support a finding of highly unreasonable conduct constituting an extreme departure from the standards of investigation and reporting ordinarily adhered to by responsible publishers."

In the Walker case, five justices, led by Chief Justice Earl Warren, combined to extend the principle of qualified libel immunity, first announced in 1964 in the case of public officials, to accounts about prominent persons who "often play an influential role in ordering society."

"Our citizenry," said Warren, "has a legitimate and substantial interest in the conduct of such persons, and freedom of the press to engage in uninhibited debate about their involvement in public issues and events is as crucial as it is in the case of 'public officials'."

This view was supported by Associate Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Byron R. White.

Black and Douglas said the court should have gone further and adopted a rule that "the First Amendment was intended to leave the press free from the harassment of libel judgments."

However, Black said, he and Douglas marshaled behind Warren's opinion to form a majority and decide the Walker case under the doctrine laid down by the court in 1964.

Ruling then in a New York Times case the court held that a public official cannot recover damages for a libelous statement relating to his official duties unless he can prove actual malice. This means he has to prove the statement was made with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was true or false.

"To me," Warren wrote, "differentiation between 'public figures' and 'public officials' and adoption of separate standards of proof for each has no basis in law, logic, or First Amendment policy."

The damage judgment was based on two AP dispatches. Riots swept the campus the night of Sept. 30, generated by the admission of a Negro, James Meredith, into the university. The AP reported Oct. 2 and 3 that Walker "assumed command of the crowd" and "led a charge of students against federal marshals."

The marshals were at the campus to see that an order by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans that Meredith be admitted was carried out.

All nine justices agreed the judgment won by Walker in a state court in Fort Worth in 1964 could not stand. This strongly indicates none of the 14 other actions instituted by the former general against AP and various newspapers would be upheld by the high court — if they ever reach it.

The damages sought by Walker aggregated $33,250,000.

Harlan, joined by Associate Justices Tom C. Clark, Potter Stewart and Abe Fortas, said The AP's account of Walker's activities "was news which required immediate dissemination."

"The Associated Press," he said, "received the information from a correspondent who was present at the scene of the events and gave every indication of being trustworthy and competent."

Further, Harlan said, reporter Van Savell's dispatches "would not have seemed unreasonable to one familiar with General Walker's prior publicized statements on the underlying controversy."

Here Harlan footnoted his opinion with references to remarks by Walker in radio and television interviews and at news conferences prior to his arrival at Oxford.

In one, Harlan said, Walker called for "violent vocal protest." In another, Harlan wrote, Walker urged defiance of court orders and federal power.

"Considering the necessity for rapid dissemination," Harlan said, "nothing in this series of events gives the slightest hint of a severe departure from accepted publishing standards. We therefore conclude that General Walker should not be entitled to damages from The Associated Press."

The Butts award was based on a March 23, 1963, article in the Saturday Evening Post. Titled "The Story of a Football Fix," it said Butts outlined Georgia's plays to Paul "Bear" Bryant, Alabama football coach, eight days before the 1962 Georgia-Alabama game. Alabama won 35-0.

The article was based on an affidavit by George Burnett, an Atlanta insurance salesman who said he accidentally overheard a telephone conversation in which Butts outlined Georgia's plays to Bryant.

Harlan said the article was not "hot news" and that the Post ignored elementary precautions in publishing it "without substantial independent support." Besides, he said, the Post "knew that Burnett had been placed on probation in connection with bad check charges."

Warren, in a separate concurring opinion, said the evidence disclosed "reckless disregard for the truth."

The dissenters were Black, Douglas, Brennan and White.

Black, joined by Douglas, said the court was reviewing "factual questions" already decided by juries — "a review which is a flat violation of the Seventh Amendment."

Franklin's Harmonica

Benjamin Franklin in 1761—60 years before the mouth organ as we know it was invented—produced an instrument with treadle-rotated and self-tuned glasses which held different amounts of water and yielded different notes when sounded. He called it the harmonica, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Robbers' Inexperience Easily Recognized

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jane Howley, a legal secretary, had a few words of advice for two robbers who walked into her eighth-floor office.

"Why, everyone knows law offices don't keep any money," she said.

"You must not be very experienced if you don't know that."

The robbers, one of them with a gun, left empty-handed Monday. There was one other reason that Miss Howley, 41, figured they were inexperienced. The entire ninth floor of the building is the northern Ohio headquarters of the FBI.

MRS. JERRY GREENWOOD and her daughter, Tonya, and son, Jay, pose for a picture at their home, route two, East Prairie.

East Prairie Matron Likes To Cook, Teach, Children

Editor's Note: This is the 41st in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

BY RUTH DILLENDER

EAST PRAIRIE - Mrs. Mary Ellen Greenwood likes to cook and teach the pre-school children in Vacation Bible school at the Dogwood Methodist church. She is substitute pianist at the church.

She and her husband, Jerry, and their daughter, Tonya, five years old, and Jay, six months old, live on route one, in the Dogwood community.

Mrs. Greenwood was born and reared in the Dogwood area and her husband is a native of East Prairie.

Mrs. Greenwood attended Murray State University, Murray, Ky., and was employed by the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston in the X-ray laboratory and by the Agriculture Stablization and Conservation Serve Office in New Madrid before her children were born.

Mrs. Greenwood is a member of the Bridges Young Homemakers club. She likes to make artificial floral arrangements.

The couple showed horses for seven years. They won first place in the western pleasure class in the Missouri-Arkansas circuit three years.

Greenwood is associated with Mrs. Greenwood's father, C. J. Stancil, in farming 2,300 acres. They raise cattle.

Mrs. Greenwood has a pendant watch that is a family heirloom. The family has a new camping trailer they plan to use this summer.

Greenwood and his daughter like to take rides on his motorcycle on Sunday afternoon.

Tonya is learning to play piano and Mrs. Greenwood assists her with her music. Tonya will attend kindergarten in East Prairie this fall.

Recipes that Mrs. Greenwood suggests are:

CAKE BROWNIES

Bake on cookie sheet 11 by 16 inches with one-inch rim
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 stick oleo
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup butter milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, sugar and salt together. Blend in oleo, shortening, water and cocoa. Put into sauce pan and bring to boiling point but do not boil.

Pour this mixture over flour mixture and mix well. In another bowl, mix eggs, soda, buttermilk and vanilla. Pour this over first combined mixtures and bake at 350 degrees only 20 minutes, no longer.

Apply icing while hot.

Icing:
1/2 stick oleo
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 tablespoon vanilla
6 tablespoons milk
1 box powdered sugar
1/2 cup pecans

Mix oleo, cocoa and milk in sauce pan and bring to boil. Remove from heat and add powered sugar, nuts and vanilla.

Mrs. Greenwood says that the brownies can be served hot or kept in refrigerator several days. They will remain moist.

BARBECUE SAUCE

1/2 bottle catsup
2/3 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
4 tablespoons mustard
4 teaspoons red pepper
1 bottle vinegar

Mix well; catsup, mustard, salt, red peppers and brown sugar. Be sure to dissolve brown sugar entirely. Then add vinegar. If not hot enough, add more red pepper to taste.

PARTY PUNCH

1/2 gallon orange sherbert or raspberry sherbert
2 cans Hawaiian punch, use either pink or yellow according to which sherbert used.
1 bottle ginger ale
1 bottle Seven-Up
1 package cherry or orange Kool Aid

Mix all liquid ingredients into punch bowl. Mix well, add sherbert and stir. This will form a milky foamy topping on punch. Serves 36 to 50.

ID Card Applications To Be Received

DEXTER -- The Missouri department of liquor control will accept applications at Dexter for the new liquor identification cards being issued by the department.

T. J. Greer, liquor agent, said pictures will be made and applications filled out from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the City Hall basement at Dexter.

Persons age 21 or older are eligible to obtain the cards, which are an aid to liquor dealers in determining if the buyer is of legal age. The liquor department encourages tavern operators and package store owners to accept no other form of identification.

Malden Library To Be Dedicated

MALDEN -- The Malden branch of Dunklin county library and the Malden historical museum will hold an open house June 25 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the new building at 113 North Madison.

The building, which houses the library and museum, will be dedicated to Mrs. Elise Kochtitzky Byrd in a ceremony conducted by city officials at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

I strongly suspect that there is a functional relation between freedom and development, as well as between development and nation-state. The weight of historical example is on the side of this argument. Pharaohs built pyramids and Fascists made the trains run on time, but neither succeeded in creating a highly specialized modern society dedicated to relativism and pragmatism in the settlement of dispute, and open to individuals to seek their places according to what they have been able to become and not according to what they are born to. The fact that the Western democracies have not been able to achieve perfection on these scores is no reason to deny all validity to the social meaning of Western libertarianism, science, and pragmatism.

Now! Big Company Group Insurance For Smaller Businesses

Now, businesses with less than 25 employees are eligible for a new, low-cost group health and life insurance program that offers coverage you'd expect to find only in big company group insurance plans.

It's P.E.P. (Progressive Employers Program) — from Mutual of Omaha and its life insurance affiliate, United of Omaha. P.E.P. solves the salary continuance problem for the small employer and helps reduce labor turnover by providing important financial security for the employee and his family.

If you have a small business, you owe it to yourself and your employees to investigate P.E.P. — the modern answer to the small businessman's need for a flexible, low-cost employee insurance program.

Boyer Low Bidder on Caruthersville Housing

CARUTHERSVILLE -- A Sikeston firm submitted the low bid on Caruthersville's 184 unit low-rent housing project, the Housing Authority announced and now final approval to begin construction must come from the federal government.

Ralph E. Boyer, the Sikeston contractor, submitted a bid of $1,765,500 for the construction job which will be carried out on three different sites within the city.

There were four other bids submitted, executive director Howard Teeters said Thursday, and all were within the limits allowed for the project. Most of them were close, Teeters stated, but the bid by Boyer was considerably lower than the other four.

The other firms submitting bids were Parthenon Construction Co. of Sikeston, Buckley Construction Co. of Fenton, Mo., McDaniel Brothers of Jonesboro, Ark., and Forcum-Lannon, Inc. of Dyersburg. The bids were opened in the office of the Caruthersville Housing Authority last Wednesday afternoon.

One hold up which might delay the awarding of the contract involves a routine legal suit the Housing Authority had to file in order to get a clear title on one of the three sites selected for the low-rent units.

Teeters stated Friday that there has been no indication that the legal action will be contested but explained the move was necessary since some of the property had been sold under tax bills sometime in the past.

The regional office of the Federal Housing Authority in Fort Worth is not likely to approve the contracts and allow work to get underway prior to the settlement of the legal action. However, a planner from Fort Worth indicated the clear-title suit probably will not cause much delay, if any.

While it is difficult to state any schedule with accuracy, hope the contracts will be awarded by late July and actual work on the project could get underway sometime in August. This, he stressed, is purely tentative.

Indications from the Housing Authority and engineers who are planning the project were that Boyer's firm seems completely acceptable for the contract. The firm has done similar projects in the past.

Five Injured In Two-Car Crash

CAIRO -- Five persons were injured in a two-car accident at 7:20 p.m. Sunday near the intersection of highways 37 and 51 north of Cairo, Illinois State Police reported.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Walter L. Richards, 27, Cairo, and Eura McClendon, 55, Charleston, Mo.

Vernon Moore, 17, Cairo, a passenger in the Richards car, suffered minor injuries. He was treated at St. Mary's Hospital and released.

Injured in the McClendon car were the driver and three passengers, Dossie Hodges, 41, Lennie Jones, 65, and Catherine Hodges, 38, all of Charleston. The latter three were transferred from St. Mary's Hospital to Community Hospital at Sikeston. The driver was treated and released.

State Police said the Richards car, going north, ran off the right side of the road, came back onto the highway, crossed the center line and hit the McClendon vehicle head-on.

Enrollment for Oran Head Start

ORAN -- Enrollment for an eight-week Head Start program is being taken this week at the public school.

Children who will enter first grade in the fall may enroll. Parents enrolling their children should bring their birth certificates and immunization information.

The summer program will be for 30 children. Transportation will be provided each day. The program will last from 8:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. each day.

The tentative starting date for this program is June 26. Tentative plans are for a week of training for all workers to be held at the Portageville office next week.

Recently, an old friend of mine from Texas paid me a visit. We took him to Disneyland, and while we were there he decided to call the airport to confirm his plane reservations for the next day. He dialed the operator and she instructed him to deposit 35 cents in the phone.

Our Texas friend was quite surprised. "Why that's ridiculous," he told the girl. "Back home in Texas we call down to hell and back for a dime!"

"I know, sir," the operator replied. "But that is a local call."

Freeway Crash Causes Barnyard Nightmare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On the busy San Bernardino Freeway a truck loaded with 3,700 chickens and a truck with 47 head of steer collided.

"It was unbelievable," said Officer Don Burnett.

"The animals were running down the freeway in both directions. Some were on the center divider, some were trying to get out of the overturned trailer. The chickens were squawking all over the place."

Some of the hens began laying eggs.

Officers rounded up most of the chickens but the steers, on their way to the slaughterhouse ran off. Galloping after them was a posse of sheriff's volunteers on horseback.

Steers stampeded through the streets of nearby San Gabriel, Alhambra and Rosemead.

One steer was roped and tied in the playground of a grammar school by a mounted posse after he was spotted by the school nurse.

"I saw this big old steer standing on the baseball field," said Mrs. Donald Kelley. "He was right next to home plate."

Another animal was killed when he collided with a car. The driver was uninjured.

In a Rosemead telephone company supply yard a steer was caught and tied to a telephone pole.

The freeway traffic Monday was backed up more than six miles.

By late Monday all the animals had been accounted for and traffic was back to normal.

Merger Favored

FAYETTE, Mo. (AP) -- The Missouri East Conference of the Methodist Church voted 345 to 2 Tuesday for merger with the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The vote came at the annual meeting of the conference, attended by laymen and ministers from 537 Methodist churches and charges in the eastern half of Missouri.

The Missouri West Conference two weeks ago voted 336 to 0 for the merger.

Latest information, leaders said, was that the Missouri East Conference was the 19th in the nation to vote in favor of the merger, with no conference rejections.

Harry Smith, St. Louis, treasurer, reported the Missouri East Conference churches gave a record $352,421 to Methodist mission projects at home and abroad the past year. They also gave $233,568 to higher education in Missouri-Central Methodist College at Fayette, St. Paul's Seminary, Methodist, in Kansas City and chapters of the Wesley Foundation at 10 state colleges and universities.

The Rev. Eugene M. Frank, bishop of the Missouri area of the church, gave the annual address Tuesday.

Former State Farm Bureau President Dies

SMITHTON, Mo. (AP) — Olen Monsees, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation from 1958 to 1966 and superintendent of the dairy department for 20 years at the Missouri State Fair, died Tuesday at his home south of Smithton.

Monsees, 61, had been in ill health for about a year.

Funeral services will be Thursday at the Methodist Church in Smithton with burial in the Smithton cemetery.

Survivors include the widow, Ruth; three sons, James of Champaign, Ill., Olin Jr., of Kansas City, and Ned of Smithton, a former basketball star at the University of Missouri; a daughter Betty Jean, a school teacher at Edwardsville, Ill.; two brothers, Dick Monsees of Route 2, Sedalia, and Lowell Monsees of Phoenix, Ariz.; and a sister, Mrs. Sheldon Smith of Smithton.

Monsees served eight years as president of the Pettis County Farm Bureau Federation, was a director and vice president of the Missouri federation, a member of the National Livestock Board, the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce Board, served on the Advisory Council of the University of Missouri, was a member of the American Diary Association and was chairman of the Missouri 4-H Foundation board of trustees.

He was an honorary member of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture Alumni Association.

Humphrey Back on Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey planned to resume normal duties today, including a probable Cabinet meeting, one day after leaving Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he underwent surgery Saturday.

Humphrey said he would leave later in the day for a rest at his home in Waverly, Minn.

He said he felt fine but "not as peppy as I did before."

The vice president was hospitalized Friday night for treatment of a mild bladder infection. A benign papilloma, or wart-like growth, was removed from the bladder Saturday during a cystoscopic examination.

"WHAT'S A "SUPPLEMENTAL" WATER SYSTEM?

What's a "supplemental" water system? According to the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, it's an individual well used by a homeowner to supplement the water he gets from the local utility during periods of drought, when the utility can't keep up with the demand. Over 50,000 supplemental wells are drilled each year. This is in addition to the half million that are drilled for families that depend on wells for 100 percent of their water supply.

If you'd like to know more about the possibility of having your own well, write for a booklet titled "How Water Wells Can Help You Solve Your Water Problems -- Easily and Economically." It's available free from the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606.

"Good grief!" he exclaimed. "You've got the biggest cavity I've ever seen -- the biggest cavity I've ever seen!"

"You didn't have to repeat it!" snapped the patient.

"I didn't," said the dentist. "That was the echo!"

Educated Missourians Are Readers, Others Watch and Listen

COLUMBIA, Mo., -- When contrasted with people of other lands, Americans are said to have insatiable appetites for the mass media. Quite unlike citizens in underdeveloped countries where a village grocer may possess the only daily link with the outside world -- a radio-- Americans from all stations in life surround themselves with televisions, radios, newspapers, magazines, newsreels, and reports of all varities. Scarcely an event of general interest occurs without comprehensive coverage by the mass media of communications.

But the fact that Americans consume the media in large quantities does not mean that they are necessarily well-informed. Despite the best efforts of the journalism profession many people do not approach the media for information. They are spectators seeking entertainment.

Thus, for example, in-depth coverage of important public issues or educational television programs consistently run sorry seconds to variety shows, westerns, or situation comedies. The front page and the editorial section are skimmed while the funnies and the letters from the lovelorn are studied.

The education of the media consumer may be an important factor determining how much and what he reads, listens to, or watches.

In an effort to see how education is related to media consumption, the Public Opinion Survey Unit asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians a series of questions about their exposure to television, radio, newspapers, and magazines. The results indicate that the extent of formal education makes a slight difference in the frequency of watching television news coverage, but for all other media it makes a great deal of difference.

Three-fourths of all adult Missourians watch televised news reports on a regular basis. Those with higher education are somewhat more likely to watch them. The most popular times for viewing the news are around the 6:00 o'clock dinner hour and at 10:00 p.m. Nearly 50 percent of the sample claimed to watch televised news programs at those hours. An equal number watched the sports review.

Missourians turn to radio news during breakfast. Forty - seven percent of the sample regularly listened to news reports on radio at 8:00 a.m. or before. But consumption of radio news differs greatly by education: those with the least education and the greatest education rely on radio news far less than those in the middle ranges. Sixty-one percent of those whose formal education stopped in grade school and 49 percent of those who had pursued graduate or professional degrees listened to radio news regularly; one the other hand, 67 percent of those with high school educations and 70 percent of those who had gone to college listened to radionews coverage on a regular basis.

The greatest differences occur, however, when the medium changes from something that can be watched or heard to something that must be read. The relationship between extent of formal education and the number of newspapers and magazines Missourians regularly read is vividly demonstrated in Table 1 and 2 below. The POSU sample was asked: "Is there any newspaper you read regularly . . . .Which one is that? Are there any others?" "How about magazines? Which ones are they?" The results are presented according to the level of formal education.

TABLE 1. NEWSPAPERS

No. Read Regularly	Grade	Level of Education High	College	Advanced
None	22%	6%	3%	5%
1	39	37	38	15
2	33	45	47	49
3 or more	6	12	12	31
	100%	100%	100%	100%

TABLE 2. MAGAZINES

No. Read Regularly	Grade	Level of Education High	College	Advanced
None	50%	24%	10%	8%
1-2	31	40	39	26
3-4	15	23	31	35
5 or more	4	13	20	31
	100%	100%	100%	100%

Both tables indicate that, in almost all instances, a higher level of education is associated with regular readership of a larger number of newspapers and magazines. The relatively high percentages of people whose formal education did not extend beyond grade school who also fail to read newspapers and magazines (22 percent and 50 percent) hints at the functional illiteracy of a large segment of Missouri population. (32 percent of the total adult sample were in the "grade school" category.) To be sure, this does not guarantee that those with greater exposure to the written word will be more well-informed. It may mean simply that more highly - educated people find reading to be more entertaining than listening and watching.

Certainly the reverse is true at the lower end of the educational ladder. The lower the education, generally, the greater the number of hours spent watching television. This can be seen in Table 3.

TABLE 3. TELEVISION VIEWING

No. Hours Weekly Viewing Television	Grade	Level of Education High	College	Advanced
20 hours or less	72%	74%	81%	97%
More than 20 hours	28	26	19	3
	100%	100%	100%	100%

When one recalls that watching television news coverage is more common among those with higher educations and the fact that news coverage seldom accounts for more than 20 hours of a video week, it becomes clear that, for people with less education, television is primarily a medium of entertainment rather than a medium of information.

When all the forms of media exposure were examined together, the Missouri Poll found that, at a minimum, 20 percent of all adult Missourian's are exempt from any public information coverage--other than perhaps word-of-mouth--in a normal week.

For them, the mass media either do not exist or they are not sources of information about public affiars.

The American Automobile Association says the cost of insurance, registration and depreciation of a car has risen from an average of $807 a year in 1965 to $982.

The largest diamond ever found in the South was the Cullinan, weighing 3,106 carats, or about one and a third pounds. It was discovered near Petroria in1905.

Court Ruling Transfers Trust Fund Assets to MU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The board of trustees of the University of Kansas City has been ordered to turn over all assets of trusts willed by Miss Lena Haag to the University to curators of the University of Missouri.

The ruling was handed down Tuesday by Judge Harr A. Hall of the Jackson County Circuit Court in a declaratory judgment suit.

Miss Haag died July 15, 1951 and her will set up a trust fund of $100,000 to be called the "Lena Haag Fund for Deserving Students." Income from the fund is to be used for loans to needy and deserving students of the University of Kansas City.

After her death, however, the university became a branch of the University of Missouri.

The question before the court, Judge Hall said, was whether the University of Kansas City ceased to exist within terms of the will, which would have allowed Park College to benefit from such a change.

The action of Miss Haag during her lifetime and the wording of the will "clearly indicate that her interest was in the university continuing as an educational institution rather than its particular corporate name or whether it received its financial support from public or private funds," the judge ruled.

He said the school "as she knew it continued to exist after the transfer the same as before," and he ruled that the educational institution named in the will continues to exist within the meaning of the will.

The will also set up the Lena Haag endowment fund for the University of Kansas City "with income to be used to establish and maintain teaching chairs in some departments to be known as the Lena Haag chairs. Also, $500,000 was donated for the school's liberal arts building to be named Haag Hall as a memorial to her parents and herself.

Venus' Arms

It is generally believed by art authorities that the statue of Venus de Milo had arms. When unearthed, it was in two parts and pieces of the arms were found with it, as well as a pedestal with an inscription. These later disappeared and have never again been found.

Senate Holds To Lower Pay Scale

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate has settled on $7,200 a year for the legislative pay scale compared with the present $4,800.

The House voted for $9,000 with a bonus for the speaker, whose salary would have been the same as the lieutenant governor, now $12,000.

But the Senate went back to its original $7,200 figure and cut out the extra money for the speaker so the bill must return to the House for final action.

Meanwhile a bill to ban wiretapping or other electronic snooping appeared dead for this session. It was scheduled for a House committee hearing Tuesday night but the sponsor failed to appear.

Also apparently dead is a bill that would have given the legislature instead of the Conservation Commission power to set hunting and fishing fees.

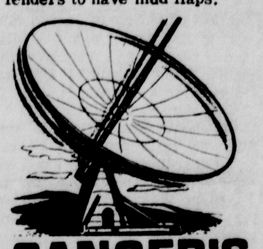
The Senate Judiciary Committee heard proponents of the measure Tuesday but put off hearing opponents until next week, giving it practically no chance of passage even if approved by the committee.

The Senate passed and sent to the governor bills to move the statue of Gen. John J. Pershing from the Capitol grounds to Pershing State Park at Laclede, and another to allow milk processors to package milk in sizes of half gallons or multiples thereof. Some want to sell 2½ gallon cartons.

Sent back to the House with Senate changes were bills to:

Require trucks carrying sand, gravel or other loose material to have protective coverings.

Require trucks without back fenders to have mud flaps.



CANCER'S WARNING SIGNALS

1 Unusual bleeding or discharge
2 A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere
3 A sore that does not heal
4 Change in bowel or bladder habits
5 Hoarseness or cough
6 Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing
7 Change in a wart or mole

These signals do not usually mean cancer, but they are warnings; if one lasts more than two weeks, it is important to go to your doctor.

Grants Seen Threat To Governments

The growing size and complexity of grants made by greater to lesser government bodies poses a threat to the fiscal well - being and independence of the smaller units dependent on the higher governments' largesse, a new Tax Foundation, Inc. study said.

In a 64-page Handbook of State and Local Government Finance, C. Lowell Harriss, Economic Consultant to the Foundation and Columbia University Professor of Economics, said that Federal government influence through grants "continues to multiply and the pattern of controls has become so largely fixed that modification proves very difficult."

In the 1954-65 period, Federal grants to states almost quadrupled from $2,668 to $9,874 million, while Federal monies paid local governments increased similarly from $298 to $1,155 million. In the same period, funds received by local governments from state governments more than doubled, from $5,635 to $14,077 million.

The Handbook, first of its kind, is intended, said the Foundation, as a guide to the layman wishing to know more about state-local government and the factors influencing those governments' spending and taxing.

The book's eight chapters cover such points as the reasons for the growth of state-local spending; how state and local bodies are trying to effect economies and encourage efficiency but are handicapped by past decisions made on spending; and the criteria for judging a revenue system.

Pressures to increase state-local spending, said the Foundation study, remain powerful, despite increases in tax rates and imposition of new taxes which together have increased total yields by about 120 percent in 10 years.

The book noted that although state-local revenue systems are yielding far more than only a few years ago, they cannot pay for everything, and the states turn to borrowing or Federal grants to make ends meet. Gross debt of state-local governments has more than quadrupled in the 1940-1964 period, from $20.3 billion to $92.2 billion.

In the chapter on Federal-state-local government financial relations, Professor Harriss said that Americans who hope to use government to force one group to pay for benefits to others often press for these grants by pointing out what desirable things will result, "with little or no mention of how the cost will be met." State and local lawmakers feel compelled to accept Federal money when offered. "To get the grant," said the Handbook, "even when the Federal dollars are a small fraction of the total, the receiving government may need to modify its operations to meet Federal requirements."

The amount of spending over which state-local government officials now have "effective control," according to the Handbook, may be only a small fraction of the whole spending budget of the particular government entity. "The strongest pressures," said Professor Harriss, "will usually be those which require great spending." Some of this will come from inside government, as from the agency staffs; some from outside government, from neighborhood groups, from PTA's, highway users, etc.

Thieu Enters Race Against Ky

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu announced today that he will run for president in the Sept. 3 election against his military colleague Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

Thieu, a lieutenant general in the army, said the fact that both he and Air Vice Marshal Ky were running would not split the military.

But unless Ky or Thieu pulls out of the race, they will be competing for the votes of 600,000 members of the armed forces. To prevent diversion of military interest from the war effort, American officials had tried to persuade Thieu not to run.

In Scottsdale, Ariz., a Mormon church planned a western - style barbecue as a fund - raising benefit. To attract a sizable crowd from around the countryside, they hit upon the idea of using Indian smoke signals. But, to their surprise, they couldn't find an Indian who knew how to send smoke signals. "We never use them," said an Apache. "We've forgotten how," said a Hopi.

The chairman of the Colorado River Tribes admitted that he had once made a smoke signal when he worked for the movies. "But if I were to send up a smoke signal today," he said, "it would have to be one big white puff and two dark puffs -- the Indian Bureau requires two carbons of everything." Don Dedra

Indian Calumets

The ceremonial pipes, or calumets, of the Indians were respected symbols and were used only on special occasions. One end of the calumet was usually decorated with the head of a bird and colored feathers were added for special meanings, such as red for war and green for peace or safe conduct.

Services for Traffic Crash Victim Thursday

Edward L. Payne

Services for Edward Leon Payne, 47, who lost his life in an automobile collision Monday near Mt. Carmel, Ill., will be in the First Assemby of God church, Thursday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in the Garden of Memories cemetery with Welsh Funeral Home in charge.

Payne was returning from a visit in Michigan, not in Portland, Me., and Kokomo, Ind., as first reported.

It was reported in yesterday's Standard that his car was passing another vehicle when the accident occurred. Reports from the sheriff's office stated that Payne's auto was struck headon by a car occupied by Richard M. Dudley and Jerry P. Lovellette, both of Mt. Carmel, which was passing another car.

Payne's auto was reported to have come almost at a complete stop. It was off the shoulder of the road.

O. S. Payne of Memphis, a brother, is among the survivors.

Mrs. Payne was transferred from a Mt. Carmel hospital to an East St. Louis hospital today. She has two broken legs, broken hip and a broken jaw bone.

Wage Dispute Headed for Supreme Court

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)— A temporary court order restraining the federal government from enforcing provisions of the federal wage law will remain in effect until the U. S. Supreme Court rules on the case.

That was the only unanimous decision by a panel of three federal judges Tuesday as it handed down three differing opinions.

The judges ruled 2-1 that minimum wage provisions of the 1966 legislation were valid. But one of the majority judges said overtime provisions might be unconstitutional, and the third judge said both wage and overtime provisions are unconstitutional.

Maryland and 25 other states, including Kansas and Missouri, attacked the 1966 amendments to the fair labor standards act.

The law was to take effect Feb. 1. It requires a minimum hourly wage of $1.15 for employes of public schools, hospitals, nursing homes and institutions for the mentally and physically handicapped. It would increase the minimum wage to $1.60 an hour by Feb. 1, 1971.

It provides for overtime for nonexecutive, nonprofessional and nonadministrative workers in these institutions who work more than 40 hours a week.

At the heart of the case is the question of where federal authority ends and states' rights begin.

John H. May Service Today

MORLEY - Services for John H. May, 72, were today at 2 p.m. in the Morley Baptist church, with the Rev. Grady Ethridge officiating. He died Sunday morning in the Missouri Pacific hospital in St. Louis.

Burial was in the old Morley cemetery, with Nunnelee Funeral Home in Sikeston in charge.

Pallbearers were Don May, Tom May, Jerry May, Jim May, Joe May and Jim O'Neal.

TO CHANGE THE THINGS I CAN

She, feeling a little eerie,
Said "The noise annoys me."
The night was dark and dreary,
And, thinking to make her carefree,
I said, "It's only the shutters;
You cannot stop the wind."
"No, but I can close the shutters --"
She did, and I was chagrined.

Billboard Bill Advances

The Missouri Senate passed and sent to the House today a billboard regulatory measure designed to meet federal highway beautification standards.

The vote was 20-11.

Opponents said it would destroy the billboard industry and could cost the state as much as $150 million. Others objected to Missouri being made a guinea pig in setting billboard standards.

They urged delay until Congress decides how stringent the regulations should be.

Sponsors said Missouri could lose $10 million in federal high way funds because the present law, passed last year, is not acceptable to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

The House has passed a much looser bill which is still in Senate committee.

After years of trying the legislature finally passed a bill to abolish the open range in the few Ozark areas where livestock still is allows to roam at large.

The Senate accepted a House change making the effective date Jan. 1, 1969, then sent the bill to the governor on a 32-1 vote.

In years past the bill has sometimes passed the Senate but has always aroused heated opposition in the old rural dominated House.

Also passed and sent to the governor was a bill to make Missouri a member of the multistate Tax Compact Commission to which 10 states now belong.

Mighty Mo Tops Levees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri River levees in the Waverly, Mo., area were broken today as flood crests hit that section.

Farm families were evacuated north of the river as the Sugar Tree and Wakenda levees and one private levee owned by the Davis-Noland-Merrill Grain Co. of Kansas City were broken and the bottomland was inundated.

Army Engineers expect the stream to crest today at Waverly at 26.2 feet, 8.2 feet above flood stage.

Little rain was in prospect today for the flood area and tributaries of the Big Muddy were receding from dangerous levels.

At Kansas City Tuesday night the river crested about two feet above its banks.

At Lexington the stream was expected to crest about 8½ feet above flood stage.

This was enough to impede traffic on old sections of U. S. 24 west of town and on Missouri 13 north of the Lexington bridge. It was also enough to flood about 10,000 river bottom acres. It was not high enough to flood the Lexington waterworks, and the town itself is on high bluffs.

The Missouri was scheduled to go 8½ feet above bankfull later today at Waverly, 4½ feet at Glasgow. It is expected to crest six feet above bankfull at Boonville and a foot above at Jefferson City on Thursday.

Crests 7½ to 11½ feet above bankfull were scheduled for today and Thursday at Chillicothe, Sumner and Brunswick on the Grand River, which drains a large area of north-central and northwest Missouri and is a notorious flooder.

At those levels, the river cuts back roads, touches some main highways and covers lowland farm lands — something it does early every year and sometimes three times a year. Few houses and buildings are involved.

The passing of widespread and heavy downpours in northwest Missouri led the weather bureau to exclaim:

"After 10 long days, a nice evening finally came to Missouri."

South - central and northeast Kansas were under several storm watches Tuesday night, but little action developed.

Tornado funnels were sighted near Meade and Russell in western Kansas, but there were no reports of damage.

The forecast for today: Partly cloudy with a chance of scattered thunderstorms.

Dodd Makes Impassioned Plea to Fellow Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an impassioned appeal to his fellow senators, Thomas J. Dodd asked today if any of them knew of any time he had lied, or cheated or broken his word to them.

The 60-year-old Connecticut Democrat, defending himself against charges of financial misconduct, pounded one fist against his other hand and cried:

"What has happened to the United States Senate if I can't look you in the eye and say this is a fact."

"I've talked with you, I've walked among you, I've lived with you for more than eight years," Dodd said. "Does any one of you know any time I have lied to you, ever cheated, ever done a dishonorable thing, ever given you my word and then done something else?"

Dodd spoke in his own defense in the second day of debate on the Senate ethics committee's recommendation that he be censured for conduct that "tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

After a 14-month investigation, the bipartisan committee unanimously reported that Dodd had converted $116,083 in political funds to his own use and had double-billed for travel expenses.

Dodd said he had nothing to do with billing the government for travel expenses also paid by private organizations, and declared that if his colleagues judged him a thief, they should expel him.

He said he had nothing to do with the double billing and pinned the blame on sloppy bookkeeping, particularly by Michael V. O'Hare, a former employe who was one of the chief witnesses against the senator.

O'Hare, one of four ex-employes who took some 4,000 documents from Dodd's office and turned over copies to columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Jack Anderson, testified that he had double billed on Dodd's instructions.

Dodd said that O'Hare was acting out of vengeance after his girl friend, Terry Golden, was dismissed by the senator.

"How can you take the testimony of such a man as credible and reliable and say I'm a thief because he says so?" Dodd cried.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the ethics committee chairman, said at the start of the censure debate Monday that he found O'Hare's testimony "very convincing."

"It's Dodd against O'Hare," said the senator, who contended there was not an iota of evidence to support his former bookkeeper's testimony.

"Perhaps I shouldn't blame the committee for being deceived by O'Hare," Dodd said. "He deceived me. He is a very deceptive fellow."

A member of the Senate since 1959, the white-haired Connecticut Democrat spoke slowly and forcefully and appealed to his colleagues to decide the issue on its merits and without political considerations.

He hit hardest at the charge he bilked the government on travel expenses. He said if he is judged a thief, he should be expelled from the Senate.

Dodd acknowledged the use of some campaign and testimonial funds for personal expenses — but not to the extent reported by the bipartisan ethics committee.

The wife of the 60-year-old senator and four of their six children listened from the gallery as he said "a man's reputation is his most precious possession" and appealed for justice, not mercy.

More than 80 of the 100 senators were in their seats and listened attentively.

Merry Making With Meringues

From the Swiss town of Mehringhem came one of the most delightful, delicate cooking concoctions. It was in this village, nearly 250 years ago that a baker came up with the idea of --meringue!

Though it is nothing more than a combination of egg white, sugar, flavoring and air, a meringue is one of the most glamorous of kitchen creations.

It's a meringue that puts the crowning touch on that unique dessert, Baked Alaska. Firm or hard meringues make dainty cookies . . . special pie shells . . . hollow nests for ice cream or fruit. And familiar to all are the soft meringues which top pies, puddings and custards.

It takes a bit of skill, however, to produce a fluffy, lightly browned meringue topping on your favorite cream pie. Many a cook has wept to see her meringue weep.

To make a near-perfect meringue, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service suggests:

*Blend in the sugar gently, about a tablespoon at a time.

*Beat meringue only until sugar is dissolved.

*Be sure pie filling is medium-warm. A cold filling leads to leaking; hot one may cause beading.

Also, remember that egg whites beat to greatest volume at room temperature. Separate the eggs (carefully, for even a speck of yolk will cut down the volume) and return the yolks to the refrigerator. These will keep two or three days in a covered container (with water) until you can make good use of them in such dishes as French toast, scrambled eggs, puddings, etc.

RECIPES FOR MAKING MERRY MERINGUES

3 Egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
3/4 cup sugar

Preheat oven to 250 degrees F. (very slow). Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt and cream of tartar. Beat until soft peaks form. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly, and continue beating until very stiff peaks form. Shape meringue into six mounds on heavy brown paper on a baking sheet. Using the back of a spoon, form a hollow in the center of each mound. Bake 1 hour. Turn off heat and let meringues cool in oven. Serve filled with ice cream, fruit, or pudding, or a combination.

(Note: One teaspoon lemon juice may be used instead of cream of tartar. Add it after the sugar has been beaten into the egg whites.)

STRAWBERRY SUPREME

Swirl a whipped meringue mixture (hard) into a pie plate and bake about an hour at 250 degrees F. Cool and fill with strawberry or vanilla ice cream. Top with fresh strawberries.

FLOATING ISLANDS

2 or 3, as desired Egg whites
1/4 teaspoon Salt
2 tablespoons for each egg white Sugar

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly, and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Pile meringue in 6 mounds on a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 325 degrees F. (slow oven) 10 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned. Or drop mounds of meringue on simmering water. Cover and cook 12 to 15 minutes, or until set. Remove from the water immediately. Pop the mounds atop servings of soft custard pudding.

COCONUT KISSES

Into a stiffly beaten meringue, fold coconut (or finely chopped walnuts or slivered almonds). Drop by tablespoons onto a cookie sheet and bake at 250 degrees F. until firm--aboug 30 minutes. Makes a dainty cookie.

SAN CARLOS, Calif. - Travis Jackson, a former resident of Sikeston, Mo., has been elected the 1967-68 president of the San Carlos Rotary club.

Jackson, a 1948 graduate of Sikeston high school, is the son of Mrs. A.M. Jackson, 623 Moore Ave., Sikeston, and the late Mr. Jackson.

Jackson has been a partner in the law firm of Truce, Veale and Jackson six years.

Jackson is married to the former Rhoda Siemens of Minneapolis. They have three daughters.

Breadwinners

Females are usually the breadwinners in the lion family. Ladies of the pride stalk prey grazing on the plains at sundown, while the maned males stay on the sidelines until it is time to appropriate the choicest portions. Lionesses eat next and the cubs get the scraps.

Birth of A Skyscraper

NEW YORK'S FIRST SKYSCRAPER

In the acute - angled triangle made by the scissors-like intersection of Broadway and Fifth Avenue at 23rd Street in midtown Manhattan stands what was known during its first years as "the world's most famous skyscraper" -- the Flatiron Building.

Completed in 1902 under the direction of Chicago-based Daniel Burnham on a site aptly described at the time as "a stingy piece of pie", the 21-story building sinks its foundations 35 feet below ground and rises to a height of 307 feet. Pointing northward, it presents an edge almost as sharp as the bow of a ship at what tradition says is the windiest corner of the city.

First of its kind in New York, the building contains 3,680 tons of structural steel -- with its masonry walls and its individual floors supported by its then "new style" steel frame. It was described at the time of its dedication as "Capable of sheltering 1700 office workers, or more than the population of a respectable suburban village."

The Architectural Record of October 1902 granted grudingly that the Flatiron Building was "quite the most notorious thing in New York," attracting "more attention than all the other buildings now going up put together."

Another observer of the day noted: "The Flatiron Building facing Madison Square is distinctly responsible for a new form of hurricane, which meets unsuspecting pedestrians as they reach the corner, causing them extreme discomfort. Loafers congregate upon the curb to gloat over the distress of ladies whose skirts are blown into their eyes as they round the treacherous corner."

Recently modernized to meet today's comfort, efficiency, and aesthetic demands within its walls, the Flatiron Building is today the grand old lady of New York skyscrapers -- still going and blowing strong.

Torpedoed U.S. Ship Limps Into Port on Own Power

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)— The torpedoed U.S. Navy ship Liberty, an American victim of the Arab-Israeli war, crept into Malta's harbor today with orange cannon marks on her gray paint matching the colors of the dawn.

The 11,000-ton Liberty, victim of an Israeli air and sea attack in the eastern Mediterranean Thursday, came in under her own power.

She was down by the bow, and her starboard side a gaping torpedo hole and cannon and rocket holes spread from the waterline to the top of her gray funnel. The shells had scraped through the gray naval paint to expose the orange primer beneath.

Twenty-four of the Liberty's 275 crewmen were presumed dead, trapped in flooded holds. The bodies of nine other crewmen and the most seriously of the ship's 75 wounded have been transferred to the carrier America.

The ship will be put into drydock in Malta. A canvas "bandage" will be put over the torpedo hole in her starboard side while the water is drained from the two flooded holds to ensure that the trapped bodies will be recovered quickly.

The U.S. Navy threw a strict security wrap around the crew and said none would be available for interviews until the Navy's court of inquiry was completed, a process likely to take some days.

The Israelis have apoligized for the attack, saying it was an accident. A Navy spokesman said the Liberty was armed with only four .50-caliber machine guns.

Vendetta's Origin

The term vendetta originated in Corsica, where it played an important part in social life. It is Italian in origin, from the Latin "vindicare," which means to "defend oneself," according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Time, Labor, Worry Involved in Portageville Betterment Effort

BY DON ROBERTS

PORTAGEVILLE - It takes time, labor and worry in order to achieve goals in any Missour community betterment program no matter the size of town," Dr. O. A. Huck, community betterment project chairman, said.

Four projects were chosen when the program began: awareness, informing the public of community betterment and educate them about its benefits; beautification, encouraging individuals as well as organizations to promote projects to clean up the town; youth activities, sponsoring leisure time activities as well as finding jobs; attitute, finding out what people feel about the town and what they would like to do to improve it.

In a booklet titled, "Overall Economic Development Plan for New Madrid County" problems regarding the development of the county have been compiled. For Portageville these problems have been evaluated, an extension of the city limits, federal low cost housing, an airport for the city, a rural water system, curbing and guttering, beautification, 162 highway bypass, enlargement of water system, new fire truck, remodel fire station, improve park facilities, park on Interstate 55, beautification of cemetery.

Some needs have been met. Others are in the process of being met. Portageville businessmen say that these needs require time to be achieved.

A board has been set up by the service clubs to discuss the MCB program. There are two members of each club and two members of the high school student council on this board.

The Chamber of Commerce has extended an associate membership to persons wishing to participate but are non-business people.

A 16-acre lot option for an industrial site was acquired last year. Annual Soybean Festival proceeds of approximately $30,000 made the Chamber the major stockholder in the factory site. The land is at the north edge of the city limits.

The race is on for betterment as the community strives for a five-star.

The five star program consists of standards to be met in education, utilities, transportation, community planning and community service.

In the program the community plans and compares its work with the standards set up by such organizations as the state department of education, the state division of health, the water pollution board, the University of Missouri extension service, the Missouri Good Roads association, utilities and other groups.

When the community meets the minimum requirements it will be awarded a star in each of five categories.

Education: When a community provides a strong effort to provide the best elementary and secondary public schools as possible. It should meet the AAA standards of classifications as outlined by the State Department of Education.

Some schools may meet the qualifications with an AA or even A if financial resources and number of pupils make it impractical for them to meet or strive for the AAA classification. The district supervisors of the state department of education determine if the school has met the standard it is capable of attaining.

Utilities: Approved water supply available.

The availability of water in some areas is not as great as others. For some small communities it is not practical to install a water treatment plant. Therefore no community is required to have a public water supply. However, any community with public water must meet certain criteria to qualify for the five-star program.

The criteria for approval of public water supplies includes sanitary features of construction, competency of an reliability of operation and acceptable bacteriological and chemical quality. A designed criteria of a plant of 100 gallons per capita per day must be met.

Sewage: The proper handling and treatment of sewage is an important factor to consider. The system should be so constructed that it will be adequate for the needs of industry and for the future needs of the community. The Missouri water pollution board feels that all communities with the population of 213 to 415 can have a sanitary sewage system with a lagoon that can be constructed for as little as $30,000.

Lighting: Without available funds it will be impossible for all communities to meet all the requirements.

Street lighting should not be constructed until the community has some type of maintenance program.

Transportation: The streets are the arteries of the community and if the streets are in poor condition then the health of the community is poor.

Paving, curbing and guttering are three factors in streets that determine the wealth of the town. The MCB program requires that at least 80% of the streets be paved with a curb.

Air Markings: The minimum critera for this is that the community have an air marker on top of a prominent roof top in town. The marker must meet the state and federal requirements.

Community Planning and Zoning: This part of the program is designed to help the community to develop and prosper in the future. It involves such things as the way the community is laid out, the traffic circulation and streets through the community, the public buildings, parks and play grounds, the costs of developing the community on a long range basis.

This long range plan is a necessity for the town to continue to develop. It must be flexible and be continually up to date.

Community Services: This includes health services, fire and police protection and leisure time activites. This is simply an obligation of the city government to provide these protections to its citizens and promote the services to contribute to the happiness of the citizens in their leisure time.

Portageville Chamber of Commerce President Leonard Hand says they qualify for two stars, one in education and the other in utilities. Stars will soon be obtained in transportation and community services and a star is hoped to be obtained in community planning by the end of the year.

For the third star, transportation, the community qualifies in having adequate street paving and lack an air marking which is to be placed on the roof of the hightest and largest building in town.

For the fourth star, community planning, the community has undertaken the State 701 Plan which surveys the area and plans and zones the area for industrial development.

For the fifth star, community services, the community qualifies in health services and lack a few minor details in providing facilities for leisure time activities. For police protection two men must be sent to school two weeks a year to train for their positions as city law officials. In fire protection a new fire truck and equipment is being purchased which will qualify them for fire protection.

How They Were Named

Columbus set out to seek India and thought he had found it when he reached America so the natives of the western hemisphere came to be called Indians.

Population Decreased

The population of Warsaw, Poland, decreased from an estimated 1,289,000 before World War II to about 153,000 in 1945 due to the attacks and extermination policies of both the Soviet Union and Germany.

The North Pole was located near Hawaii in pre-Cambrian times, some 500 million years ago.

Lack of Money No Student Bar

COLUMBIA -- Lack of money is no excuse for an academically qualified student not obtaining a college education.

Under the federal work-study program, operating not only in Missouri but throughout the nation and available at all public and private college and universities, students with college ability are assured of higher education opportunities.

The University of Missouri, Columbia, actually seeks out this type of potential student. Its admissions representatives outline the program at career days held in high schools; when they get a lead on such a prospect, they literally go after him. The objective is to make sure that no promising student is denied a chance to attend college, even if family finances are low.

The 18-month old program has eliminated previous advice to working students -- that they have sufficient capital to pay their estimated expenses through the first year of school. Now such prospects are placed in summer jobs, may qualify for scholarships or waiver of fees, get federal educational opportunity grants, and are found part-time jobs during the school year and otherwise are assured of securing the estimated $1,600 annual expenses required to attend the University.

The Columbia campus of the University has about 600 students enrolled in the program. They work full time in the summer and most of them work part time while in school to pay nearly half their expenses. They are entitled to a modest educational grant to supplement the family contribution, the amount of which is worked out in advance. Expenses for the year are estimated at $1,600.

George C. Brooks, assistant director of student financial aids at the University here, is in charge of the work-study program, which is sponsored jointly by the U.S. Office of Education and the University of Missouri since 1965.

To illustrate how the plan works, Brooks cited a hypothetical case. If the income of a family with three children is $6,000 a year, it is estimated that $350 can be contributed toward the student's schooling. The boy should save a minimum of $300 from the summer job which the University obtains for him. This leaves a balance of $950 on the year's expenses. The student is entitled to a $450 educational opportunity grant offered by the Office of Education. This would leave a deficit of $500 which the student can earn by working 10 to 15 hours a week on the work-study program at $1.25 an hour while in school or by qualifying for a scholarship. The cycle starts all over each summer.

"We think highly of this program as a means of financial assistance," Brooks said. "The program is good for the student, good for his character, and the taxpayers get their money's worth since the boy or girl is doing worthwhile work in the community or on the campus."

He said that many of the students in the program are very good academically, and that the rate of retention during the year in all classes is 90 per cent. The 10 per cent loss contrasts with the usual 30 per cent of freshmen who drop out of university classes at the end of one year.

One recent recruit is the eldest of 13 children in a family whose income is less than $4,000 a year. He was in the upper fourth of his high school class and among students taking the Ohio Psychological Test. He was awarded a Curators waiver of fees and may receive a small loan if that is necessary. Another incoming freshman who is working in the program this summer finished near the top of his high school class and in the 95 percentile on the Ohio test.

University extension directors stationed in each county of the state are primary contacts for students interested in entering the work-study program. They handle initial phases of registration and are aware of job opportunities in the area. Students are usually placed in non-profit operations such as the state park department, county courts, schools, soil conservation offices, and libraries. This Office of Education pays 90 per cent of the hourly wage - - which has a $1.25 minimum generally and reaches a $1.62 minimum in St. Louis. The participants or employers pay the remaining 10 per cent plus social security and workmen's compensation assessments. During the winter there are ample opportunities on the campus for the students to work in libraries, offices, laboratories, or in janitorial service.

The work-study program, national in scope, is marked by a high degree of cooperation among educational institutions. In Missouri the University obviously is the largest employer in the program and is in better position to find summer jobs. All four campuses of the University, junior colleges and other four-year colleges offer similar programs. Hence a student may find it to his advantage to start there and then transfer to the University.

Namesake to Uphold Key Tradition

SEATTLE (AP) — The man who will oversee tonight's Flag Day ceremonies at the suburban Lake City Elks Club is something of an expert in the field.

He is Francis Scott Key, 40, the great-great-great grandson of the man who wrote the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Key, a salesman, served in the Navy in the latter part of World War II but saw no battles to compare with the one in the War of 1812 that inspired his ancestor.

That Key, lawyer, scholar and district attorney, watched the shelling of Ft. McHenry near his Baltimore home from an enemy ship. He had gone aboard the British vessel to seek release of a friend, Dr. William Beanes, prominent Baltimore physician.

Throughout the day and night of Sept. 13, 1814, the shells rained down. But "as dawn's early light" brightened into the day of Sept. 14, Key saw that the "broad stripes and bright stars" still flew "o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Of special significance to Elks on this day is that the stars on that flag that flew over Ft. McHenry were cut out by Miss Margaret Young, who later became the mother of Henry Sanderson, the grand exalted ruler of the order of Elks in 1884.

Key's great-great grandfather was one of 11 children born to the man who wrote the words of the national anthem and the famous name has been handed down through the generations.

His father also was Francis Scott as is his 15-year-old son.

Key said he has never had any inclination to write, but his daughter, Carol, 11, is "interested in writing poems and the words for songs."

COFFEE CORNER

I can remember not so very long ago, about five years to be exact, when my father opened his mouth and made one of those rash statements people are prone later to regret, his being, "I can't figure out how any damn fool could chase a little white ball all over a cow pasture and think he's having fun!" That any "damn fool" in had been trying to explain the intricacies of the game to his father-in-law. Charles gave up after being laughed at and scorned and finally decided my father just wasn't much of a sport. Ha -- he doesn't know pops! My daddy is not only a sport, but when he decides to take up whatever happens to strike his fancy at that moment, he becomes the King of the Sports. I can remember when we use to have motor boats, then we flew airplanes (back in the olden days when even the ones that flew in the air were made of paper), we were for awhile, a great white hunter, then we bowled until we'd flattened everything in sight and so, it was only inevitable that at his age, (boy, will that ever bring dad up out of his easy chair --oh well, he needs the exercise, cause he sure doesn't get it on the golf course!), began to tell he became forced to take up a more sedate sport - what else - golf. He not only has taken it up, he breathes, eats, sleeps, drinks, and if you popped him on the noggin, all that would fall out would be golf balls. He doesn't just chase those balls around the cow pasture, he fleetingly pursues them in a gaily colored little cart (which he trades every six months), boasting a surrey with the fringe on top, he uses the very (from day to day), latest equipment, makes all the tournaments, and is now dressing to match his mood and conveyance. Did anyone notice that vision in hot yellow and chili pepper orange on the course here this Sunday? Yep, that's my Pop, and I'll tell you something else. I can laugh WITH him, and tease and taunt him about that silly game and his fancy get up all I want, but Charles and the rest of you better lay off. After all, he belongs to me and anyway, I sorta think he looks pretty all dressed up fit to kill in the latest golfing fashion, besides, I'm sure it improves his game 100%, if not improve his, at least it doesn't help his opponent any who are blinded by the glare. See, there's method in his modness, he knows what he's doing! And, while you're reading this dad, (he just happens to be, or was, one of my favorite and most devoted fans), I'd like to make a date for Sunday, to bestow a little Father's Day love upon your brow -- I promise I'll make it quick -- just slow that darn cart down somewhere between the 5th and 6th hole and I'll catch you on the run.

Sinatra Now Art Patron

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now it's Frank Sinatra, patron of the arts.

The new role was disclosed last weekend at the First Annual Frank Sinatra Musical Performance Awards Concert in the Royce Hall at UCLA. The concert was presented by the College of Fine Arts and attended by 1,500, including the donor of the awards.

Sinatra's presence was denoted by a cluster of youthful autograph seekers around his aisle seat before the performance began. The singer played it cool and academic, smiling courteously as he signed the programs. He was obviously relieved when the concert began.

It was a heady mixture of classical and pop. William Cosby of Torrance, Calif., second prize winner in instruments, played a couple of intricate, moody pieces on the accordion, making listeners wonder why that versatile instrument is neglected for serious music. Next came the instrumental winner, Gary Gray of Indianapolis, Ind., who delivered free-wheeling versions of "Georgy Girl" and "The Shadow of Your Smile" on the clarinet. Then he demonstrated his scholarship with a rhapsody by DeBussy.

Diana Sims lilted through a Schubert composition and "Musetta's Waltz." From Beverly Hills, Calif., she won first prize for vocals. She was followed by Andrew Belling of San Francisco, second-prize winner for creativity. He sang and played his own compositions on the piano and also conducted the New Chatsworth Band, a youthful group.

The program listed "comments by Mr. Sinatra" after the intermission.

He strode swiftly to the stage and shook the hand of Dean William Melnitz of the College of Fine Arts.

"Young people insist on believing that they can work miracles — and they can. I am here to see if I can help talented young musicians make some miracles on their own," Sinatra said.

"I believe we should try to keep all lines of creativity open. I hope we can all strive to bring a little more joy, love, wit, kindness and talent into the world. If we can do that, then perhaps some of us will stop disbelieving miracles."

He then presented checks totalling $5,000 to the winners, who will use the money for graduate studies. They expressed their gratitude with a "Sinatra Tribute," arranged by young Belling and played with the full band.

Decline Seen for Schools Opposed To Federal Aid

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) --- Southern Baptists have been warned that church-supported colleges, which reject federal aid on grounds of separation of church and state, face probable decline.

The prediction came Monday night from Dr. Charles G. Dobbins, executive secretary of the American Council on Higher Education, as more than 300 top Baptists opened a four-day higher education study conference.

A key issue facing the session is that of federal aid, rejected by most of the 54 Southern Baptist colleges and universities on grounds that acceptance would violate separation of church and state.

Dobbins urged acceptance of federal grants and loans.

Otherwise, he said, Baptist schools "are likely to decline in financial strength while millions of Baptist tax dollars are spent to support and build quality in other institutions."

Southern Baptist institutions, mostly concentrated in the south and southwest, have an overall total of approximately 100,000 students.

Baylor University in Waco, Tex., is the largest with an enrollment of 8,500.

In our parish, Gail entered a Catholic school that had several Negro families. At dinner the first night her mother asked, "Are there any colored children in your class?"

"What color?" Gail wanted to know.

AL CAPP:

The great fun of getting up in the morning, even to men in prison, is that something you cannot predict may happen to you that day. Although we have laws on the books against gambling, life itself is an immense gamble -- and let's be thankful for that. The man who invents a Futuroid camera will have done more to make life unlivable than the man who invented the H-bomb.

George Bernard Shaw in Back to Methuselah:

Imagination is the beginning of creation. You imagine what you desire; you will what you imagine; and at last you create what you will.

Family Hit By Tragedy

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP) -- Cape County Magistrate Roland G. Busch and his wife, who lost a son in a Navy plane crash six years ago and a grandson in a traffic accident two weeks ago, were notified this week their only other son, Air Force Capt. Elwin A. Busch, was killed in Vietnam.

Capt. Busch, 35, a 12-year Air Force veteran, was shot down Friday over enemy territory.

His brother, Navy Lt. Roland G. Busch, Jr., was killed in a plane crash off the California coast in 1961. Lt. Busch survived a plane crash during the Korean war, but was captured and spent 17 months in a prison camp.

The grandson, 9-year-old Corwin McClure, was the son of Mrs. Thomas McClure of Sikeston, Mo., one of the three Busch daughters.

When her bones became too
sharp and her mind too dull, she wore, to play a weathered harp, a white a beautiful a gossamer gown which caught the wind
(which caught the entire city) and each of us looked over the bend
of his nose at her with pity.
But O if angel ever thrilled to a more celestial note than those Miss Agnes wiled (or willed)
from that old har's throat
I'd like to hear it . . . and I doubt when she goes in she'll leave me out --
body or spirit.

Edsel Ford.

History shows that Christ on the cross has been more potent than anything else in arousing a compassion for suffering and indignation at injustice.

F.J. Foakes-Jackson.

O God of the Infant Jesus, God of the Man Christ Jesus, God of his cross and resurrection, how can we thank Thee enough for coming into our human life as a Baby born in Bethlehem long ago, to grow into manhood and to bring us salvation into life eternal? May we lift our celebration of this glorious event out of all that is unworthy, that Christ himself may be born in our hearts anew, and in the hearts of Thy children everywhere. For Thy love's sake. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My husband insisted that I write and reply to that woman who signed herself "Lady From Ohio" -- the one who had cancer surgery three years ago and lives in constant fear.

I had cancer surgery, too -- mine was five years ago, and I had those same feelings. But a dear friend gave me a few lines that have been enormously helpful and I would like to pass them on to "Lady From Ohio."

"Fear knocked at my door."
"Faith opened that door."
"And no one was there."

---LADY FROM INDIANA

Dear Lady: Thank you, on behalf of the Lady From Ohio, and all the others who may find strength in those lines. It's amazing how a few words can get a person through some very dark days. I appreciate your taking the time to share yours.

Dear Ann Landers: A neighbor passed away recently. He was only 55 and an alcoholic. His sisters carried on at the funeral something awful. They wanted to give the impression that they loved their brother dearly and were deeply grieved.

Everyone in the family knew he suffered from emphysema. The doctors had warned him repatedly to stay away from liquor. Yet his sisters served him cocktails when he came to their homes and treated him as if he were normal.

Please tell people the time to help their relatives is when they are alive. It doesn't do any good to weep and wail over a casket. ---FED UP WITH PHONIES.

Dear Fed: Who appointed you judge and jury? How do you know to what extent the sisters attempted to help their brother? Nothing is so futile (or frustrating) as trying to force help on an alcoholic who refuses to accept it.

No one ever helped a problem drinker by locking up the liquor or pretending there wasn't any around -- or by refusing to serve him a cocktail when others in the room are drinking. Such antics make an alcoholic more determined than ever to have his own way.

So please don't be critical of the sisters. What you don't know about this family situation could probably fill a library.

Dear Ann Landers: Seven years ago our marriage would have been voted as the one most likely to succeed. Last week I filed for divorce. My mind is made up, so please don't think I am writing to ask how to save the situation. It isn't worth saving. I didn't say much when he ran around with every chippie in town but when he started to bring them home I decided I'd had enough.

Now my question: What should a wife say when her husband announces, "You can have the children but I want the dogs."

Thank you for your help. -- NO CLASS CLARA (his name for me)

Dear Clara: Why say anything? Give him the dogs and consider yourself fortunate that he didn't put up a fight for the children. Some husbands do--not because they want the children, but because they want to be puntitive. Don't be surprised if you end up with the dogs, too. The guy doesn't sound as if he has the maturity to accept any responsibility -- not even for the dogs.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with you request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Two Boy Scout Troops Camp

Boy scout troops 44 and 59 are attending Camp Lewallen near Silva this week.

Doyle Walls is leader of troop 59, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Members of that troop are Tevis Noles, Donnie Ford, Jim Young, Mike Hawks, Cliff Johnson, Lee Vaughn, Joey Anderson, Kenny Butler, Tommy Hawkins, Ricky Rister, Kenny Grimes, Bobby Dickson, Jim Christie, Darrel Wyatt, Hubert Lucy, Kenny Cunningham and Robert Porter.

The sensitivity felt by local government administrators to the forays of inspecting forays of inspecting officials from Washington, D.C., is aptly expressed by a plaque on the door of the Crow Agency Indian Hospital administrator. It consists of a single, badly mutilated 45-caliber slug affixed to a background of black velvet, enclosed in a gold frame.

Lettered beneath it is the warning: "Removed from our last Washington visitor." Shull

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE NEUROTIC DOG

Andy's police dog must have been a schizoid because at the crack of each dawn he acted more like a rooster than a dog. He'd rear up on his legs and begin howling and barking at the rising sun.

In desperation, Andy's bleary-eyed neighbors finally wobbled off to court where they demanded that Andy be ordered to stop his dog from barking every morning and waking them up.

"Being awaked at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning," they complained to a judge, "is making us a nervous wreck. All day we hear a ringing in the ear and have a pounding in the head."

"If the barking bothers them," answered Andy, "then they should use earplugs. After all, it's not illegal for a rooster to crow in the morning and, in our tough neighborhood, it's more important to have a watchdog than a rooster. It's necessary protection."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you side with Andy or his sleepy neighbors?

This is how the judge ruled: He held for the neighbors. In doing so, he said that while nothing seemed impossible in these fast moving times, no one has learned how to stop a rooster from crowing in the morning except by wringing its neck. Fortunately, he added, Andy does not have to try to wring his dog's neck to keep him from barking. All he has to do is keep his dog in the house where his dog will be that much closer and give him that much more comfort. And, the judge ordered him to do so.

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

When applying for insurance, fill out the application honestly or you may be paying premiums for years for nothing. As example, if you conceal a material fact while applying for life insurance, such as that you were a patient in a mental institution or that you had had a heart attack, the company can very likely void the policy upon discovering the truth. And, if it's discovered after you've died, your beneficiary will collect nothing except, maybe, the returned premiums.

The Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen United States of America.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by able rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness - that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security.

Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity, which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world. . .

(There follows the enumeration of the Colonies' grievances against the King, ranging from "He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good," to "He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us. . .")

We, therefore, the representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in general congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of the Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these united colonies are, and of right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do.

And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

25 Policewomen Assigned To Guard Jackie in Ireland

WATERFORD, Ireland (AP) — Twenty-five Irish policewomen will work in three shifts to protect Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children around the clock from curious Irishmen and newsmen during her vacation here.

Waterford's County Council has begun putting up 30 no-parking signs around the 241 acres of woods and lawns surrounding Woodston House, the 40-room Regency mansion where the Kennedys will stay. The house overlooks Waterford harbor.

Two new iron gates have been set up at the main entrance.

"The emphasis of the whole vacation is a vacation to be spent quietly," said Mrs. Kennedy's secretary, Nancy Tuckerman, at a news conference in Dublin Tuesday.

Mrs. Kennedy with 9-year-old Caroline and 6-year-old John is to arrive at Shannon Airport on Irish Airlines Thursday morning. They will travel the 85 miles from Shannon to Waterford by car.

From Woodston House on clear nights the Kennedys should be able to see New Ross, the County Wexford town from which President Kennedy's ancestors emigrated to America.

New Ross is 15 miles north, up the River Barrow, from the mansion.

Miss Tuckerman said "although a six-week vacation was originally planned, as of tonight it's four weeks."

During her stay Mrs. Kennedy is expected to accept an invitation to visit Irish President Eamon de Valera.

The two children of Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, will probably join the Kennedys at Woodston House, Miss Tuckerman said. They live in London and their mother is making her stage debut in Chicago this week.

The Kennedys will spend much of their time horseback riding and swimming, the secretary said.

Seventy-one reporters, photographers, radio and television personnel are already at Waterford's Tower Hotel.

A local resident, Mrs. John Harrigan, told a newsman: "She deserves all the peace and quiet in the world and we hope you journalists will let her have it. The Irish people are not going to bother her."

"We'd like to think Mrs. Kennedy will come to Ireland for many years," said Brian Brophy. "As an Irishman I'm terribly pleased she's going to holiday here. We have the greatest respect for her and her late husband."

HARBINGERS

Soon the season will be when
The poet grabs his ballpoint
pen
To scribble silly lines like these,
Of daffodills and honey bees.
The blooming daffodils will
Bloom and bloom to bloom
their fill.
Busy little honey bees
Will go on their buzzing
sprees
De-nectarizing columbines
To store up grub for harder times.
A young man's fancy turns
about
And late at night he will stay out
To hold a silly maiden's
paw
On verge of a mother - in-law.
Daffodils and ballpoint pen
Are my harbingers of spring.

MISSOURI COTTON PRODUCERS

It was a privilege to address the annual meeting of the Missouri Cotton Producers in Sikeston on June 9 when I presented some of my thoughts on the future of cotton and soybeans, two of our most important cash crops.

With respect to the Kennedy Round of trade negotiations with Europe, which has now been completed, not all of the details concerning these negotiations are available. We do know that the Grains Agreement will raise minimum prices of wheat moving in world trade.

In connection with Europe, several major United States farm commodities already had duty-free access to the European Economic Community and some other countries, by virtue of previous negotiations. Among these are vegetable oilseeds (including soybeans), oilcake and meal, hides and skins, and raw cotton.

The variable levies, however, which the Common Market countries have imposed on certain commodities in the past, still exist. These levies prevent our selling poultry to the Common Market. They also stimulate European production of wheat and feed grains. As a result we could be hurt.

Our Government says it is pleased with the results of these latest negotiations, but I want further details before registering any endorsement.

EMPLOYMENT DROPS IN MISSOURI

Seven areas in Missouri will be removed from the persistent unemployment list as of July 1, according to the annual review of area labor classifications made by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Missouri areas include Alton (Oregon County), Ellington (Reynolds County), Eminence (Shannon County), Hermitage (Hickory County), Perryville (Perry County), Poplar Bluff (Butler County), and Versailles (Morgan County).

The classifications are based on local surveys of the employment conditions in the areas made by the Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security in cooperation with affiliated State Employment Security Agencies. When an area's unemployed equals 6 percent or more of its work force, discounting seasonal or temporary factors, and it is ancitipated that the rate of unemployment during the next two months will remain at 6 percent or more, it is classified as an area of "substantial unemployment."

MISSOURI 4-H

Ths summer over 400 Missouri 4-H members will participate in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Courses held at the National 4-H Center in Washington and the University of Maryland.

Again this year, Missouri leads all states in the number of 4-H members who will participate in these short courses.

Groups of approximately 40 each attend classes for one week, and it is always a pleasure to meet with these fine young people during their stay in Washington.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON PRODUCT SAFETY

A seven-member commission to study and report to the Congress on any remedial action needed to protect the public from unsafe household products would be established under a measure recently passed by the Senate.

The National Commission on Product Safety would identify categories of household products which may be hazardous, then review the extent to which self-regulation by the industry provides protection.

A review and assessment of present Federal, State and local laws designed for consumer protection would also be undertaken by the Commission. Members of the Commission would be appointed by the President under the measure referred to the House for approval.

Presbyterians Moving Toward Church Merger

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S., meeting here for its 107th session, has reaffirmed its intention to "proceed as rapidly as possible" toward merger with the Reformed Church in America.

The proposed union would create a new church with a membership of more than one million persons provided the final draft for such a merger is approved by future sessions of the two denominations' governing bodies.

The vote was 405 to 16 Monday as the Genral Assembly approved a resolution affirming "once again our confidence in the providence of God and the serious and enthusiastic purpose to proceed as rapidly as possible looking toward union of our two churches."

The General Synod of the Reformed Church, also meeting here through Wednesday, approved a similar statement Saturday. Final drafts of plans for such a merger are due for presentatation to the two governing bodies next year.

The Assembly also reaffirmed last year's action in making the church a full participant in the Consultation On Church Union, an organization seeking to unite 10 denominations which have a combined membership of 25.5 million.

42 Attend Bible School

MOREHOUSE -- The Rauch-Spencer Memorial Methodist church conducted a one-week vacation Bible school last week with Mrs. W. S. Dillion, superintendent, and Mrs. Wendell Fox, assistant. Forty-two pupils were enrolled and 24 had perfect attendance.

The program of promotion was Friday night. Each department had an exhibit of handwork and crafts. The program was:

Kindergarten class leaders Mrs. Grace Schuchart and Mrs. John Ward, "The Bible Is For Me;" pupils Keith Ryan, Bill Kasting, Blanche Estep, Elisa Deane, Donna Schuchart, Greg Stanberry, Mark Lacy sang "Jesus Loves Me" and "Put Your Toys Away."

Primary class leaders Mrs. Willa Alsup and Mrs. Lois McWilliams and helpers Misses Kathy McIntyre and Brenda Estep, "Our Bible Helps Us;" pupils Deborah Ferrell, Mary Estep, Annette Ward, Trace Lannum, Cindy Menees, Laurie Deane, Dwight Hendon, Gordon Powell Jr., Veda Barnett, Tammy Gromer, Lisa Taylor, Tim Ward, Angie Sullivan, Tim Marlin, Danny Freeman sang "With Folded Hands" and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."

Junior class leaders Mrs. Nelson Gruen and Mrs. Carl Stroud, "Light from My Bible for Today;" pupils Mark Deane, John Word, Regina Curry, Pam Marlin, Roni Ryan, Holly Hendon, Bonnie Schuchart, Dana Freeman, Brenda Orr, Lester Powell, Thurman Estep, Sheila Rettig, Monta Breeden, Kathy Farrell.

Junior high class leaders Mrs. Shirley Hammon and Mrs. Ginny Deane; pupils Bill Deane, sharon Carmack, Rhea Estep, Mike Rogers, Cathy Freeman.

Thank you speech by Mrs. W. S. Dillon to Mrs. James L. Estep for music, Mrs. Gladys Crumpecker and her kitchen helpers for refreshments and to all leaders and helpers; hymn and closing prayer.

The New Madrid County Library will have the Tom Sawyer reading program at the service center June 15-July 5. Miss Linda Leonberger of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau will direct the program.

She will also conduct a story hour at the service center Fridays at 2 p.m. Films will be chosen by David Wolfe of the library staff. All grade school children are invited to register at the center.

Every morning at five, cartons of fresh doughnuts are delivered to the back door of our College Snack Shop. For several days the girl who arrived at 7:30 found the top box opened and missing six to ten doughnuts. Suspecting the students, the night watchman gave special vigilance to the area, but the thefts continued.

On the fifth day the guard stationed himself at a high window nearby. The theft, confident that the coast was clear, appeared with three companions who acted as lookouts. After carefully checking around, he proceeded to cut the cord, open the carton, reach in and distribute the doughnuts to his companions. Then he retreated to a high tree limb to enjoy the feast with his fellow squirrels.

Street Widening Begins

The city of Sikeston began a street widening project yesterday. Franklin Street is being widened from North Street to Crescent Street.

Franklin is now 20 feet wide, but after the curb and sidewalk have been removed, it will be widened to 32 feet.

The city began cutting down trees yesterday to allow this work to be done.

This effort is expected to improve the traffic flow off of Allen Boulevard, W. Raymert Miller, city manager, said.

City crews are doing the work.

Kosygin May Visit U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Amid speculation that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin might attend, the Soviet Union pushed a drive today for an emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly to take action against Israel.

The drive was slowed, however, by a prolonged debate in the 15-nation Security Council on a Soviet resolution calling on Israel to pull back its troops from Arab territory occupied during the six-day Middle East war.

The Soviet resolution was expected to be rejected by a decisive vote, clearing the way for action to convene the emergency General Assembly session.

Britain's Lord Caradon, addressing the council, suggested that the question of disengagement and troop withdrawals would require discussions on the spot. He noted India already had proposed that Secretary-General U Thant send a special representative to help with the problem.

"I believe that we should go further," he said. "And consider the appointment of a mediator so that an immediate start can be made in settling the foundations for a lasting peace."

Defense Budget Clears House

WASHINGTON (AP) — History's biggest appropriation bill, a $70.3-billion Defense Department measure, went to the Senate today described as a House expression of all-out support for the U.S. military effort in Vietnam.

It cleared the House late Tuesday 407 to 1 after predictions the $20.3 billion it earmarked for the Vietnam war wouldn't be enough and amid demands for stepped-up Vietnam military operations.

The money, added to $43.7 billion available from previous bills, would finance Defense Department activities for the fiscal year starting July 1.

It was the largest money bill ever brought before Congress.

At the height of World War II, defense appropriations to $86.4 billion, but were provided in several bills.

House Rejects Remap Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House today rejected a proposed House substitute bill re-aligning the state's 10 congressional districts and and started debate on the bill as passed by the Senate.

Opposition to the House plan came primarily from the Republican minority, from southeastern Missouri Democrats and from St. Louis Negro voters.

The Republican minority lined up in favor of the Senate bill because it would make it possible for the group to extend its control over two more districts, making the Missouri delegation a possible six Democrat-four Republican split.

Now the Republicans have two sure districts in the 2nd of St. Louis County and the 7th of southwestern Missouri. These districts would be relatively unchanged in the Senate version and the GOP would have improved chances in the 8th and 6th districts.

The 18th, now represented by Democratic Congressman Richard H. Ichord of Houston, lies generally in central and east central Missouri.

The 6th of northwestern Missouri now is represented by Democratic Congressman William R. Hull Jr. of Weston.

Most of the complaint against the House version was that it would put the St. Louis Negroes in the 2nd District instead of 1st. Negroes in the 2nd feel they should have a chance of electing a Negro congressman if left in the 1st as the Senate bill does.

The House version also would have put Ichord in the 10th District of southeastern Missouri where Rep. Paul Jones, D-Kennett has said he is retiring after this term.

Spokesman from southeastern Missouri said they didn't want Ichord in the 10th because he would not be conversant with the problems of the Bootheel area.

His supporters wanted him back in the 8th if they could juggle its makeup to make his re-election surer.

The House quit for lunch as an effort was being made to rebuild the 8th District more to Ichord's benefit.

Opponents of any change cautioned that even a simple House amendment to the Senate bill would put the whole issue of redistricting in the hands of a conference committee and might mean failure to redistrict this session.

That would either force a special election later this year or require Missouri congressional candidates to run at large next year.

Rusk Reports Russia Warming To Nuclear Pact

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Russia today was reported ready to join the United States in moves for speedier international action to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk advised fellow foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the Russians have agreed in recent days to the presentation of a jointly-drafted but incomplete treaty of nonproliferation to the Geneva Disarmament Conference.

The American-Soviet draft that is being prepared to go before the 17-nation Geneva conference would contain a blank Article 3, dealing with the sort of controls and safeguards needed to insure that signatory countries do not cheat.

The focus in today's debate was on the Middle East and France's foreign minister, Maurice Couve de Murville, declared French opposition to imposition of any United Nations settlement in the area.

Later the ministers went into secret session on Vietnam. After the conclusion of the meeting, Rusk took a plane for Washington.

Rusk told the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's ministerial council Tuesday that the United States had seen no signs of movement toward peace in Vietnam and that the key to a settlement still remained with Hanoi.

He reiterated the U.S. intention "to carry out its commitment" in Vietnam.

Rusk's brief comments on Vietnam and his statement that "some progress" had been made toward agreement on a nonproliferation treaty led to today's secret session for a more detailed discussion.

Nine were treated Tuesday in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Robert Black, received cuts on his knee while installing a screen door; Anna Cochran, was burned when a pressure cooker exploded; Maye Tinker, Kirkwood, was burned when a pressure cooker exploded.

Terry Lee Hedges, Charleston, fell out of a tree and injured an arm; Margaret Thurman, Charleston, fell in the yard at her home; Charles Simmons, fell out of a tree and fractured an arm; Raymond Haralson, Essex, 22 months, swallowed fly spray.

Michael LeGrand, fell and cut his head; Michael Hawkins, East Prairie, was hit over the eye with a shovel.

Mariner 5 Races Soviet Space Probe

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Mariner 5 spacecraft raced a heavier Soviet probe toward Venus today to penetrate with electronic fingers the planet's mysterious veil of clouds and help scientists see if Venus is a fit place to live.

The 540-pound Mariner 5, less than one-quarter the weight of the Soviet Union's Venus 4 craft launched two days earlier, rocketed from Cape Kennedy at 1:01 a.m. today on the first U.S. venture to Venus since 1962 and this nation's first planetary probe in more than 2½ years.

Mariner's fiery Atlas-Agena booster rocket threaded to an imaginary needle in space to send the windmill-shaped spacecraft toward its distant target 212 million miles away.

"We are going precisely where we expected to go," project officials reported after tracking the spacecraft for several hours. Mariner 5's flight path is well within the capability of an onboard motor to adjust its path later in the flight, they said.

"Spacecraft performance also appears to be very good," said Allen E. Wolfe, Mariner 5 system manager for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., which oversees the Mariner 5 project.

Wolfe said experiments to study radiation in interplanetary space were turned on and the craft's four power-producing solar panels deployed. Guidance sensors aboard the $35-million Mariner 5 locked onto the sun for orientation as planned.

During a brief 26-minute encounter Oct. 19 when Mariner 5 is to pass within 2,000 miles of Venus, electronic fingers of high-frequency radio signals were to penetrate through dense Venusian clouds to study radiation levels and atmospheric temperatures, pressure and density.

These findings would be important to scientists trying to deduce whether Venus can support life.

No camera was aboard because of a weight limitation.

Mariner scientists said they did not know whether the U.S. craft or the Soviet 2,438-pound Venus 4 would arrive at the planet first.

$475,176 Grant for Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Southeast Missouri Development Corporation has received a $475,176 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity at Washington for an eight-week summer Head Start program in the Bootheel.

The grant will be used to finance the program for 16,665 pre-school children in Stoddard, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin and Scott counties.

A preservice training program for employes will be held next week at Portageville high school. Instruction will begin June 26.

Dexter Couple Hurt in Mishap

DEXTER — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Geary, Dexter, were injured in a ramming car accident today at 12:15 a.m. on highway 62, one and one-half miles east of Dudley.

They were driving east in a 1962 Chevrolet when their car was struck in the rear by a 1966 Chevrolet, driven by James McClard, 33, Dexter.

Mr. and Mrs. Geary were taken to the Poplar Bluff hospital with back injuries.

McClard was given a summons for careless and imprudent driving.

Man Returned to Madrid County To Face Charge

NEW MADRID - Lloyd Burton, formerly a resident of New Madrid County, was apprehended by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Flint, Mich., in connection with a stolen farm machinery charge in New Madrid county last January.

Burton was held in the Genesee County, Mich., jail. W. L. Ramsey, New Madrid county sheriff, brought Burton back to New Madrid county June 2 and he was held in the county jail until his preliminary hearing, which he waived last week.

He was bound over to circuit court.

Burton is charged with eight counts of grand larceny. Bond of $4,000 was posted for him yesterday and he was released.

Burton had been named by Alfred Patton of Marston as one of two men who sold him stolen farm machinery. Patton, charged with stealing and possession of stolen property, is also out on bond.

Light Turnout

Gas Franchise Wins 165-7 Voter Approval

In one of the lightest votes cast in a city election only 172 citizens of 7,000 registered, balloted in the Associated Natural Gas franchise election Tuesday - a two and one-half per cent turnout. The vote was 165 for 10-year renewal of the franchise to seven against.

Five precincts gave unanimous approval. Seven negative votes were divided among three precincts.

There were no absentee votes cast. An official canvass of the vote will be made Friday afternooon at a city council meeting.

Voting by precincts:

Ward one, precinct one, police station, 24 for, one against.

Ward one, precinct two, Ethridge Tire Co., 15 for, none against.

Ward two, precinct one, Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet, 17, for, four against.

Ward two, precinct two, Lincoln school, 32 for, none against.

Ward three, precinct one, Sikeston Motor Co., 21 for, none against.

Ward three, precinct two, Lewis Furniture Co., 16 for, two against.

Ward four, precinct one, National Guard Armory, 24 for, none against.

Ward four, precinct two, Imperial Lanes, 16 for, none against.

A 20-year Associated Natural Gas franchise by which the company serves the city expires Sept. 30. The new franchise proposal approved yesterday extends it 10 years but contains two five-year renewal options.

Mosquitoes Have Landed and City Has Situation Well under Control

The mosquito situation is improving.

Nightly fogging to rid the city of the pests will continue until the war is won probably throughout the summer, City Manager W. Raymert Miller reported.

The street department is in charge of the fogging of insect spray to kill the pests.

Ordinarily, the department takes two nights to cover the town. They begin in the west half of the city so that the fog spreads with the prevailing southwest wind.

Tonight and Thursday and Friday nights the department plans to cover the city by beginning at 7 p.m. and working for nine to ten hours until the job is complete.

The mosquito problem has been more severe than normally.

Miller said that Charleston had the same problem and was using the same fogging machine to get rid of mosquitoes.

Miller said that the mosquitoes seemed to be an area rather than a city problem.

Light Turnout

Gas Franchise Wins 165-7 Voter Approval

In one of the lightest votes cast in a city election only 172 citizens of 7,000 registered, balloted in the Associated Natural Gas franchise election Tuesday - a two and one-half per cent turnout. The vote was 165 for 10-year renewal of the franchise to seven against.

Five precincts gave unanimous approval. Seven negative votes were divided among three precincts.

There were no absentee votes cast. An official canvass of the vote will be made Friday afternooon at a city council meeting.

Voting by precincts:

Ward one, precinct one, police station, 24 for, one against.

Ward one, precinct two, Ethridge Tire Co., 15 for, none against.

Ward two, precinct one, Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet, 17, for, four against.

Ward two, precinct two, Lincoln school, 32 for, none against.

Ward three, precinct one, Sikeston Motor Co., 21 for, none against.

Ward three, precinct two, Lewis Furniture Co., 16 for, two against.

Ward four, precinct one, National Guard Armory, 24 for, none against.

Ward four, precinct two, Imperial Lanes, 16 for, none against.

A 20-year Associated Natural Gas franchise by which the company serves the city expires Sept. 30. The new franchise proposal approved yesterday extends it 10 years but contains two five-year renewal options.

Mosquitoes Have Landed and City Has Situation Well under Control

The mosquito situation is improving.

Nightly fogging to rid the city of the pests will continue until the war is won probably throughout the summer, City Manager W. Raymert Miller reported.

The street department is in charge of the fogging of insect spray to kill the pests.

Ordinarily, the department takes two nights to cover the town. They begin in the west half of the city so that the fog spreads with the prevailing southwest wind.

Tonight and Thursday and Friday nights the department plans to cover the city by beginning at 7 p.m. and working for nine to ten hours until the job is complete.

The mosquito problem has been more severe than normally.

Miller said that Charleston had the same problem and was using the same fogging machine to get rid of mosquitoes.

Miller said that the mosquitoes seemed to be an area rather than a city problem.

300 View Charity Horse Show

By Don Roberts

PORTAGEVILLE -- Around 300 persons viewed the tenth annual Kiwanis Charity Horse Show last night at the Vic Reaves athletic field.

Winners were, class, Horse name, rider, residence and owner:

90 Attend Opening of Coffee House

Ninety attended the opening of the new coffee house, the Mustard Seed, last night.

The first hour was filled with informal piped in records, followed the second hours by Kim Nash, a singer from St. Louis. Miss Nash played the guitar, sang folk songs, and recited contemporary poetry.

Miss Nash has filmed a television show in Hollywood, entitled the "Rock Revolution."

Tomorrow evening the coffee house will show a film, Coffee House Rendezvous. The coffee house is open from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A happening which is the highlight for the evening will take place about 8:30 p.m.

The basement of the parish house of the First Methodist church serves as a meeting place for the coffee house.

Jones Fined for Disturbing Peace

Kenny Bill Jones, 228 Alabama St., Sunday was charged with disturbing the peace on Magnolia Drive. He was fined $15 and released Monday.

Terry K. Hixson, 228 North Handy St., was charged with operating a motorcycle with no protective head gear on East Malone Tuesday. He will appear in city court tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Vegetable Freaks Beginning to Sprout

Carolyn Paullus, 502 Lanning, discovered a tomato - potato plant in the garden of Delmar Denton of Scranton, Ark., a relative.

This unusual plant was planted as a pototo vine but Sunday Miss Paullus and Denton discovered it was bearing tomatoes. They dug it up.

Six tomatoes were growing above the ground, and three potatoes were sprouting from the vine below the ground.

One tomato was sliced for verification.

A second vegetable oddity is a large icicle radish, grown by Tommy Kidd, 107 Fourth street.

The radish was nine and one-half inches long. It weighed 14 ounces.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A WONDERFUL NATION, A WONDERFUL FLAG

June 14, 1777 was just another day in a dreary series for the new United States. The war did not go well: the British were about to invade the colonies from Canada by way of Lake Champlain. There had been few victories for the Continental Army. Trenton and Princeton had done little to stem the tide.

In Philadelphia, the routine was reflected in the actions of Congress. There were debts to be paid, and there were other small matters that needed attention.

The Congress appropriated money for several militia companies, then authorized the Marine Committee to do something with colonial ships on the Delaware in the event the British appeared "on said river."

Amid other marine matters, the representatives passed a one sentence resolution, without explanation or introduction. It said:

"RESOLVED: that the flag of the United States be made of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

Congress then suspended Captain John Roach, commander of the Ranger, because he was "of doubtful character," and gave the captaincy of the Ranger to a John Paul Jones. With this and other matters decided, Congress adjourned until the following Monday. Some historians believe that the flag resolution - being sandwiched between matters of the Marine Committee - was proposed by this committee.

In passing the resolution, Congress intended that the Grand Union flag not be used by its army. The Grand Union displayed the crosses of St. Andrews and St. George and thirteen white and red stripes (the six white stripes had been imposed on the red field of the British Red Meteor flag). The resolution thus removed the stigma of the crosses which had long been symbolic of ties with Great Britain.

The flag resolution may have removed a stigma, but it created doubts about flag design. There were no instructions as to the specific arrangement of the stars, or about the size of the stars and stripes. As a result, seamstresses improvised at the sacrifice of uniformity.

Many variations of the flag appeared on land and sea during the Revolution. None, however, was supplied by the government. Congress did not officially supply the army with the true standard until 1783, after the Revolution was over.

Historian B. J. Cigrand says the Stars and Stripes was flown for the first time over American troops under fire on Aug. 3, 1777. Col. Peter Gansevoort, with a garrison of 600 men, was in command of Fort Schuyler, formerly Fort Stanwix, when it was besieged by the British. On Aug. 2, reinforcements of 200 men of the 9th Massachusetts Regiment under Lieutenant Colonel Mellon reached Fort Schuyler with ammunition and supplies. They brought word of the new flag.

The following day the Stars and Stripes was raised over the walls of the fort; the white stripes had been fashioned from a soldier's ammunition shirt, the red was from the petticoat of a soldier's wife, and the blue was from a cloak which Capt. Abraham Swartout had taken from the British at Peekskill. The story is authenticated by a letter written by Captain Swartout to Colonel Gansevoort in which he requested authorization to draw on the army quartermaster stores to replace the material taken for the flag.

There is a theory, not supported by documentary evidence, that John Paul Jones was the first man to raise the Stars and Stripes. Shortly after the flag resolution was passed, Jones proceeded to Portsmouth, N. H., where, at his request, a group of girls gathered together in a "flag bee" and fashioned an ensign for him. He is said to have raised it aboard the Ranger on July 4, 1777.

The first sea action of the Stars and Stripes took place on Sept. 4, 1777. Capt. Thomas Thompson, in command of both the Raleigh and the Alfred, took the British vessel, Nancy, after she had dropped behind the Windward Island fleet, of which she was a part. After overtaking the remainder of the fleet, the Raleigh was able to run in close to the commodore's ship, utilizing the Nancy's coded signal book. At close range she ran up the Continental Colors, ran out her guns, hulled the British ship with the first broadside, and shattered her rigging with the second before being driven off by superior forces.

On Feb. 13, 1778, Paul Jones, in command of the Ranger and the Independence, stood off Quiberon Bay, near Lorient, France. Jones was determined to receive an official salute for the American flag from the French admiral, LaMotte Picquet, who was in command of the fleet inside the bay. The admiral sent word that, since Jones was the senior American Continental officer in European waters, Picquet would return the same salute he was authorized to give the admiral of any republic; four guns less than the salute first rendered. Jones wanted gun for gun and waited until Feb. 14 in order to verify Picquet's answer. Finally satisfied, he sailed in, fired a 13-gun salute, and received nine. This was the first foreign salute given the Stars and Stripes.

The story of Betsy Ross and her connection with the first American flag has become a tradition. According to the classic story, Betsy Ross, a young Philadelphia widow who supported herself and children by her excellent needlework, received a visit from Washington, Robert Morris, and George Ross, her deceased husband's uncle. They described a flag and asked if she could make one for them. She agreed to accept the job but recommended that five-pointed rather than six-pointed stars be used. This first flag is said to have been made almost a full year before the congressional resolution of June 14, 1777.

There are no written reports or records to verify the theory, and it is supported entirely by stories handed down by word of mouth from the direct descendants of Mrs. Ross. If the story cannot be proved to the satisfaction of the historians, neither can it be conclusively disapproved, historian Cigrand believes.

Many historians agree that one Francis Hopkinson was more responsible for the flag design than any other person. He was a delegate to the Continental Congress from New Jersey, a member of the Marine Committee, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In 1779, he sent a bill to the Board of the Admiralty for "A Great Seal for the United States of America, with a Reverse, A Seal for the Board of the Admiralty, and The flag of the United States of America."

His request was turned down, and the report states that he "was not the only person consulted" in formulating the designs, and that he therefore did not deserve full payment.

In 1794, the flag was officially altered to consist of 15 stripes alternate red and white and 15 stars arranged in five rows of three each. It remained unchanged until 1818, when it reverted to the original 13 stripes but provided for each state in the Union to be represented by a star on the union of the flag.

TAX ON SOCIAL SECURITY

The President recently announced plans to tax the Social Security benefits paid to persons over 65. The Social Security system was designed as a non-voluntary program. Taxes were paid on the money withheld to support the system; now the administration wants to tax the senior citizen twice; once when he pays the premium and second when he receives the benefits from the program.

Congress should seriously question this attempt to change the orginal intent of the Social Security system and place additional burdens on our already overburdened senior citizens.

NEW YORK (AP) — Life is an adventure in irony, and this is particularly true in the case of Werner Klemperer, the actor.

Werner, son of Otto Klemperer, the famed symphony conductor, and his family fled their native Germany in 1933 because of the rise of Hitlerism.

Now Werner, who later served three years as a corporal in the American Army, makes a tidy dollar playing a bumbling Nazi officer, Col. Wilhelm Klink, on the CBS television comedy program, "Hogan's Heroes."

Although he has had a lifelong hatred of war and violence, nobody since the late Eric von Stroheim has come along who can play a foreign military villain with quite the heel-clicking authenticity of Klemperer.

Werner finds it hard to define just why he can do this so well. "Acting is largely a matter of accurate observation," he said.

"I suppose I must have seen many German officers when I was a boy in Berlin, but" — he added wryly — "I don't remember ever shaking hands with one.

"I don't find it a particular psychological hurdle, to play Nazi officers, so long as I can be very sure that I can give them the kind of dimension I feel they deserve.

"But I don't want ever to play a good Nazi, and I don't want to act in Germany. No, not now."

Something of a specialist in unsympathetic roles, Werner has also played Bulgarian villains, Dutch villains and Russian villains, but his big desire is to play an Oriental villain.

"With my bald head and a little makeup I think I'd be very interesting," he said.

After fleeing Germany, the Klemperers spent two years in Switzerland, then came to California where the father became conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony.

Werner, then 13, learned enough English in three months to enter high school. He appeared headed for a career as a pianist, but gave it up.

"I didn't have the desire," he said. "Desire and talent usually go hand in hand. If the desire isn't there, chances are that the talent isn't there either."

Werner chose the theater after wartime work with an Army Special Service unit led by actor Maurice Evans.

Urbane and sophisticated, Werner at 45 feels he has carved himself a comfortable niche and says he has no desire to be either rich or famous.

THIS IS WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF

It used to be that a man could lie down at night and sleep the way he wanted, dream or not as he chose, in the sanctity of his castle. The world could knock him about as it would during the day, but night time was his . . . a retreat from automation, mechanization and frustration.

But now, do you know what's happened? They're doing a time study on our dreams. They've actually got batteries of researchers, complete with time clocks, watching every twist of our eyelids. It seems that we give ourselves away when we're dreaming by the speed of our eyelid movement.

They now know that we have four to five dreams a night. Yes you do, even though you don't recall them. Our dreams are spaced at regular intervals of 60 to 90 minutes and the sleep between these dreams is the most restful to us. Our first dream of the night tends to be short, usually about 5 to 10 minutes. Subsequent dreams tend to be longer with the last dream of the night often lasting 30 to 40 minutes. Women dream mainly about dates, clothes and the home. Men about sports and the job.

During one series of experiments, volunteers were deprived of dreams by waking them through the night when dream periods were just started. This was fine the first night. However on succeeding nights dream periods started more frequently and volunteers had to be wakened more often. These findings suggest that dreaming is somehow a vital and necessary biological phenomenon.

No, you can't escape the researchers. But, while you're trying, pleasant dreams.

TRAVEL-TIME TIPS: You know the tricks, of course, about hanging unpacked clothes in a steamed-up bathroom to remove wrinkles? After they've hung awhile, remove them from the damp, humid bathroom and allow to dry out in another room . . . Another good idea, anytime, is to hang a dampened terry towel over a hanger in a closed closet. Any minor wrinkles will come out of the clothes.

Don't worry if your job is small, and your rewards are few . . . Just remember that the mighty oak was once a nut like you.

A CODE OF ETHICS UP TO CONGRESS

The distressing thing about the expulsion of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell and the committee-recommended censure of Sen. Thomas Dodd is not so much that two members of the most exalted legislative body in the country have been found guilty of wrongdoing by their peers.

In any group of 535 men and women, subject to the pressures and responsibilities that congressmen are, it is inevitable that a few will succumb to the temptation to use their public offices for their private benefit. And when they do, part of the blame for it must rest on Congress as a whole for having failed to set up clear and enforceable standards of ethical conduct for it members.

The sad thing, however, is that neither man admits any fault in himself.

Powell, adopting the pose of a martyr, maintains that he did nothing that most other congressmen are not guilty of. Dodd, with perhaps some justification, claims he was "judged by hindsight" with standards of conduct that have yet to be defined.

Be that as it may and whatever their guilt or innocence -- and both men alone know in their hearts the full extent of either-- their usefulness as legislators has now ceased. This is a pity, for both have performed valuable service in the past for their constituents and their country.

The shadow of suspicion has fallen over every congressman because of the Powell and Dodd cases. Congress owes it to itself, as well as the nation, to set up rules and machinery which will restore the confidence of the people in their lawmakers, if not prevent replays of such scandals altogether.

H.L. Hunt Says

COUNSELORS FOR FREEDOM

The Youth Freedom Speakers movement, which is spreading throughout the country, will benefit greatly from the establishment in each area where a YFS chapter exists of a board of counselors to guide these young people who are determined to speak up for freedom.

Each chapter needs the encouragement and guidance of a group of responsible men and women who have an interest in young people and who want to help foster what can become a great positive force for liberty. A board of counselors in a typical city might consist of fifteen persons. They will serve as the organizational backbone of the YFS chapter.

The counselors screen and accept young volunteers who wish to become speakers and assist them in preparing themselves to speak effectively and forcefully. They maintain close contact with churches, schools and other youth organizations in their area as sources of volunteers.

Counselors also maintain continuous contact with patriotic groups, churches, service clubs, and other organizations holding meetings. They should keep in touch with the press and other media of communications to assure proper and adequate publicity whenever young speakers are to appear on a program. Arrangements can be made for the appearance of speakers on radio and television.

The YFS board of counselors, made up of business and professional men and women of high standing in their community, can hold regular meetings of their own to keep YFS chapters moving. The board can do a great deal toward making pro-freedom sentiments fashionable, for its members' concern with YFS will be noted in the community. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

NASSER'S LAST GAMBLE

On May 27, Drew Pearson reported in detail how President Nasser was in serious trouble at home, and how he was taking one last desperate gamble to come out on top by challenging Israel.

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Russell Long, D-La., got so impassioned in his defense of Sen. Tom Dodd the other day that he delivered a scorching attack on the senate ethics committee because it had recommended Dodd's censure. Long said the committee had censured Dodd because it feared criticism from this column if it failed to do so.

Later Sen. Long delivered a lame apology to the ethics committee; but there was no apology for charging us with blackmail. On a point of personal privilege, therefore, we should like to report on the six members of the senate ethics committee and what we have said about them in the past.

All are conscienticous, hard-working senators entrusted with a job extremely distasteful to them, that of passing judgment on a fellow senator. While they overlooked many of Dodd's weaknesses and leaned over backwards to be fair to him, nevertheless they were airtight in the findings which they made.

Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the Democratic chairman, we have reported to be "a courtly philosopher, with such a reputation for fairness that he's been in the presiding officer's chair more than Alben Barkley. No noisy demagogue like his predecessor Bo Bilbo, he says that the wage-hour law was a boon to the south by raising its economic level. . . at a prayer breakfast where Democrats and Republicans forgot religious differences as well as political ones, Stennis sounded the keynote by calling for a return to spirituality."

This column has sometimes reported critically regarding Sen. Stennis's position on civil rights, but never regarding his honesty and fairness.

A MORMON TEACHER

Sen. Wallace Bennett, Republican co-chairman of the ethics committee, is married to the daughter of the late Heber Grant, President of the Mormon church. Bennett for many years taught in the Mormon sunday school of the Chevy Chase Chapel and today, though he no longer teaches, is a regular attendant.

We have reported that Bennett is the former President of the National Manufacturers Association and follows the conservative policies of that organization. He has been opposed to most of the economic policies of the Truman, Kennedy and Johnson administrations, but he has been consistent and honest in that opposition.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., is a former governor of Kentucky, former ambassador to India where he did an outstanding job, and has held many special diplomatic posts.

We have reported that Sen. Cooper follows a broad bipartisan policy on foreign affairs and frequently has been called in by Democratic Presidents for consultation. He was especially useful in advising Kennedy how to handle the Berlin problem at the very start of his administration, though Kennedy spurned the advice.

Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., has served in congress longer than any other member of the ethics committee. As a young member of the house of representatives, he received the Collier's distinguished service award for his work in attempting to streamline legislative procedures. He was co-arthur of the congressional reorganization bill with the late Sen. Robert La Follette and more recently sponsored a bill for senate reorganization

As a young congressman, Monroney had the courage to vote against an oil price increase though he comes from a big oil-producing state, and against the farm bloc on subsidies though Oklahoma is also an important agricultural state.

We reported how President Truman offered Monroney the job of secretary of agriculture, which Monroney declined on the ground that he didn't know enough about agriculture. He never capitalized on Truman's job offer.

CRITIC OF SENATE CONDUCT

Monroney understands the consequence of unethical conduct better than most senators because he defeated Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma after Thomas was revealed by this column as having used his strategic position on the senate agriculture committee to influence the commodity market at the same time he was investing on the commodity market.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., is another legislator who came up from the ranks in the house of representatives. We have described him as "having a spotless family life...studied for the priesthood, has the confidence of labor and farmers, is the idol of liberals in both the house and the senate."

Generally he has tried to plug tax loopholes from his vantage point inside the senate finance committee and has fought a courageous war against central intelligence secrecy. In this he has been completely substantiated by the facts, though rebuffed by old guard senators when he asked for an investigation of the CIA.

McCarthy is an old personal friend of Sen. Dodd, and at one time proposed secret rather than personal friendship and voted to recommend Dodd's censure.

Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., is a newcomer to the senate and the youngest member of the ethics committee. However, he has also been one of the most forthright in cross - examining witnesses and one of the toughest in urging that the senate maintain a high standard of ethics.

Originally a Virginian, Pearson served in Kansas during the war, liked it and returned to live there and engage in Republican politics. He has just been reelected for a full six-year term.

These are the men who spent more than a year conscientiously hearing testimony and carefully scrutinizing the record of their colleague from Connecticut. They are not susceptible to political blackmail and we resent Sen. Long's implication that we might resort to such tactics.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

U.S. Waterfront Labor Leaders' Secret Apparatus Poised to Starve Out Arab Alliance.

NEW YORK: Even before there was blood on the sands of the Sinai, an intelligence alert was flashed along all U.S. and Canadian coasts by American waterfront labor leaders. The word went out to locate every ton of cargo, in every ship, in every port, loaded or waiting to be loaded, bound for any and all Arab League nations.

Messages arrived swiftly. In a few days, the Seafarers' Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO's 600,000 member Maritime Trades Dept., knew of $1 billion worth of such freight on order by the Arabs.

He and his colleagues learned that there were 43 ships in U.S. and Canadian ports, some with the good and grain already in their holds and some still awaiting dockside tonnage.

The American waterfront labor leaders then were ready to implement their long-planned ultra-secret "Operation - Target Cargo" aimed at starving Arab lands and crippling their low level economies.

"Operation - Target Cargo" is skillfully designed to go for the jugular of Israel's enemies - the same nations which have been harassing American seamen for years. It hits at the cargoes moving to - and from - Arab ports in the ships of any nation including our own. Picketing the four or five United Arab Republic vessels which put into American harbors is dramatic and symbolic. But the Arabs don't haul 10 per cent of their imports or exports in their own craft. Over 90 per cent of their ocean-borne economic lifeblood is in foreign freighters - American, British, Liberian, Greek, etc.

It took intricate intelligence operations by the Maritime Trades Dept. to locate all the Arab-bound tonnage. This remains the unions' secret. But the details were ferreted out - and the first of the targets were and are the food shipments scheduled to leave for Arab lands in June and July. These may still be hit.

The freighters marked for immediate target action (such as the Liberian ship The Pheax, which early last week was in a Canadian harbor loading 21,000 tons of wheat for Algeria) carry corn, barley, wheat, vegetable oil and dried milk. Some were scheduled for Egypt, some for Tunisia, some for Morocco.

These food shipments are government-generated U.S. "give-away" cargoes dispatched under Public Law 480. Tunisia, which sent soldiers to bolster Gen. Nasser, was set to receive, for example, 36,000 tons of barley in four freighters. Some have been loaded. Some not. Egypt was to get flour, dried milk and cornmeal in four ships. Morocco has been awaiting heavy tonnage of wheat and corn in 11 ships.

A Greek vessel, the World Glade, is scheduled to take on 25,000 tons of wheat in U.S. gulf ports later this month for delivery to Morocco. At the same time, Hall's men targeted the Alexander Voyazides, set to take 13,500 tons of barley in a California port for Tunisia.

Food shipments are set for Algeria (wheat); Jordan (flour and vegetable oil); Iraq (flour and vegetable oil); Lebanon (flour).

The AFL-CIO waterfront strategists have not decided what action to take. The situation is too fluid.

But the apparatus will be kept intact to hit India if New Delhi continues to bait the U.S. while Washington keeps feeding the subcontinental nation.

Far more than food is involved in "Operation - Target Cargo." The waterfront men now have a complete schedule of spare parts, cloth, light machinery, etc., destined for the Arab lands. Without these, say the project directors, the Arab lands would crack because it would take months to readjust themselves to the U.S. maritime boycott by finding new sources of supply in a wartime world.

There's nothing coy in the friendship of American labor leaders for Israel. For many years now, they have been close to Israel's labor movement, Histadrut - which now has almost a million members. During the first hours' fighting, Louis Stulberg, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU) president, learned that the hospital the ILGWU has built in Beersheba, Israel, had gone on a war footing - but that five babies were born during the cannonading - all boys, two of them Bedouins.

The Teamsters moved swiftly too. When they learned that the Israeli bus system had become inoperative because both men and women were mobilized and because all trucking was militarized, Joe Konowe, assistant to the Teamsters national president, headed for Israel. He's still trying to get there for a survey which will be followed by a stream of volunteer American truckdrivers and longshoremen.

This is only part of the story. But it is evidence enough to show the shadowy outline of a vast machine which can hit high gear while others in more polished and diplomatic halls specialize in verbal high indignation.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A WONDERFUL NATION, A WONDERFUL FLAG

June 14, 1777 was just another day in a dreary series for the new United States. The war did not go well: the British were about to invade the colonies from Canada by way of Lake Champlain. There had been few victories for the Continental Army. Trenton and Princeton had done little to stem the tide.

In Philadelphia, the routine was reflected in the actions of Congress. There were debts to be paid, and there were other small matters that needed attention.

The Congress appropriated money for several militia companies, then authorized the Marine Committee to do something with colonial ships on the Delaware in the event the British appeared "on said river."

Amid other marine matters, the representatives passed a one sentence resolution, without explanation or introduction. It said:

"RESOLVED: that the flag of the United States be made of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

Congress then suspended Captain John Roach, commander of the Ranger, because he was "of doubtful character," and gave the captaincy of the Ranger to a John Paul Jones. With this and other matters decided, Congress adjourned until the following Monday. Some historians believe that the flag resolution - being sandwiched between matters of the Marine Committee - was proposed by this committee.

In passing the resolution, Congress intended that the Grand Union flag not be used by its army. The Grand Union displayed the crosses of St. Andrews and St. George and thirteen white and red stripes (the six white stripes had been imposed on the red field of the British Red Meteor flag). The resolution thus removed the stigma of the crosses which had long been symbolic of ties with Great Britain.

The flag resolution may have removed a stigma, but it created doubts about flag design. There were no instructions as to the specific arrangement of the stars, or about the size of the stars and stripes. As a result, seamstresses improvised at the sacrifice of uniformity.

Many variations of the flag appeared on land and sea during the Revolution. None, however, was supplied by the government. Congress did not officially supply the army with the true standard until 1783, after the Revolution was over.

Historian B. J. Cigrand says the Stars and Stripes was flown for the first time over American troops under fire on Aug. 3, 1777. Col. Peter Gansevoort, with a garrison of 600 men, was in command of Fort Schuyler, formerly Fort Stanwix, when it was besieged by the British. On Aug. 2, reinforcements of 200 men of the 9th Massachusetts Regiment under Lieutenant Colonel Mellon reached Fort Schuyler with ammunition and supplies. They brought word of the new flag.

The following day the Stars and Stripes was raised over the walls of the fort; the white stripes had been fashioned from a soldier's ammunition shirt, the red was from the petticoat of a soldier's wife, and the blue was from a cloak which Capt. Abraham Swartout had taken from the British at Peekskill. The story is authenticated by a letter written by Captain Swartout to Colonel Gansevoort in which he requested authorization to draw on the army quartermaster stores to replace the material taken for the flag.

There is a theory, not supported by documentary evidence, that John Paul Jones was the first man to raise the Stars and Stripes. Shortly after the flag resolution was passed, Jones proceeded to Portsmouth, N. H., where, at his request, a group of girls gathered together in a "flag bee" and fashioned an ensign for him. He is said to have raised it aboard the Ranger on July 4, 1777.

The first sea action of the Stars and Stripes took place on Sept. 4, 1777. Capt. Thomas Thompson, in command of both the Raleigh and the Alfred, took the British vessel, Nancy, after she had dropped behind the Windward Island fleet, of which she was a part. After overtaking the remainder of the fleet, the Raleigh was able to run in close to the commodore's ship, utilizing the Nancy's coded signal book. At close range she ran up the Continental Colors, ran out her guns, hulled the British ship with the first broadside, and shattered her rigging with the second before being driven off by superior forces.

On Feb. 13, 1778, Paul Jones, in command of the Ranger and the Independence, stood off Quiberon Bay, near Lorient, France. Jones was determined to receive an official salute for the American flag from the French admiral, LaMotte Picquet, who was in command of the fleet inside the bay. The admiral sent word that, since Jones was the senior American Continental officer in European waters, Picquet would return the same salute he was authorized to give the admiral of any republic; four guns less than the salute first rendered. Jones wanted gun for gun and waited until Feb. 14 in order to verify Picquet's answer. Finally satisfied, he sailed in, fired a 13-gun salute, and received nine. This was the first foreign salute given the Stars and Stripes.

The story of Betsy Ross and her connection with the first American flag has become a tradition. According to the classic story, Betsy Ross, a young Philadelphia widow who supported herself and children by her excellent needlework, received a visit from Washington, Robert Morris, and George Ross, her deceased husband's uncle. They described a flag and asked if she could make one for them. She agreed to accept the job but recommended that five-pointed rather than six-pointed stars be used. This first flag is said to have been made almost a full year before the congressional resolution of June 14, 1777.

There are no written reports or records to verify the theory, and it is supported entirely by stories handed down by word of mouth from the direct descendants of Mrs. Ross. If the story cannot be proved to the satisfaction of the historians, neither can it be conclusively disapproved, historian Cigrand believes.

Many historians agree that one Francis Hopkinson was more responsible for the flag design than any other person. He was a delegate to the Continental Congress from New Jersey, a member of the Marine Committee, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In 1779, he sent a bill to the Board of the Admiralty for "A Great Seal for the United States of America, with a Reverse, A Seal for the Board of the Admiralty, and The flag of the United States of America."

His request was turned down, and the report states that he "was not the only person consulted" in formulating the designs, and that he therefore did not deserve full payment.

In 1794, the flag was officially altered to consist of 15 stripes alternate red and white and 15 stars arranged in five rows of three each. It remained unchanged until 1818, when it reverted to the original 13 stripes but provided for each state in the Union to be represented by a star on the union of the flag.

TAX ON SOCIAL SECURITY

The President recently announced plans to tax the Social Security benefits paid to persons over 65. The Social Security system was designed as a non-voluntary program. Taxes were paid on the money withheld to support the system; now the administration wants to tax the senior citizen twice; once when he pays the premium and second when he receives the benefits from the program.

Congress should seriously question this attempt to change the orginal intent of the Social Security system and place additional burdens on our already overburdened senior citizens.

NEW YORK (AP) — Life is an adventure in irony, and this is particularly true in the case of Werner Klemperer, the actor.

Werner, son of Otto Klemperer, the famed symphony conductor, and his family fled their native Germany in 1933 because of the rise of Hitlerism.

Now Werner, who later served three years as a corporal in the American Army, makes a tidy dollar playing a bumbling Nazi officer, Col. Wilhelm Klink, on the CBS television comedy program, "Hogan's Heroes."

Although he has had a lifelong hatred of war and violence, nobody since the late Eric von Stroheim has come along who can play a foreign military villain with quite the heel-clicking authenticity of Klemperer.

Werner finds it hard to define just why he can do this so well. "Acting is largely a matter of accurate observation," he said.

"I suppose I must have seen many German officers when I was a boy in Berlin, but" — he added wryly — "I don't remember ever shaking hands with one.

"I don't find it a particular psychological hurdle, to play Nazi officers, so long as I can be very sure that I can give them the kind of dimension I feel they deserve.

"But I don't want ever to play a good Nazi, and I don't want to act in Germany. No, not now."

Something of a specialist in unsympathetic roles, Werner has also played Bulgarian villains, Dutch villains and Russian villains, but his big desire is to play an Oriental villain.

"With my bald head and a little makeup I think I'd be very interesting," he said.

After fleeing Germany, the Klemperers spent two years in Switzerland, then came to California where the father became conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony.

Werner, then 13, learned enough English in three months to enter high school. He appeared headed for a career as a pianist, but gave it up.

"I didn't have the desire," he said. "Desire and talent usually go hand in hand. If the desire isn't there, chances are that the talent isn't there either."

Werner chose the theater after wartime work with an Army Special Service unit led by actor Maurice Evans.

Urbane and sophisticated, Werner at 45 feels he has carved himself a comfortable niche and says he has no desire to be either rich or famous.

THIS IS WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF

It used to be that a man could lie down at night and sleep the way he wanted, dream or not as he chose, in the sanctity of his castle. The world could knock him about as it would during the day, but night time was his . . .a retreat from automation, mechanization and frustration.

But now, do you know what's happened? They're doing a time study on our dreams. They've actually got batteries of researchers, complete with time clocks, watching every twist of our eyelids. It seems that we give ourselves away when we're dreaming by the speed of our eyelid movement.

They now know that we have four to five dreams a night. Yes you do, even though you don't recall them. Our dreams are spaced at regular intervals of 60 to 90 minutes and the sleep between these dreams is the most restful to us. Our first dream of the night tends to be short, usually about 5 to 10 minutes. Subsequent dreams tend to be longer with the last dream of the night often lasting 30 to 40 minutes. Women dream mainly about dates, clothes and the home. Men about sports and the job.

During one series of experiments, volunteers were deprived of dreams by waking them through the night when dream periods were just started. This was fine the first night. However on succeeding nights dream periods started more frequently and volunteers had to be wakened more often. These findings suggest that dreaming is somehow a vital and necessary biological phenomenon.

No, you can't escape the researchers. But, while you're trying, pleasant dreams.

TRAVEL-TIME TIPS: You know the tricks, of course, about hanging unpacked clothes in a steamed-up bathroom to remove wrinkles? After they've hung awhile, remove them from the damp, humid bathroom and allow to dry out in another room . . . Another good idea, anytime, is to hang a dampened terry towel over a hanger in a closed closet. Any minor wrinkles will come out of the clothes.

Don't worry if your job is small, and your rewards are few . . . Just remember that the mighty oak was once a nut like you.

A CODE OF ETHICS UP TO CONGRESS

The distressing thing about the expulsion of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell and the committee-recommended censure of Sen. Thomas Dodd is not so much that two members of the most exalted legislative body in the country have been found guilty of wrongdoing by their peers.

In any group of 535 men and women, subject to the pressures and responsibilities that congressmen are, it is inevitable that a few will succumb to the temptation to use their public offices for their private benefit. And when they do, part of the blame for it must rest on Congress as a whole for having failed to set up clear and enforceable standards of ethical conduct for it members.

The sad thing, however, is that neither man admits any fault in himself.

Powell, adopting the pose of a martyr, maintains that he did nothing that most other congressmen are not guilty of. Dodd, with perhaps some justification, claims he was "judged by hindsight" with standards of conduct that have yet to be defined.

Be that as it may and whatever their guilt or innocence -- and both men alone know in their hearts the full extent of either-- their usefulness as legislators has now ceased. This is a pity, for both have performed valuable service in the past for their constituents and their country.

The shadow of suspicion has fallen over every congressman because of the Powell and Dodd cases. Congress owes it to itself, as well as the nation, to set up rules and machinery which will restore the confidence of the people in their lawmakers, if not prevent replays of such scandals altogether.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

NASSER'S LAST GAMBLE

On May 27, Drew Pearson reported in detail how President Nasser was in serious trouble at home, and how he was taking one last desperate gamble to come out on top by challenging Israel.

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Russell Long, D-La., got so impassioned in his defense of Sen. Tom Dodd the other day that he delivered a scorching attack on the senate ethics committee because it had recommended Dodd's censure. Long said the committee had censured Dodd because it feared criticism from this column if it failed to do so.

Later Sen. Long delivered a lame apology to the ethics committee; but there was no apology for charging us with blackmail.

On a point of personal privilege, therefore, we should like to report on the six members of the senate ethics committee and what we have said about them in the past.

All are conscientious, hard-working senators entrusted with a job extremely distasteful to them, that of passing judgment on a fellow senator. While they overlooked many of Dodd's weaknesses and leaned over backwards to be fair to him, nevertheless they were airtight in the findings which they made.

Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the Democratic chairman, we have reported to be "a courtly philosopher, with such a reputation for fairness that he's been in the presiding officer's chair more than Alben Barkley. No noisy demagogue like his predecessor Bo Bilbo, he says that the wage-hour law was a boon to the south by raising its economic level. . .at a prayer breakfast where Democrats and Republicans forgot religious differences as well as political ones, Stennis sounded the keynote by calling for a return to spirituality."

This column has sometimes reported critically regarding Sen. Stennis's position on civil rights, but never regarding his honesty and fairness.

A MORMON TEACHER

Sen. Wallace Bennett, Republican co-chairman of the ethics committee, is married to the daughter of the late Heber Grant, President of the Mormon church. Bennett for many years taught in the Mormon sunday school of the Chevy Chase Chapel and today, though he no longer teaches, is a regular attendant.

We have reported that Bennett is the former President of the National Manufacturers Association and follows the conservative policies of that organization. He has been opposed to most of the economic policies of the Truman, Kennedy and Johnson administrations, but he has been consistent and honest in that opposition.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., is a former governor of Kentucky, former ambassador to India where he did an outstanding job, and has held many special diplomatic posts.

We have reported that Sen. Cooper follows a broad bipartisan policy on foreign affairs and frequently has been called in by Democratic Presidents for consultation. He was especially useful in advising Kennedy how to handle the Berlin problem at the very start of his administration, though Kennedy spurned the advice.

Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., has served in congress longer than any other member of the ethics committee. As a young member of the house of representatives, he received the Collier's distinguished service award for his work in attempting to streamline legislative procedures. He was co-arthur of the congressional reorganization bill with the late Sen. Robert La Follette and more recently sponsored a bill for senate reorganization.

As a young congressman, Monroney had the courage to vote against an oil price increase though he comes from a big oil-producing state, and against the farm bloc on subsidies though Oklahoma is also an important agricultural state.

We reported how President Truman offered Monroney the job of secretary of agriculture, which Monroney declined on the ground that he didn't know enough about agriculture. He never capitalized on Truman's job offer.

CRITIC OF SENATE CONDUCT

Monroney understands the consequence of unethical conduct better than most senators because he defeated Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma after Thomas was revealed by this column as having used his strategic position on the senate agriculture committee to influence the commodity market at the same time he was investing on the commodity market.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., is another legislator who came up from the ranks in the house of representatives. We have described him as "having a spotless family life. . .studied for the priesthood, has the confidence of labor and farmers, is the idol of liberals in both the house and the senate."

Generally he has tried to plug tax loopholes from his vantage point inside the senate finance committee and has fought a courageous war against central intelligence secrecy. In this he has been completely substantiated by the facts, though rebuffed by old guard senators when he asked for an investigation of the CIA.

McCarthy is an old personal friend of Sen. Dodd, and at one time proposed secret rather than personal friendship and voted to recommend Dodd's censure.

Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., is a newcomer to the senate and the youngest member of the ethics committee. However, he has also been one of the most forthright in cross-examining witnesses and one of the toughest in urging that the senate maintain a high standard of ethics.

Originally a Virginian, Pearson served in Kansas during the war, liked it and returned to live there and engage in Republican politics. He has just been reelected for a full six-year term.

These are the men who spent more than a year conscientiously hearing testimony and carefully scrutinizing the record of their colleague from Connecticut. They are not susceptible to political blackmail and we resent Sen. Long's implication that we might resort to such tactics.

H.L. Hunt Says

COUNSELORS FOR FREEDOM

The Youth Freedom Speakers movement, which is spreading throughout the country, will benefit greatly from the establishment in each area where a YFS chapter exists of a board of counselors to guide these young people who are determined to speak up for freedom.

Each chapter needs the encouragement and guidance of a group of responsible men and women who have an interest in young people and who want to help foster what can become a great positive force for liberty. A board of counselors in a typical city might consist of fifteen persons. They will serve as the organizational backbone of the YFS chapter.

The counselors screen and accept young volunteers who wish to become speakers and assist them in preparing themselves to speak effectively and forcefully. They maintain close contact with churches, schools and other youth organizations in their area as sources of volunteers.

Counselors also maintain continuous contact with patriotic groups, churches, service clubs, and other organizations holding meetings. They should keep in touch with the press and other media of communications to assure proper and adequate publicity whenever young speakers are to appear on a program. Arrangements can be made for the appearance of speakers on radio and television.

The YFS board of counselors, made up of business and professional men and women of high standing in their community, can hold regular meetings of their own to keep YFS chapters moving. The board can do a great deal toward making pro-freedom sentiments fashionable, for its members' concern with YFS will be noted in the community. HLH

By Victor Riesel

U.S. Waterfront Labor Leaders' Secret Apparatus Poised to Starve Out Arab Alliance.

NEW YORK: Even before there was blood on the sands of the Sinai, an intelligence alert was flashed along all U.S. and Canadian coasts by American waterfront labor leaders. The word went out to locate every ton of cargo, in every ship, in every port, loaded or waiting to be loaded, bound for any and all Arab League nations.

Messages arrived swiftly. In a few days, the Seafarers' Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO's 600,000 member Maritime Trades Dept., knew of $1 billion worth of such freight on order by the Arabs.

He and his colleagues learned that there were 43 ships in U.S. and Canadian ports, some with the good and grain already in their holds and some still awaiting dockside tonnage.

The American waterfront labor leaders then were ready to implement their long-planned ultra-secret "Operation - Target Cargo" aimed at starving Arab lands and crippling their low level economies.

"Operation - Target Cargo" is skillfully designed to go for the jugular of Israel's enemies - the same nations which have been harassing American seamen for years. It hits at the cargoes moving to - and from - Arab ports in the ships of any nation including our own. Picketing the four or five United Arab Republic vessels which put into American harbors is dramatic and symbolic. But the Arabs don't haul 10 per cent of their imports or exports in their own craft. Over 90 per cent of their ocean-borne economic lifeblood is in foreign freighters - American, British, Liberian, Greek, etc.

It took intricate intelligence operations by the Maritime Trades Dept. to locate all the Arab-bound tonnage. This remains the unions' secret. But the details were ferreted out - and the first of the targets were and are the food shipments scheduled to leave for Arab lands in June and July. These may still be hit.

The freighters marked for immediate target action (such as the Liberian ship The Pheax, which early last week was in a Canadian harbor loading 21,000 tons of wheat for Algeria) carry corn, barley, wheat, vegetable oil and dried milk. Some were scheduled for Egypt, some for Tunisia, some for Morocco.

These food shipments are government-generated U.S. "give-away" cargoes dispatched under Public Law 480. Tunisia, which sent soldiers to bolster Gen. Nasser, was set to receive, for example, 36,000 tons of barley in four freighters. Some have been loaded. Some not. Egypt was to get flour, dried milk and cornmeal in four ships. Morocco has been awaiting heavy tonnage of wheat and corn in 11 ships.

A Greek vessel, the World Glade, is scheduled to take on 25,000 tons of wheat in U.S. gulf ports later this month for delivery to Morocco. At the same time, Hall's men targeted the Alexander Voyazides, set to take 13,500 tons of barley in a California port for Tunisia.

Food shipments are set for Algeria (wheat); Jordan (flour and vegetable oil); Iraq (flour and vegetable oil); Lebanon (flour).

The AFL-CIO waterfront strategists have not decided what action to take. The situation is too fluid.

But the apparatus will be kept intact to hit India if New Delhi continues to bait the U.S. while Washington keeps feeding the subcontinental nation.

Far more than food is involved in "Operation - Target Cargo." The waterfront men now have a complete schedule of spare parts, cloth, light machinery, etc., destined for the Arab lands. Without these, say the project directors, the Arab lands would crack because it would take months to readjust themselves to the U.S. maritime boycott by finding new sources of supply in a wartime world.

There's nothing coy in the friendship of American labor leaders for Israel. For many years now, they have been close to Israel's labor movement, Histadrut - which now has almost a million members. During the first hours' fighting, Louis Stulberg, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU) president, learned that the hospital the ILGWU has built in Beersheba, Israel, had gone on a war footing - but that five babies were born during the cannonading - all boys, two of them Bedouins.

The Teamsters moved swiftly too. When they learned that the Israeli bus system had become inoperative because both men and women were mobilized and because all trucking was militarized, Joe Konowe, assistant to the Teamsters national president, headed for Israel. He's still trying to get there for a survey which will be followed by a stream of volunteer American truckdrivers and longshoremen.

This is only part of the story. But it is evidence enough to show the shadowy outline of a vast machine which can hit high gear while others in more polished and diplomatic halls specialize in verbal high indignation.

Priscilla Righter Crowned Queen of Job's Daughters

Priscilla Righter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Righter, was crowned honored queen of bethel 27 of the International Order of Job's Daughters Saturday night at the Masonic Temple.

The temple was decorated in purple and white, colors of the organization. Over the queen's chair in the east was a purple and white drape, a white Bible with purple bookmark and white lilies. On each side was a large arrangement of white daisies with baby breath.

Bethel Guardian Mrs. Aquilla Grimes and Associate Guardian, Aquilla Grimes, were escorted to the east by the installing senior custodian, Debbie Ingram, and installing junior custodian, Carolyn Clinton. Mrs. Grimes opened the installation ceremony and Grimes escorted into the bethel, Miss Carol Werneck, installing honored queen. Mrs. Grimes introduced Miss Werneck, as a past honored queen and past outstanding girl of the year of Bethel 27.

Miss Werneck accepted her position in the East and asked that the other installing officers be escorted into the bethel. The installing officers were: installing guide, Katie Blanton; installing marshal, Melinda Morrison, installing chaplain, Nancy Turner, installing senior custodian, Debbie Ingram, junior custodian, Carolyn Clinton, recorder, Lucile Mount, musician, Mayme Jean Poage; and soloist, Patti McMullin. The recorder, Margaret Morrison; treasurer, Sharon Beaird; librarian, Peggy McMullin; musician, Sherry Baker, assistant musician, Betsy Carney; first messenger, Sheila Clinton; fourth messenger, Donna Wheeler; fifth messenger, Carla Colwick; inner guard, Jamie Ward; outer guard, Debbie Miller; senior custodian, Jane Campbell, and junior custodian, Sally Mitchell.

Miss Righter was escorted to the altar by the installing guide and installing marshall. She knelt while the installing honored queen placed the crown of honor on her head and invested her with the cape of royal purple velvet. Miss Righter was then honored by an original song to the tune of "Sweet Violets" by Debbie Collins. The new honored queen was then escorted to the East by her father, where she was presented the gavel and a copy of the by-laws of the organization. At the conclusion of the installation, the recorder read the proclamation.

During the escorts and honors ceremony, the junior past honored queen, Miss Debbie Ingram, was escorted to west of the altar where she received her past honored queen's jewel and a dozen red roses. Miss Patti McMullin sang a song to the tune of "Red Roses" to Miss Ingram.

Miss Colwick was requested to be escorted to the East and was presented a gift of appreciation by Mrs. Grimes, bethal guardian, for her loyalty and willing assistance to the organization. Honorary certificates were presented to Mrs. Poage, Mrs. Mildred Canedy and Miss Mount for outstanding service and devotion to the bethel.

The associate guardian then escorted Miss Ingram to the east where she received the title of outstanding girl of the year and a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Grimes and from the Bethel. A orchid was also presented to Miss Ingram. While she was being escorted back to her station, Debbie Collins sang an original lyric commemorating Miss Ingram's reign.

The ceremony of escorts and honors continued with the introduction of visiting honored queen Karen Sander and members of Bethel 51 of Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Gene Collins, director of sociability, Miss Mount, secretary, Mildred Baker, Treasurer, Worshipful Master Leonard Overbey and the Rev. Joseph Wagner of the First Methodist church. The Masons and Eastern Stars were acknowledged and then Miss Righter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Righter, and sister, Lesa, were escorted to the East and introduced.

Miss Righter then closed the ceremony of honors and escorts, and after the installing chaplain approached the altar and gave the closing prayer, members sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" and formed a cross. They knelt and sang "Nearer My God To Thee". The Rev. Mr. Wagner gave the benediction.

Job's Daughters and their guests then assembled in the recreation hall for reception to honor Miss Righter and new officers. The tables were decorated with purple candles and ivy clusters. The centerpiece, a tall crystal with falling purple gladioli, was circled by purple satin ornaments and ivy. Nadine Collins, chairman of the reception, was assisted by Mrs. Dale Ham, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Joel Montgomery, Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Mrs. T. E. Campbell, Mrs. Lynn Ingram, and Mrs. Righter.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, was a supply point where wagon trains stopped for rest during the goldrush of 1849.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Weekley of Salinas, Calif., have been visiting with his sister, Mrs. Marie Yeakey, since Wednesday. They have also spent time with another sister, Mrs. Charles Bethune and her family of Blodgett, and this weekend another sister, Mrs. Marion Baker of Rossville, Tenn., was here for the reunion. The Weekleys leave for home tomorrow.

Please don't forget to call your locals in to Cherie GR 1-0380. Remember this is one of the few free services left us in this enlightened age!

Mrs. Winnie Kelley of St. Louis, has been visiting in Sikeston, two weeks with her son Norman Kelley, his family, and with a sister, Mrs. J. T. Yarbrough. Mrs. Kelley will be here for an indefinite period.

Back from a week's vacation spent swimming and relaxing in Pensacola, Fla., are Mrs. Kay Long and sons, Alan and Gary, and her mother, Mrs. Leona McCoy. They had a marvelous time, particularly on Long Beach, where they spent the main part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Braswell and their daughter spent this weekend in Flat River, where they attended the retirement service of the Rev. Harold Nance, after 42 years in the ministry. He has been a pastor at Dexter, Caruthersville, West Plains, Malden and Fredericktown. Braswell, along with Carroll Gerig, Neal Gillett, and Marvin Bohnenkamp entertained with members of an original quartet that had been formed while the Rev. Mr. Nance was pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk will entertain their daughter, Mrs. Harold L. Lane and daughter, Beth of Memphis, until Thursday of next week. The Lanes, who arrived today, brought a friend of Beth's Ellen Ball, with them for this visit.

The Rev. Lindy M. Cannon, pastor of the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian church, and Mrs. Cannon will return Friday after attending the meeting of the Presbyterian general assembly in Bristol, Tenn.

Dr. Carl Walters, Jr., a faculty member of the religion department of Southwestern University in Memphis, filled the pulpit at the Presbyterian church Sunday.

Chester Arnolds To Mark Anniversary

BELL CITY -- Mr. and Mrs. Chester Arnold will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at a reception from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the dining room of the Methodist church.

MARGARET FULLER:

Drudgery is as necessary to call out the treasures of the mind as harrowing and planting those of the earth.

STEPHEN BIRMINGHAM:

It is one of the odd myths in America that teen - agers not only are hell-bent but also that they are alarmingly on the increase, a mushrooming threat. The teen - age population is, of course, growing as the population of the country grows.

But at the moment fewer than 40 percent of all Americans are under 20, and this is not a startling proportion. At the time the Declaration of Independence was signed, over half the nation was under 18.

Miss Watkins Is Honored

BELL CITY -- Miss Sandra Watkins was honored at a wedding shower in the Methodist church dining room Friday.

Hostesses were Mrs. Gene Wheeler, Mrs. Joe Karnes of Sikeston, Mrs. Thomas Rendleman and Miss Mary Rendleman.

Decorations were pink and white.

Attending were Mrs. Winford Watkins, the honoree's mother; Mrs. Gertrude Watkins, her grandmother; Miss Beverly Bollinger, Mrs. Max Bollinger, Mrs. L. A. Perry, Mrs. Harvey Kelso, Mrs. Robert Rendleman, Mrs. Raymond Stovall, Mrs. Gary Watkins, Mrs. Dwight Richmond, Mrs. Joe Redman and Mrs. Ferel Austin.

Miss Watkins and Larry E. Miller will be married Saturday at 5 p.m. in the Methodist church.

Priscilla Righter

Priscilla Righter Crowned Queen of Job's Daughters

Priscilla Righter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Righter, was crowned honored queen of bethel 27 of the International Order of Job's Daughters Saturday night at the Masonic Temple.

The temple was decorated in purple and white, colors of the organization. Over the queen's chair in the east was a purple and white drape, a white Bible with purple bookmark and white lilies. On each side was a large arrangement of white daisies with baby breath.

Bethel Guardian Mrs. Aquilla Grimes and Associate Guardian, Aquilla Grimes, were escorted to the east by the installing senior custodian, Debbie Ingram, and installing junior custodian, Carolyn Clinton. Mrs. Grimes opened the installation ceremony and Grimes escorted into the bethel, Miss Carol Werneck, the installing honored queen. Mrs. Grimes introduced Miss Werneck, as a past honored queen and past outstanding girl of the year of Bethel 27.

Miss Werneck accepted her position in the East and asked that the other installing officers be escorted into the bethel. The installing officers were: installing guide, Katie Blanton; installing marshal, Melinda Morrison, installing chaplain, Nancy Turner, installing senior custodian, Debbie Ingram, junior custodian, Carolyn Clinton, recorder, Lucile Mount, musician, Mayme Jean Poage; and soloist, Patti McMullin. The installing officers were introduced and escorted to their stations.

The Holy Bible was brought into the bethel by the installing chaplain. As the choir formed an aisle of honor on either side of the altar and the installing chaplain knelt to open the Holy Bible, Miss Patti McMullin, soloist, sang "I'll Walk with God."

The American Flag was presented west of the altar by the installing marshall. A tribute was made to the flag by the installing honored queen then all sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and the flag was escorted to the East and the Pledge of Allegiance was given.

After the audience was greeted by Miss Werneck, and a prayer was given by the installing chaplain, the Bethel officers were introduced: honored queen, Prissy Righter; senior princess, Claudia Ham; junior princess, Beth Montgomery; guide, Kay Stauffer, marshall, Debbie Collins; chaplain, Lana Dillender; recorder, Margaret Morrison; treasurer, Sharon Beaird; librarian, Peggy McMullin; musician, Sherry Baker, assistant musician, Betsy Carney; first messenger, Sheila Clinton; fourth messenger, Donna Wheeler; fifth messenger, Carla Colwick; inner guard, Jamie Ward; outer guard, Debbie Miller; senior custodian, Jane Campbell, and junior custodian, Sally Mitchell.

Miss Righter was escorted to the altar by the installing guide and installing marshall. She knelt while the installing honored queen placed the crown of honor on her head and invested her with the cape of royal purple velvet. Miss Righter was then honored by an original song to the tune of "Sweet Violets" by Debbie Collins. The new honored queen was then escorted to the East by her father, where she was presented the gavel and a copy of the by-laws of the organization. At the conclusion of the installation, the recorder read the proclamation.

During the escorts and honors ceremony, the junior past honored queen, Miss Debbie Ingram, was escorted to west of the altar where she received her past honored queen's jewel and a dozen red roses. Miss Patti McMullin sang a song to the tune of "Red Roses" to Miss Ingram.

Miss Colwick was requested to be escorted to the East and was presented a gift of appreciation by Mrs. Grimes, bethal guardian, for her loyalty and willing assistance to the organization. Honorary certificates were presented to Mrs. Poage, Mrs. Mildred Canedy and Miss Mount for outstanding service and devotion to the bethel.

The associate guardian then escorted Miss Ingram to the east where she received the title of outstanding girl of the year and a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Grimes and from the Bethel. A orchid was also presented to Miss Ingram. While she was being escorted back to her station, Debbie Collins sang an original lyric commemorating Miss Ingram's reign.

The ceremony of escorts and honors continued with the introduction of visiting honored queen Karen Sander and members of Bethel 51 of Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Gene Collins, director of sociability, Miss Mount, secretary, Mildred Baker, Treasurer, Worshipful Master Leonard Overbey and the Rev. Joseph Wagner of the First Methodist church. The Masons and Eastern Stars were acknowledged and then Miss Righter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Righter, and sister, Lesa, were escorted to the East and introduced.

Miss Righter then closed the ceremony of honors and escorts, and after the installing chaplain approached the altar and gave the closing prayer, members sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" and formed a cross. They knelt and sang "Nearer My God To Thee". The Rev. Mr. Wagner gave the benediction.

Job's Daughters and their guests then assembled in the recreation hall for reception to honor Miss Righter and new officers. The tables were decorated with purple candles and ivy clusters. The centerpiece, a tall crystal with falling purple gladioli, was circled by purple satin ornaments and ivy. Nadine Collins, chairman of the reception, was assisted by Mrs. Dale Ham, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Joel Montgomery, Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Mrs. T. E. Campbell, Mrs. Lynn Ingram, and Mrs. Righter.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, was a supply point where wagon trains stopped for rest during the goldrush of 1849.

Oran Opens SEMO League Action With 10 - 2 Win

ORAN -- Tinkoff and Ruffin combined to pitch a one-hit 10-2 victory over Lutesville in Oran high school's opening game of the SEMO baseball league yesterday.

Oran had little trouble with the visitors. It pushed across three runs in the first inning and added two in the third, three in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Lutesville's runs came in the second and sixth innings.

Hamm had a perfect night at the plate with a 4-4 performance, including a double and scored four runs. Teammate Whorton had a three for four performance.

In the preliminary game, Oran blasted the visitors 12-2 in four innings.

Aaron Joins 2,500 Hit Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hank Aaron joined the select club of players to reach 2,500 hits but neither he nor the Atlanta Braves discovered the fact until some 24 hours after the slugging outfielder reached the coveted plateau.

The 6-foot, 180-pound Aaron collected a home run and single Monday night against the Philadelphia Phillies to join the 2,500-hit select circle, occupied by only 41 other batters.

"I didn't know how many I had," said Aaron when asked why he didn't mention it Monday night.

"We didn't realize it until we did a recheck," explained a Braves spokesman. He started the season with 2,434, and has 66 so far this season. That's 2,500, even in the new math.

The spokesman explained the club statistician forgot to record an official scoring change that gave Aaron a hit and took away an error charged to Philadelphia's Rich Allen in the second game of an April 30 doubleheader at Atlanta.

Aaron accepted the latest honor of his 13-year career in the same stoic manner he reacts to all of his slugging accomplishments — 10 years a better than .300 hitter, five times a 40 or more home run producer.

He talked about his favorite subject hitting, and almost floored his listeners with this gem — he's been doing it all wrong.

How wrong can you be to be so right?

Aaron explained that he has a hitch in his swing which prompted Manager Billy Hitchcock to suggest he teach the rest of the Braves the same hitch.

"I wouldn't mind teaching hitting," said Aaron, "but I wouldn't teach anybody to do it my way. I've been doing it all wrong."

"I've got a hitch in my swing and I hit off the front foot. Now I wouldn't teach those things.

"The big thing in hitting," said Aaron, "is bat control. Stan Musial, for example hit off the front foot. Like me, he was way out in front of the ball. But he kept the bat back until the last split second. You can commit your body, not the bat. That's your leverage."

Aaron said most good hitters have a hitch in their swing, naming the Phillies' Rich Allen and Willie Mays as "just a few."

"I'd try to help a young fellow with his own style, not mine," Aaron concluded.

Aaron didn't wait around admirring his 2,500th hit. He went right out Tuesday night and whacked No. 2,501 and 2,502 enroute to the 3,000 plateau. His 2,502nd — a single — knocked in the only run as Atlanta beat the Phillies 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Phil Niekro.

He admits it would be nice placing his name alongside Ty Cobb, Musial, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Napoleon Lajoie, Paul Waner and Cap Anson — baseball's only members of the exclusive 3,000-hit group.

Reds Split Doubleheader With Mets

Hughes Wins Fifth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cardinal pitcher Dick Hughes contributed to three-run scoring bursts in the second and third innings at Pittsburgh Tuesday night and then held the Pirates off for a 7-4 St. Louis victory.

Curt Flood of the Cards doubled in the first and scored on a single by Orlando Cepeda. In the second inning a walk, single by Julian Javier, fielder's choice for Hughes and a hit by Lou Brock accounted for two runs. Flood then drove in the third run of the inning with a single.

In the third the Cards loaded the bases and Hughes singled home two runs. He then scored on a sacrifice fly and throwing error by Roberto Clemente.

Jerry May, Manny Mota and Willie Stargell of the Pirates all tagged Hughes for bases-empty homers. Hughes also wild-pitched a run home in the ninth and bowed out to reliever Joe Hoerner. Hughes got credit for his fifth victory against two losses.

The Cards meet Pittsburgh again tonight with Bob Gibson slated against Billy O'Dell.

Willie Mays, usually a starter, surprised no one by turning out to be quite a relief hitter, but relief pitcher Phil Niekro stunned everyone by proving himself no slouch as a starter.

"I'm still pinching myself," said Niekro, whose knuckleball fluttered Atlanta by Philadelphia 1-0 Tuesday night in his first start after 24 relief appearances.

Mays, who entered the game in the sixth inning, took his success as a substitute more nonchalantly, as usual, after hitting a grand slam in the 10th inning to boost San Francisco over Houston 6-2.

"Grand slams don't make any difference to me," he said. "Winning ball games does."

Elsewhere, the Cincinnati Reds and New York Mets were still pinching themselves over rookies Gary Nolan and Tom Seaver.

Nolan blanked the Mets 6-0 on six hits before Seaver halted the Reds 7-3 in a twi-night doubleheader.

Ron Santo's home run shoved the Chicago Cubs by Los Angeles 3-2.

Niekro, who relieved 28 times without starting in his third season with the Braves in 1966 before being sent to the minor leagues, made the most of his starting chance. The only hits off the 28-year-old pitcher were a two-out double by John Callison in the fourth inning and a leadoff single by Gene Oliver in the eighth.

He struck out five, walked three and got the run he needed to even his record at 2-2 when Hank Aaron singled in a run off Rick Wise in the sixth inning after a walk and Tito Francona's hit.

"I thought I'd get tired, but as the game went on, I found myself getting stronger and stronger," he said.

He admitted he liked this new assignment, but added "I'll pitch wherever they want me — wherever they need me most."

The Braves gave him their answer. "They said I'm starting Sunday in Houston," he said.

Mays, who was scheduled to sit out his second straight game because of fatigue and a stiff back, hoped to be back in the Giant lineup tonight, despite his success as a reserve.

He had entered the game in the sixth inning as a pinch hitter, but grounded into a double play with the bases loaded with Houston leading 2-1 on pitcher Dave Giusti's two-run homer. He got another chance in the 10th after Jim Hart tied the game with a solo shot in the eighth.

Mays connected off Barry Latman, who came in after Giusti walked the first hitter. Willie McCovery's hit and another walk loaded the bases.

The homer was Mays' eighth of the season, 550th of his career, seventh grand slam of his career and first slam since April 1962.

Nolan, a 19-year-old right-hander, won his fifth game in six decisions as he allowed only one Met past second base, struck out nine and walked two.

But Seaver, 22, cut the Reds' first place lead over St. Louis to 2½ games with an eight-hitter for his fifth triumph in eight decisions. He lost his shutout in the ninth when an error set up a three-run pinch-hit homer by Art Shamsky.

Santo connected for his ninth homer in the sixth inning off Don Drysdale, 5-6, breaking a 2-2 tie. Jim Lefebrve had hit a two-run blast for the Dodgers, but it wasn't enough to prevent them from losing their eighth straight game.

Frazier 8-5 Favorite To Beat Chuvalo July 19

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Joe Frazier was made an early line 8-5 favorite over George Chuvalo today for their significant 12-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden July 19.

The matchup of the heavyweight contenders figures to be a war as long as it lasts. It pits a young puncher in the 23-year-old Frazier against an iron-jawed, body banger in the 29-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto.

"This fight is going to be so good, I'd like to sit back and watch it myself," said Chuvalo at a press luncheon when the fight was announced Tuesday.

Frazier, the 1964 Olympic champion from Philadelphia, has a 16-0 record as a pro, including 14 knockouts. Chuvalo, never stopped or floored, has a 46-13-2 record, including 39 knockouts.

The durable Canadian has won 11 straight by knockouts over mediocre opponents since he lost a 10-round decision to Argentina's Oscar Bonavena a year again. On March 29, 1966 he lost a 15-round decision to heavyweight champion Cassius Clay at Toronto.

Frazier has demonstrated he can punch and can fight back after being tagged. Bonavena floored him twice in the second round last Sept. 21 but the Philadelphian rallied to win a split decision.

10-Run Sixth Lifts Detroit Past Minnesota And Ends 5-Game Skid

Making a little go a long way is nothing to be ashamed of, but the Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins were stretching the point Tuesday night.

"I sat right there and saw it, and I don't believe it," said Detroit Manager Mayo Smith after the Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak by chopping and slicing their way to a 15-10 verdict over the Twins.

Fifteen runs were scored — 10 by Detroit — in an hour-long sixth inning marked by the absence of an extra-base hit.

"It was one of the worst games I've ever played in," the Tigers' Al Kaline said after what started as a pitching duel between Dennis McLain and Dean Chance turned into a Punch and Judy fiasco.

In other American League games, Kansas City nipped Baltimore 1-0, Chicago blanked Washington 6-0, New York topped Boston 5-3 and California swept a twi-night doubleheader from Cleveland 8-3 and 5-3.

The Tigers fell behind 5-1 before raking Chance and three successors for 10 runs — on eight singles — in the sixth. Detroit paraded 14 men to the plate, with the first 11 reaching base. Kaline and Willie Horton each had two hits in the inning while pinch hitter Jim Price and Don Wert drove in two runs apiece.

The Twins then batted around in their half of the sixth, scoring five runs — the last three when center fielder Mickey Stanley dropped Bob Allison's two-out fly ball with the bases loaded.

In all, there were 10 singles, five walks, one hit batsman, three errors two wild pitches and a passed ball in the full inning.

Detroit then pulled away with a three-run salvo in the seventh as Dick McAuliffe homered, Wert tripled, Kaline doubled and Horton singled.

The Tigers wound up with 19 hits, the Twins with 12.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter hurled a four-hitter for his second successive shutout as the A's shaded the Orioles and hard-luck left-hander Steve Barber.

Two walks and Bert Campaneris' double in the second inning produced the game's only run. Hunter struck out six and allowed only one runner past first base. Barber yielded three hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The White Sox blanked Washington behind Tommy John's three-hit pitching and a three-run homer by Ron Hansen. John fanned nine Senators in breezing to his fifth victory in eight decisions.

Hansen's homer capped a four-run rally in the sixth after Ken Berry extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a run-scoring single.

Tom Tresh slapped two singles and a double, driving in two runs to help the Yankees top Boston and snap a four-game losing streak. Steve Whitaker also had three hits for New York while Fred Talbot and reliever Dooley Womack checked the Red Sox.

Don Mincher drove in three runs with a double and single, Jimmie Hall hit a two-run homer and pinch hitter Bubba Morton stroked a two-run single in California's twilight victory over the Indians.

The Angels won the nightcap behind rookie Rick Clark, who ended a personal six-game losing string with relief help from Bill Kelso. Four Cleveland errors contributed to the Angels' seventh victory in their last eight starts.

Oran Opens SEMO League Action With 10 - 2 Win

ORAN -- Tinkoff and Ruffin combined to pitch a one-hit 10-2 victory over Lutesville in Oran high school's opening game of the SEMO baseball league yesterday.

Oran had little trouble with the visitors. It pushed across three runs in the first inning and added two in the third, three in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Lutesville's runs came in the second and sixth innings.

Hamm had a perfect night at the plate with a 4-4 performance, including a double and scored four runs. Teammate Whorton had a three for four performance.

In the preliminary game, Oran blasted the visitors 12-2 in four innings.

Aaron Joins 2,500 Hit Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hank Aaron joined the select club of players to reach 2,500 hits but neither he nor the Atlanta Braves discovered the fact until some 24 hours after the slugging outfielder reached the coveted plateau.

The 6-foot, 180-pound Aaron collected a home run and single Monday night against the Philadelphia Phillies to join the 2,500-hit select circle, occupied by only 41 other batters.

"I didn't know how many I had," said Aaron when asked why he didn't mention it Monday night.

"We didn't realize it until we did a recheck," explained a Braves spokesman. He started the season with 2,434, and has 66 so far this season. That's 2,500, even in the new math.

The spokesman explained the club statistician forgot to record an official scoring change that gave Aaron a hit and took away an error charged to Philadelphia's Rich Allen in the second game of an April 30 doubleheader at Atlanta.

Aaron accepted the latest honor of his 13-year career in the same stoic manner he reacts to all of his slugging accomplishments — 10 years a better than .300 hitter, five times a 40 or more home run producer.

He talked about his favorite subject hitting, and almost floored his listeners with this gem — he's been doing it all wrong.

How wrong can you be to be so right?

Aaron explained that he has a hitch in his swing which prompted Manager Billy Hitchcock to suggest he teach the rest of the Braves the same hitch.

"I wouldn't mind teaching hitting," said Aaron, "but I wouldn't teach anybody to do it my way. I've been doing it all wrong."

"I've got a hitch in my swing and I hit off the front foot. Now I wouldn't teach those things.

"The big thing in hitting," said Aaron, "is bat control. Stan Musial, for example hit off the front foot. Like me, he was way out in front of the ball. But he kept the bat back until the last split second. You can commit your body, not the bat. That's your leverage."

Aaron said most good hitters have a hitch in their swing, naming the Phillies' Rich Allen and Willie Mays as "just a few."

"I'd try to help a young fellow with his own style, not mine," Aaron concluded.

Aaron didn't wait around admirring his 2,500th hit. He went right out Tuesday night and whacked No. 2,501 and 2,502 enroute to the 3,000 plateau. His 2,502nd — a single — knocked in the only run as Atlanta beat the Phillies 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Phil Niekro.

He admits it would be nice placing his name alongside Ty Cobb, Musial, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Napoleon Lajoie, Paul Waner and Cap Anson — baseball's only members of the exclusive 3,000-hit group.

10-Run Sixth Lifts Detroit Past Minnesota And Ends 5-Game Skid

Making a little go a long way is nothing to be ashamed of, but the Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins were stretching the point Tuesday night.

"I sat right there and saw it, and I don't believe it," said Detroit Manager Mayo Smith after the Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak by chopping and slicing their way to a 15-10 verdict over the Twins.

Fifteen runs were scored — 10 by Detroit — in an hour-long sixth inning marked by the absence of an extra-base hit.

"It was one of the worst games I've ever played in," the Tigers' Al Kaline said after what started as a pitching duel between Dennis McLain and Dean Chance turned into a Punch and Judy fiasco.

In other American League games, Kansas City nipped Baltimore 1-0, Chicago blanked Washington 6-0, New York topped Boston 5-3 and California swept a twi-night doubleheader from Cleveland 8-3 and 5-3.

The Tigers fell behind 5-1 before raking Chance and three successors for 10 runs — on eight singles — in the sixth. Detroit paraded 14 men to the plate, with the first 11 reaching base. Kaline and Willie Horton each had two hits in the inning while pinch hitter Jim Price and Don Wert drove in two runs apiece.

The Twins then batted around in their half of the sixth, scoring five runs — the last three when center fielder Mickey Stanley dropped Bob Allison's two-out fly ball with the bases loaded.

In all, there were 10 singles, five walks, one hit batsman, three errors two wild pitches and a passed ball in the full inning.

Detroit then pulled away with a three-run salvo in the seventh as Dick McAuliffe homered, Wert tripled, Kaline doubled and Horton singled.

The Tigers wound up with 19 hits, the Twins with 12.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter hurled a four-hitter for his second successive shutout as the A's shaded the Orioles and hard-luck left-hander Steve Barber.

Two walks and Bert Campaneris' double in the second inning produced the game's only run. Hunter struck out six and allowed only one runner past first base. Barber yielded three hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The White Sox blanked Washington behind Tommy John's three-hit pitching and a three-run homer by Ron Hansen. John fanned nine Senators in breezing to his fifth victory in eight decisions.

Hansen's homer capped a four-run rally in the sixth after Ken Berry extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a run-scoring single.

Tom Tresh slapped two singles and a double, driving in two runs to help the Yankees top Boston and snap a four-game losing streak. Steve Whitaker also had three hits for New York while Fred Talbot and reliever Dooley Womack checked the Red Sox.

Don Mincher drove in three runs with a double and single, Jimmie Hall hit a two-run homer and pinch hitter Bubba Morton stroked a two-run single in California's twilight victory over the Indians.

The Angels won the nightcap behind rookie Rick Clark, who ended a personal six-game losing string with relief help from Bill Kelso. Four Cleveland errors contributed to the Angels' seventh victory in their last eight starts.

Reds Split Doubleheader With Mets

Hughes Wins Fifth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cardinal pitcher Dick Hughes contributed to three-run scoring bursts in the second and third innings at Pittsburgh Tuesday night and then held the Pirates off for a 7-4 St. Louis victory.

Curt Flood of the Cards doubled in the first and scored on a single by Orlando Cepeda. In the second inning a walk, single by Julian Javier, fielder's choice for Hughes and a hit by Lou Brock accounted for two runs. Flood then drove in the third run of the inning with a single.

In the third the Cards loaded the bases and Hughes singled home two runs. He then scored on a sacrifice fly and throwing error by Roberto Clemente.

Jerry May, Manny Mota and Willie Stargell of the Pirates all tagged Hughes for bases-empty homers. Hughes also wild-pitched a run home in the ninth and bowed out to reliever Joe Hoerner. Hughes got credit for his fifth victory against two losses.

The Cards meet Pittsburgh again tonight with Bob Gibson slated against Billy O'Dell.

Willie Mays, usually a starter, surprised no one by turning out to be quite a relief hitter, but relief pitcher Phil Niekro stunned everyone by proving himself no slouch as a starter.

"I'm still pinching myself," said Niekro, whose knuckleball fluttered Atlanta by Philadelphia 1-0 Tuesday night in his first start after 24 relief appearances.

Mays, who entered the game in the sixth inning, took his success as a substitute more nonchalantly, as usual, after hitting a grand slam in the 10th inning to boost San Francisco over Houston 6-2.

"Grand slams don't make any difference to me," he said. "Winning ball games does."

Elsewhere, the Cincinnati Reds and New York Mets were still pinching themselves over rookies Gary Nolan and Tom Seaver.

Nolan blanked the Mets 6-0 on six hits before Seaver halted the Reds 7-3 in a twi-night doubleheader.

Ron Santo's home run shoved the Chicago Cubs by Los Angeles 3-2.

Niekro, who relieved 28 times without starting in his third season with the Braves in 1966 before being sent to the minor leagues, made the most of his starting chance. The only hits off the 28-year-old pitcher were a two-out double by John Callison in the fourth inning and a leadoff single by Gene Oliver in the eighth.

He struck out five, walked three and got the run he needed to even his record at 2-2 when Hank Aaron singled in a run off Rick Wise in the sixth inning after a walk and Tito Francona's hit.

"I thought I'd get tired, but as the game went on, I found myself getting stronger and stronger," he said.

He admitted he liked this new assignment, but added "I'll pitch wherever they want me — wherever they need me most."

The Braves gave him their answer. "They said I'm starting Sunday in Houston," he said.

Mays, who was scheduled to sit out his second straight game because of fatigue and a stiff back, hoped to be back in the Giant lineup tonight, despite his success as a reserve.

He had entered the game in the sixth inning as a pinch hitter, but grounded into a double play with the bases loaded with Houston leading 2-1 on pitcher Dave Giusti's two-run homer. He got another chance in the 10th after Jim Hart tied the game with a solo shot in the eighth.

Mays connected off Barry Latman, who came in after Giusti walked the first hitter. Willie McCovery's hit and another walk loaded the bases.

The homer was Mays' eighth of the season, 550th of his career, seventh grand slam of his career and first slam since April 1962.

Nolan, a 19-year-old right-hander, won his fifth game in six decisions as he allowed only one Met past second base, struck out nine and walked two.

But Seaver, 22, cut the Reds' first place lead over St. Louis to 2½ games with an eight-hitter for his fifth triumph in eight decisions. He lost his shutout in the ninth when an error set up a three-run pinch-hit homer by Art Shamsky.

Santo connected for his ninth homer in the sixth inning off Don Drysdale, 5-6, breaking a 2-2 tie. Jim Lefebvre had hit a two-run blast for the Dodgers, but it wasn't enough to prevent them from losing their eighth straight game.

Frazier 8-5 Favorite To Beat Chuvalo July 19

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Joe Frazier was made an early line 8-5 favorite over George Chuvalo today for their significant 12-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden July 19.

The matchup of the heavyweight contenders figures to be a war as long as it lasts. It pits a young puncher in the 23-year-old Frazier against an ironjawed, body banger in the 29-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto.

"This fight is going to be so good, I'd like to sit back and watch it myself," said Chuvalo at a press luncheon when the fight was announced Tuesday.

Frazier, the 1964 Olympic champion from Philadelphia, has a 16-0 record as a pro, including 14 knockouts. Chuvalo, never stopped or floored, has a 46-13-2 record, including 39 knockouts.

The durable Canadian has won 11 straight by knockouts over mediocre opponents since he lost a 10-round decision to Argentina's Oscar Bonavena a year again. On March 29, 1966 he lost a 15-round decision to heavyweight champion Cassius Clay at Toronto.

Frazier has demonstrated he can punch and can fight back after being tagged. Bonavena floored him twice in the second round last Sept. 21 but the Philadelphian rallied to win a split decision.

Johnson Talks on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says his pledge to back territorial and political integrity of all Middle East nations—issued before Israel's rout of its Arab foes—remains unchanged.

But he told a White House news conference Tuesday that how this policy will be effectuated "will depend a good deal upon the nations themselves, what they have to say and what their views are, what their proposals are."

Some observers saw in Johnson's remarks a hint that the United States would not oppose any changes in boundaries worked out between Israel and her Arab neighbors, Egypt, Syria and Jordan—some of whose territory Israel occupies.

With most of the news conference dwelling on the Middle East, Johnson also challenged suggestions his government had failed to realize the seriousness of the Israeli-Arab crisis before war broke out.

He was asked specifically about a Baltimore Sun story which he was told quoted a U.S. Embassy official in Cairo as saying the administration was not as sensitive to the crisis as it should have been.

"I do not believe anyone very high in the administration would feel that way about it," said Johnson, adding the Middle East has occupied a good deal of our thoughts, our attention, and the time of some of our ablest leaders in our government ever since I came into the executive branch in 1961.

"It still does."

The President reiterated the United States played no part in the Arab-Israeli war. Egypt, Jordan, and Syria have charged U.S. airplanes participated in Israeli attacks on Arab targets.

Steelman Takes Up GOP Attack On Hearnes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — "Instead of an innocent 'summer jobs for youth program' we have uncovered a massive 'help re-elect Gov. Warren E. Hearnes program,'" the Republican state chairman, Dorman L. Steelman, charged Tuesday.

He referred to a study of 392 names of successful job applicants at the supposedly nonpolitical state highway department. The study was made by Republican volunteers using names supplied to Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, by M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the department, Steelman said.

The study showed the list included 269 Democrats, 39 Republicans, 65 political independents, Steelman said.

"At least 20 per cent of the Democrats are sons or close relatives of Democratic office-holders, county chairmen, legislative chairmen, committeemen, committeewomen, honorary governor's colonels, party workers, former candidates or officials, or relatives of the governor himself," Steelman said.

Despite the notice that the idea was to help needy students continue their education, Steelman said, the list includes "sons of prosperous businessmen and attorneys."

Not one Republican was found from St. Louis city or county on the first list, he said.

Cole County (Jefferson City) had 14 Democrats and no Republicans.

Four Democratic youths in Kansas City admitted they got their jobs through pull with politicians, Steelman said.

The governor's hometown of Charleston, with a population of less than 6,000, ranked sixth among cities winning referrals from the governor's patronage assistant, Floyd Warmann. There were nine referrals from that relatively small town and all were Democrats.

The governor has insisted that politics was not a factor in job placements at the highway department.

He has said that if political endorsements were required it was done at the local level and not at the state level.

An overworked surgeon was heard lamenting the possibility that he and his family might have to cancel their vacation trip. Asked if he couldn't arrange for his partner to take care of his emergencies, he quickly explained that such provisions had already been made. What was holding things up, he said, was the difficulty of finding someone to take over his son's newspaper route.

Threat of Starvation Hovers Over Egypt

EDITOR's NOTE: Garven Hudgins, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Cairo, was expelled from Egypt last week with 576 other Americans. He arrived in Athens Monday.

By GARVEN HUDGINS

ATHENS (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser has fought and lost what he called his "battle of destiny" and brought his country to the brink of starvation and civil war.

Already in deficit to every country with which it traded before the outbreak of war June 5, Egypt now is close to bankruptcy. It doesn't have the solace of revenue from the Suez Canal, blocked by sunken ships.

Without assistance from the outside, the population of Egypt's principal cities will starve by September. That is how long experts believe the country's current supplies of wheat will last. The masses in Egyptian cities exist on bread.

In its blitz Sinai campaign, Israel captured wells which supplied half of Egypt's oil production. Egypt had hoped to become an oil exporter within two years. Now it will need to import oil for the foreseeable future.

The impact of Nasser's debacle in Sinai has not yet struck the Egyptian population. But when the grim toll of Egyptian troops in the six-day war becomes apparent, public discontent is certain to mount. It is highly doubtful that Nasser's cover-up excuse that American-British intervention defeated him will be able to withstand the shock wave.

Reliable reports indicate Egypt suffered up to 40,000 casualties in Sinai as Israeli jets blasted exposed columns in the desert.

There already are signs of a potentially explosive division among Nasser's close associates.

If it comes to a showdown, a vicious civil conflict could result.

Then there is the army, whose junior commanders must feel disenchanted with the Nasser regime. Its future course is uncertain.

For the moment, Nasser's appeal still is effective and he clearly has the support of the masses. They are not yet starving.

Egypt now has about $120 million in foreign currency reserves, $90 million of which it claims is in gold. The government owes $200 million to Western countries, including $170 million to the United States.

Annual income from the Suez is $230 million — Egypt's largest foreign currency earner. But the canal now is blocked and the Israelis are camped along its eastern banks.

Even before it went to war, Egypt had a $456-million balance of trade deficit which now will increase as a result of the dim outlook for the country's petroleum production.

The Soviet Union may now be reluctant to put up substantial new aid for Egypt. Soviet support for Egypt during the swift war was largely verbal, and Nasser's disappointment was reflected in at least four hasty meetings he had with the Soviet ambassador to Cairo, Dimitri Pojadaiev, during the week.

Nasser's best hope lies in such wealthier Arab neighbors as Kuwait, Libya and Bahrain, which may be willing to come through with loans in the name of Arab solidarity.

The Nasser regime continues to brainwash the Egyptian population, which so far has not been told the dimensions of Egypt's defeat.

Cairo newspapers are full of accusations against the United States, branded the architect of Israel's victory. Cairo radio directs a steady drumfire of propaganda against the United States. The average Egyptian firmly believes the United States supplied air support for Israel.

Egypt suffers from a disastrous technological gap. The Egyptians had good planes and good radar equipment, but they did not know how to use either effectively.

According to one report, Egyptian pilots at the Abu Sweir airbase were drinking coffee in a ready room when Israeli jets swooped over the field and destroyed all their planes in a napalm raid. The radar was not operating.

Nasser has effectively played the United States off against the Soviet Union for many years. But now he has ruptured ties with the United States, and there is dissatisfaction in Egypt because the Soviet Union did nothing practical to aid Egyptian forces in the war.

Late last week, Nasser held two meetings with the Chinese Communist ambassador to Cairo. Peking seems eager to step into the vacuum. That would give Nasser a chance to play China against the Soviet Union. Peking already has given wheat and a $10-million loan to Nasser.

Senator Jennings Randolph of West Virginia: "New York City counterfeiters were turning out bogus money. Due to some mechanical defect, a batch of bills in $18 denominations came off the press. The counterfeiters were about to destroy the bills when a fellow city slicker advised that he could take them to the hills of West Virginia, where the people, he said, wouldn't know the difference. So he took off for the hills.

"At a country store in the mountains, the city fellow threw one of the $18 bills on the counter and said, "Hi, Sport, could you fix a stranger up with a little change?"

"'Sure the proprietor dwaled, without blinking an eye. 'How would you like it -- two 9's or three 6's?"

Watch out for brighter colors in men's shoes next year, say experts. Italian designers say men's footwear has been too conservative and they are planning to bring out designs in about five different shades of green.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—In how many categories are Nobel Prizes awarded?

A—Five — Physics, Chemistry, Physiology and Medicine, Literature and Peace.

Q—How long did it take George Frederick Handel to compose his greatest oratorio, the "Messiah"?

A—He composed his crowning masterpiece in 23 days by working without interruption.

Q—How does the wing of a bird sustain flight?

A—It acts somewhat like an oar and a carrier at the same time. The wing pushes back the air with its wide surface, then glides forward with the least possible resistance.

Now Is the Time for Men To Obey Commandments

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Testing the Ten Commandments may seem to be like a woodpecker's rat-a-tat on a giant redwood. Yet this is a permissive generation, seriously flaunting accepted moral standards. Much that is happening today makes us seem to be the counterparts of those who were worshiping the golden calf when Moses returned to them. They came up with one of history's lamest excuses when their leader berated them. "We thought that you had gone from us," they whined. What will we say? "We thought God was dead?"

Look up into the reality and presence of God and you come face to face with your neighbor. No religion that is vital can remain personal; it becomes social. Nor can we look at what is happening around us and claim to be innocent bystanders. Families break down; highway horrors are escalated; sex becomes an economic idol; property is misused and veracity flaunted. When these are accepted as normal, we are in trouble.

Look again at these five of the Ten Commandments:

Honor your father and your mother.

You shall not kill.

You shall not commit adultery.

You shall not steal.

You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.

If these seem to have a negative pose, look at them in their positive statement:

Respect, love and serve parents and those in authority.

Help your neighbor in all of his physical needs.

In matters of sex, words and conduct must be pure and honorable.

Help your neighbor to improve and protect his property and his means of making a living.

Defend your neighbor, speak well of him and explain his actions in the kindest way.

To snub or ignore these is to end in that typical pose of our time, "I've not done anything worse than anyone else."

That's when the old truism is obvious, "A good conscience is the invention of the devil."

All of this leaps out of an ancient setting and into the items of this newspaper. Contemporary news reveals the need for a family structure that is meaningful, with housing and education to strengthen the home. Read of wars and violence and consider our personal involvement. Think of the ways in which we trifle with fidelity. Observe the ways in which stealing goes on even when politely disguised as just being shrewd. Look deep into your conscience and consider the times persons are prejudged, emotional words used and scorn heaped before the facts or circumstances are known.

One of the saddest sentences in literature is recorded in the final statement of an Old Testament book, the Book of Judges. "In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes." In our permissive society too many come to a similar place. It is a time to re-examine the things that matter most.

The star-spangled street where you live

You can't always see the stars and stripes on the homes and apartments in your neighborhood, but they're there just the same.

A big percentage of American families own U.S. Savings Bonds. Many of these star-spangled families have been buying Bonds since they were first issued 25 years ago.

Altogether, Uncle Sam has sold $150 billion in E and H Bonds. About $100 billion of these have been cashed in for college, retirement, new furniture, emergencies, and down payments for those homes.

Americans still own a nest egg of nearly $50 billion in Bonds for tomorrow's needs. And as the nest egg grows, Uncle Sam uses the dollars to help support our fighting men in Vietnam — and help keep our economy strong.

You can help make Uncle Sam's future, and your own, more secure by joining this star-spangled savings plan.

Johnson Talks on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says his pledge to ack territorial and political integrity of all Middle East nations—issued before Israel's rout its Arab foes—remains unanged.

But he told a White House ews conference Tuesday that ow this policy will be effectued "will depend a good deal on the nations themselves, hat they have to say and what eir views are, what their proosals are."

Some observers saw in Johnon's remarks a hint that the nited States would not oppose ny changes in boundaries orked out between Israel and er Arab neighbors, Egypt, yria and Jordan—some of hose territory Israel occupies.

With most of the news conerence dwelling on the Middle ast, Johnson also challenged uggestions his government had iled to realize the seriousness f the Israeli-Arab crisis before ar broke out.

He was asked specifically bout a Baltimore Sun story hich he was told quoted a U.S. mbassy official in Cairo as aying the administration was ot as sensitive to the crisis s it should have been.

"I do not believe anyone very igh in the administration would el that way about it," said ohnson, adding the Middle East as occupied a good deal of our houghts, our attention, and the ime of some of our ablest leadrs in our government ever ince I came into the executive ranch in 1961.

"It still does."

The President reiterated the nited States played no part in he Arab-Israeli war. Egypt, ordan, and Syria have charged .S. airplanes participated in sraeli attacks on Arab targets.

Steelman Takes Up GOP Attack On Hearnes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — "Instead of an innocent 'summer jobs for youth program' we have uncovered a massive 'help re-elect Gov. Warren E. Hearnes program,'" the Republican state chairman, Dorman L. Steelman, charged Tuesday.

He referred to a study of 392 names of successful job applicants at the supposedly nonpolitical state highway department. The study was made by Republican volunteers using names supplied to Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, by M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the department, Steelman said.

The study showed the list included 269 Democrats, 39 Republicans, 65 political independents, Steelman said.

"At least 20 per cent of the Democrats are sons or close relatives of Democratic office-holders, county chairmen, legislative chairmen, committeemen, committeewomen, honorary governor's colonels, party workers, former candidates or officials, or relatives of the governor himself," Steelman said.

Despite the notice that the idea was to help needy students continue their education, Steelman said, the list includes "sons of prosperous businessmen and attorneys."

Not one Republican was found from St. Louis city or county on the first list, he said.

Cole County (Jefferson City) had 14 Democrats and no Republicans.

Four Democratic youths in Kansas City admitted they got their jobs through pull with politicians, Steelman said.

The governor's hometown of Charleston, with a population of less than 6,000, ranked sixth among cities winning referrals from the governor's patronage assistant, Floyd Warmann. There were nine referrals from that relatively small town and all were Democrats.

The governor has insisted that politics was not a factor in job placements at the highway department.

He has said that if political endorsements were required it was done at the local level and not at the state level.

An overworked surgeon was heard lamenting the possibility that he and his family might have to cancel their vacation trip. Asked if he couldn't arrange for his partner to take care of his emergencies, he quickly explained that such provisions had already been made. What was holding things up, he said, was the difficulty of finding someone to take over his son's newspaper route.

Threat of Starvation Hovers Over Egypt

EDITOR's NOTE: Garven Hudgins, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Cairo, was expelled from Egypt last week with 576 other Americans. He arrived in Athens Monday.

By GARVEN HUDGINS

ATHENS (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser has fought and lost what he called his "battle of destiny" and brought his country to the brink of starvation and civil war.

Already in deficit to every country with which it traded before the outbreak of war June 5, Egypt now is close to bankruptcy. It doesn't have the solace of revenue from the Suez Canal, blocked by sunken ships.

Without assistance from the outside, the population of Egypt's principal cities will starve by September. That is how long experts believe the country's current supplies of wheat will last. The masses in Egyptian cities exist on bread.

In its blitz Sinai campaign, Israel captured wells which supplied half of Egypt's oil production. Egypt had hoped to become an oil exporter within two years. Now it will need to import oil for the foreseeable future.

The impact of Nasser's debacle in Sinai has not yet struck the Egyptian population. But when the grim toll of Egyptian troops in the six-day war becomes apparent, public discontent is certain to mount. It is highly doubtful that Nasser's cover-up excuse that American-British intervention defeated him will be able to withstand the shock wave.

Reliable reports indicate Egypt suffered up to 40,000 casualties in Sinai as Israeli jets blasted exposed columns in the desert.

There already are signs of a potentially explosive division among Nasser's close associates.

If it comes to a showdown, a vicious civil conflict could result.

Then there is the army, whose junior commanders must feel disenchanted with the Nasser regime. Its future course is uncertain.

For the moment, Nasser's appeal still is effective and he clearly has the support of the masses. They are not yet starving.

Egypt now has about $120 million in foreign currency reserves, $90 million of which it claims is in gold. The government owes $200 million to Western countries, including $170 million to the United States.

Annual income from the Suez is $230 million — Egypt's largest foreign currency earner. But the canal now is blocked and the Israelis are camped along its eastern banks.

Even before it went to war, Egypt had a $456-million balance of trade deficit which now will increase as a result of the dim outlook for the country's petroleum production.

The Soviet Union may now be reluctant to put up substantial new aid for Egypt. Soviet support for Egypt during the swift war was largely verbal, and Nasser's disappointment was reflected in at least four hasty meetings he had with the Soviet ambassador to Cairo, Dimitri Pojadaiev, during the week.

Late last week, Nasser held two meetings with the Chinese Communist ambassador to Cairo. Peking seems eager to step into the vacuum. That would give Nasser a chance to play China against the Soviet Union. Peking already has given wheat and a $10-million loan to Nasser.

Firearm Link Retained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has okayed for another year the program under which the military gives free ammunition to the National Rifle Association—strongest of the groups trying to influence gun-control legislation.

A defense appropriations bill approved by the House Tuesday included $1.9 million to cover the cost of ammunition given by the Army's Division of Civilian Marksmanship—DCM—to 5,800 shooting clubs around the country.

These clubs all are affiliated with the NRA. An Army regulation permits only NRA members to get the ammunition.

NRA affiliates also are the only groups eligible for another DCM program under which military weapons are lent to civilian shooting clubs for practice and familiarization.

How much of NRA's membership of 823,000 can be attributed to the link with DCM no one can say but NRA mentions the arrangement frequently in its advertisements for new members.

The free ammunition and the lending of the guns are all part of long-standing Army policy. Men who learn about guns as civilians, the theory goes, make good marksmen when they go into uniform.

"These weapons and ammunition are used only for prescribed military courses of fire," NRA's public affairs director, John Hess, said. Every bullet fired is accounted for by NRA, he said.

The advisory body that guides the DCM program, the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice, also has a strong NRA flavor. Its members include the president, executive vice president and four advisory council members of the NRA.

But the embrace is being loosened. An attempt is being made by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor to get a broader range of viewpoints on the board.

And the NRA's authority to be the only source nominating civilians to the board ended last year and these nominations now can come from a variety of sources, said the board's executive officer, Lt. Col. Joseph B. Berry.

Because of its strong opposition to some gun control bills Congress is considering, NRA is often accused of being the dominant force in a powerful national gun lobby.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., author of one of the strictest gun control bills and a principal target for those opposed to strict controls, says the opposition is powerful but not centrally directed.

He gets it from all directions—from the NRA, other members of Congress, gun magazines, manufacturers, weapons importers and gun owners everywhere.

"I think it's a loose thing," Dodd said of the opposition. "I think they're acting independently of one another."

An aide to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., sponsor of a bill less stringest than Dodd's, sees the people fighting the various legislative proposals as large in numbers but hardly a unified force.

"Compared with organized labor and the AMA," he said, "these people aren't even in the same league."

The Dodd bill would outlaw interstate mail-order sales of handguns - pistols and revolvers—to individuals, although a person could make a mail-order purchase by having his local dealer place the order for him.

It would permit mail-order sales of rifles and shotguns, after the seller notified police in the purchaser's area of the impending sale. An additional seven-day wait would then be required before the weapon could be mailed.

The Johnson administration has offered an even tougher bill that would prevent mail-order sales of shotguns, rifles and handguns.

Hruska's bill places no restrictions on mail-order purchases of rifles and shotguns. It permits mail-order purchases of handguns after the notification and seven-day wait procedure.

Five Scott Countians at 4-H Conference

BENTON -- The five members from Scott county who attended State 4-H club week in Columbia were Carol Heisserer, Larry James Howlett, Randy LeGrand, Bernice Landewee, Glenn Dirnberger and Youth Agent Elbert Waide.

The purpose of the program was to provide an opportunity for young people to gain a greater insight into their responsibilities as future citizens.

Supreme Court Ruling Gives Press More Leeway in Reporting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has broadened the freedom of the press to report the activities of public figures involved in newsworthy public events.

The court took this significant step Monday as it threw out a $500,000 libel judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker against The Associated Press in a Texas court.

In the main opinion, Justice John M. Harlan said there was no evidence of personal prejudice, incompetency or malice in the way AP reported Walker's activities at the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford in 1962.

At the same time the court upheld by a 5-4 vote a $460,000 libel judgment won by Wallace Butts, former athletic director and football coach at the University of Georgia, against the Curtis Publishing Co.

Harlan wrote: "The evidence is ample to support a finding of highly unreasonable conduct constituting an extreme departure from the standards of investigation and reporting ordinarily adhered to by responsible publishers."

In the Walker case, five justices, led by Chief Justice Earl Warren, combined to extend the principle of qualified libel immunity, first announced in 1964 in the case of public officials, to accounts about prominent persons who "often play an influential role in ordering society."

"Our citizenry," said Warren, "has a legitimate and substantial interest in the conduct of such persons, and freedom of the press to engage in uninhibited debate about their involvement in public issues and events is as crucial as it is in the case of 'public officials'."

This view was supported by Associate Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Byron R. White.

Black and Douglas said the court should have gone further and adopted a rule that "the First Amendment was intended to leave the press free from the harassment of libel judgments."

However, Black said, he and Douglas marshaled behind Warren's opinion to form a majority and decide the Walker case under the doctrine laid down by the court in 1964.

Ruling then in a New York Times case the court held that a public official cannot recover damages for a libelous statement relating to his official duties unless he can prove actual malice. This means he has to prove the statement was made with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was true or false.

"To me," Warren wrote, "differentiation between 'public figures' and 'public officials' and adoption of separate standards of proof for each has no basis in law, logic, or First Amendment policy."

The damage judgment was based on two AP dispatches. Riots swept the campus the night of Sept. 30, generated by the admission of a Negro, James Meredith, into the university. The AP reported Oct. 2 and 3 that Walker "assumed command of the crowd" and "led a charge of students against federal marshals."

The marshals were at the campus to see that an order by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans that Meredith be admitted was carried out.

All nine justices agreed the judgment won by Walker in a state court in Fort Worth in 1964 could not stand. This strongly indicates none of the 14 other actions instituted by the former general against AP and various newspapers would be upheld by the high court — if they ever reach it.

The damages sought by Walker aggregated $33,250,000.

Harlan, joined by Associate Justices Tom C. Clark, Potter Stewart and Abe Fortas, said The AP's account of Walker's activities "was news which required immediate dissemination."

"The Associated Press," he said, "received the information from a correspondent who was present at the scene of the events and gave every indication of being trustworthy and competent."

Further, Harlan said, reporter Van Savell's dispatches "would not have seemed unreasonable to one familiar with General Walker's prior publicized statements on the underlying controversy."

Here Harlan footnoted his opinion with references to remarks by Walker in radio and television interviews and at news conferences prior to his arrival at Oxford.

In one, Harlan said, Walker called for "violent vocal protest." In another, Harlan wrote, Walker urged defiance of court orders and federal power.

"Considering the necessity for rapid dissemination," Harlan said, "nothing in this series of events gives the slightest hint of a severe departure from accepted publishing standards. We therefore conclude that General Walker should not be entitled to damages from The Associated Press."

The Butts award was based on a March 23, 1963, article in the Saturday Evening Post. Titled "The Story of a Football Fix," it said Butts outlined Georgia's plays to Paul "Bear" Bryant, Alabama football coach, eight days before the 1962 Georgia-Alabama game. Alabama won 35-0.

The article was based on an affidavit by George Burnett, an Atlanta insurance salesman who said he accidentally overheard a telephone conversation in which Butts outlined Georgia's plays to Bryant.

Harlan said the article was not "hot news" and that the Post ignored elementary precautions in publishing it "without substantial independent support." Besides, he said, the Post "knew that Burnett had been placed on probation in connection with bad check charges."

Warren, in a separate concurring opinion, said the evidence disclosed "reckless disregard for the truth."

The dissenters were Black, Douglas, Brennan and White.

Black, joined by Douglas, said the court was reviewing "factual questions" already decided by juries — "a review which is a flat violation of the Seventh Amendment."

Robbers' Inexperience Easily Recognized

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jane Howley, a legal secretary, had a few words of advice for two robbers who walked into her eighth-floor office.

"Why, everyone knows law offices don't keep any money," she said.

"You must not be very experienced if you don't know that."

The robbers, one of them with a gun, left empty-handed Monday. There was one other reason that Miss Howley, 41, figured they were inexperienced. The entire ninth floor of the building is the northern Ohio headquarters of the FBI.

Firearm Link Retained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has okayed for another year the program under which the military gives free ammunition to the National Rifle Association—strongest of the groups trying to influence gun-control legislation.

A defense appropriations bill approved by the House Tuesday included $1.9 million to cover the cost of ammunition given by the Army's Division of Civilian Marksmanship—DCM—to 5,800 shooting clubs around the country.

These clubs all are affiliated with the NRA. An Army regulation permits only NRA members to get the ammunition.

NRA affiliates also are the only groups eligible for another DCM program under which military weapons are lent to civilian shooting clubs for practice and familiarization.

How much of NRA's membership of 823,000 can be attributed to the link with DCM no one can say but NRA mentions the arrangement frequently in its advertisements for new members.

The free ammunition and the lending of the guns are all part of long-standing Army policy. Men who learn about guns as civilians, the theory goes, make good marksmen when they go into uniform.

"These weapons and ammunition are used only for prescribed military courses of fire," NRA's public affairs director, John Hess, said. Every bullet fired is accounted for by NRA, he said.

The advisory body that guides the DCM program, the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice, also has a strong NRA flavor. Its members include the president, executive vice president and four advisory council members of the NRA.

But the embrace is being loosened. An attempt is being made by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor to get a broader range of viewpoints on the board.

And the NRA's authority to be the only source nominating civilians to the board ended last year and these nominations now can come from a variety of sources, said the board's executive officer, Lt. Col. Joseph B. Berry.

Because of its strong opposition to some gun control bills Congress is considering, NRA is often accused of being the dominant force in a powerful national gun lobby.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., author of one of the strictest gun control bills and a principal target for those opposed to strict controls, says the opposition is powerful but not centrally directed.

He gets it from all directions—from the NRA, other members of Congress, gun magazines, manufacturers, weapons importers and gun owners everywhere.

"I think it's a loose thing," Dodd said of the opposition. "I think they're acting independently of one another."

An aide to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., sponsor of a bill less stringest than Dodd's, sees the people fighting the various legislative proposals as large in numbers but hardly a unified force.

"Compared with organized labor and the AMA," he said, "these people aren't even in the same league."

The Dodd bill would outlaw interstate mail-order sales of handguns - pistols and revolvers—to individuals, although a person could make a mail-order purchase by having his local dealer place the order for him.

MRS. JERRY GREENWOOD and her daughter, Tonya, and son, Jay, pose for a picture at their home, route two, East Prairie.

East Prairie Matron Likes To Cook, Teach, Children

Editor's Note: This is the 41st in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

BY RUTH DILLENDER

EAST PRAIRIE - Mrs. Mary Ellen Greenwood likes to cook and teach the pre-school children in Vacation Bible school at the Dogwood Methodist church. She is substitute pianist at the church.

She and her husband, Jerry, and their daughter, Tonya, five years old, and Jay, six months old, live on route one, in the Dogwood community.

Mrs. Greenwood was born and reared in the Dogwood area and her husband is a native of East Prairie.

Mrs. Greenwood attended Murray State University, Murray, Ky., and was employed by the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston in the X-ray laboratory and by the Agriculture Stablization and Conservation Serve Office in New Madrid before her children were born.

Mrs. Greenwood is a member of the Bridges Young Homemakers club. She likes to make artificial floral arrangements.

The couple showed horses for seven years. They won first place in the western pleasure class in the Missouri-Arkansas circuit three years.

Greenwood is associated with Mrs. Greenwood's father, C. J. Stancil, in farming 2,300 acres. They raise cattle.

Mrs. Greenwood has a pendant watch that is a family heirloom. The family has a new camping trailer they plan to use this summer.

Greenwood and his daughter like to take rides on his motorcycle on Sunday afternoon.

Tonya is learning to play piano and Mrs. Greenwood assists her with her music. Tonya will attend kindergarten in East Prairie this fall.

Recipes that Mrs. Greenwood suggests are:

CAKE BROWNIES

Bake on cookie sheet 11 by 16 inches with one-inch rim
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 stick oleo
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup butter milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, sugar and salt together. Blend in oleo, shortening, water and cocoa. Put into sauce pan and bring to boiling point but do not boil.

Pour this mixture over flour mixture and mix well. In another bowl, mix eggs, soda, buttermilk and vanilla. Pour this over first combined mixtures and bake at 350 degrees only 20 minutes, no longer.

Apply icing while hot.

Icing:
1/2 stick oleo
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 tablespoon vanilla
6 tablespoons milk
1 box powdered sugar
1/2 cup pecans

Mix oleo, cocoa and milk in sauce pan and bring to boil. Remove from heat and add powered sugar, nuts and vanilla.

Mrs. Greenwood says that the brownies can be served hot or kept in refrigerator several days. They will remain moist.

BARBECUE SAUCE

1/2 bottle catsup
2/3 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
4 tablespoons mustard
4 teaspoons red pepper
1 bottle vinegar

Mix well: catsup, mustard, salt, red peppers and brown sugar. Be sure to dissolve brown sugar entirely. Then add vinegar. If not hot enough, add more red pepper to taste.

PARTY PUNCH

1/2 gallon orange sherbert or raspberry sherbert
2 cans Hawaiian punch, use either pink or yellow according to which sherbert used.
1 bottle ginger ale
1 bottle Seven-Up
1 package cherry or orange Kool Aid

Mix all liquid ingredients into punch bowl. Mix well, add sherbert and stir. This will form a milky foamy topping on punch. Serves 36 to 50.

ID Card Applications To Be Received

DEXTER -- The Missouri department of liquor control will accept applications at Dexter for the new liquor identification cards being issued by the department.

T. J. Greer, liquor agent, said pictures will be made and applications filled out from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the City Hall basement at Dexter.

Persons age 21 or older are eligible to obtain the cards, which are an aid to liquor dealers in determining if the buyer is of legal age. The liquor department encourages tavern operators and package store owners to accept no other form of identification.

Malden Library To Be Dedicated

MALDEN -- The Malden branch of Dunklin county library and the Malden historical museum will hold an open house June 25 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the new building at 113 North Madison.

The building, which houses the library and museum, will be dedicated to Mrs. Elise Kochtitzky Byrd in a ceremony conducted by city officials at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

I strongly suspect that there is a functional relation between freedom and development, as well as between development and nation-state. The weight of historical example is on the side of this argument. Pharaohs built pyramids and Fascists made the trains run on time, but neither succeeded in creating a highly specialized modern society dedicated to relativism and pragmatism in the settlement of dispute, and open to individuals to seek their places according to what they have been able to become and not according to what they are born to. The fact that the Western democracies have not been able to achieve perfection on these scores is no reason to deny all validity to the social meaning of Western libertarianism, science, and pragmatism.

K. H. Silvert.

The sense of humour is the just balance of all the faculties of man, the best security against the pride of knowledge and the conceits of the imagination, the strongest inducement to submit with a wise and pious patience to the vicissitudes of human existence.

Richard Monckton Milnes (Lord Houghton)

Now! Big Company Group Insurance For Smaller Businesses

Now, businesses with less than 25 employees are eligible for a new, low-cost group health and life insurance program that offers coverage you'd expect to find only in big company group insurance plans.

It's P.E.P. (Progressive Employers Program) — from Mutual of Omaha and its life insurance affiliate, United of Omaha. P.E.P. solves the salary continuance problem for the small employer and helps reduce labor turnover by providing important financial security for the employee and his family.

Boyer Low Bidder on Caruthersville Housing

CARUTHERSVILLE -- A Sikeston firm submitted the low bid on Caruthersville's 184 unit low-rent housing project, the Housing Authority announced and now final approval to begin construction must come from the federal government.

Ralph E. Boyer, the Sikeston contractor, submitted a bid of $1,765,500 for the construction job which will be carried out on three different sites within the city.

There were four other bids submitted, executive director Howard Teeters said Thursday, and all were within the limits allowed for the project. Most of them were close, Teeters stated, but the bid by Boyer was considerably lower than the other four.

The other firms submitting bids were Parthenon Construction Co. of Sikeston, Buckley Construction Co. of Fenton, Mo., McDaniel Brothers of Jonesboro, Ark., and Forcum-Lannon, Inc. of Dyersburg. The bids were opened in the office of the Caruthersville Housing Authority last Wednesday afternoon.

One hold up which might delay the awarding of the contract involves a routine legal suit the Housing Authority had to file in order to get a clear title on one of the three sites selected for the low-rent units.

Teeters stated Friday that there has been no indication that the legal action will be contested but explained the move was necessary since some of the property had been sold under tax bills sometime in the past.

The regional office of the Federal Housing Authority in Fort Worth is not likely to approve the contracts and allow work to get underway prior to the settlement of the legal action. However, a planner from Fort Worth indicated the clear-title suit probably will not cause much delay, if any.

While it is difficult to state any schedule with accuracy, hope the contracts will be awarded by late July and actual work on the project could get underway sometime in August. This, he stressed, is purely tentative.

Indications from the Housing Authority and engineers who are planning the project were that Boyer's firm seems completely acceptable for the contract. The firm has done similar projects in the past.

Five Injured In Two-Car Crash

CAIRO -- Five persons were injured in a two-car accident at 7:20 p.m. Sunday near the intersection of highways 37 and 51 north of Cairo, Illinois State Police reported.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Walter L. Richards, 27, Cairo, and Eura McClendon, 55, Charleston, Mo.

Vernon Moore, 17, Cairo, a passenger in the Richards car, suffered minor injuries. He was treated at St. Mary's Hospital and released.

Injured in the McClendon car were the driver and three passengers, Dossie Hodges, 41, Lennie Jones, 65, and Catherine Hodges, 38, all of Charleston. The latter three were transferred from St. Mary's Hospital to Community Hospital at Sikeston. The driver was treated and released.

State Police said the Richards car, going north, ran off the right side of the road, came back onto the highway, crossed the center line and hit the McClendon vehicle head-on.

Enrollment for Oran Head Start

ORAN -- Enrollment for an eight-week Head Start program is being taken this week at the public school.

Children who will enter first grade in the fall may enroll. Parents enrolling their children should bring their birth certificates and immunization information.

The summer program will be for 30 children. Transportation will be provided each day. The program will last from 8:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. each day.

The tentative starting date for this program is June 26. Tentative plans are for a week of training for all workers to be held at the Portageville office next week.

Recently, an old friend of mine from Texas paid me a visit. We took him to Disneyland, and while we were there he decided to call the airport to confirm his plane reservations for the next day. He dialed the operator and she instructed him to deposit 35 cents in the phone.

Our Texas friend was quite surprised. "Why that's ridiculous," he told the girl. "Back home in Texas we call down to hell and back for a dime!"

"I know, sir," the operator replied. "But that is a local call."

MRS. JERRY GREENWOOD and her daughter, Tonya, and son, Jay, pose for a picture at their home, route two, East Prairie.

East Prairie Matron Likes To Cook, Teach, Children

Editor's Note: This is the 41st in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

BY RUTH DILLENDER

EAST PRAIRIE - Mrs. Mary Ellen Greenwood likes to cook and teach the pre-school children in Vacation Bible school at the Dogwood Methodist church. She is substitute pianist at the church.

She and her husband, Jerry, and their daughter, Tonya, five years old, and Jay, six months old, live on route one, in the Dogwood community.

Mrs. Greenwood was born and reared in the Dogwood area and her husband is a native of East Prairie.

Mrs. Greenwood attended Murray State University, Murray, Ky., and was employed by the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston in the X-ray laboratory and by the Agriculture Stablization and Conservation Serve Office in New Madrid before her children were born.

Mrs. Greenwood is a member of the Bridges Young Homemakers club. She likes to make artificial floral arrangements.

The couple showed horses for seven years. They won first place in the western pleasure class in the Missouri-Arkansas circuit three years.

Greenwood is associated with Mrs. Greenwood's father, C. J. Stancil, in farming 2,300 acres. They raise cattle.

Mrs. Greenwood has a pendant watch that is a family heirloom. The family has a new camping trailer they plan to use this summer.

Greenwood and his daughter like to take rides on his motorcycle on Sunday afternoon.

Tonya is learning to play piano and Mrs. Greenwood assists her with her music. Tonya will attend kindergarten in East Prairie this fall.

Recipes that Mrs. Greenwood suggests are:

CAKE BROWNIES

Bake on cookie sheet 11 by 16 inches with one-inch rim
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 stick oleo
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup butter milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, sugar and salt together. Blend in oleo, shortening, water and cocoa. Put into sauce pan and bring to boiling point but do not boil.

Pour this mixture over flour mixture and mix well. In another bowl, mix eggs, soda, buttermilk and vanilla. Pour this over first combined mixtures and bake at 350 degrees only 20 minutes, no longer.

Apply icing while hot.

Icing:
1/2 stick oleo
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 tablespoon vanilla
6 tablespoons milk
1 box powdered sugar
1/2 cup pecans

Mix oleo, cocoa and milk in sauce pan and bring to boil. Remove from heat and add powered sugar, nuts and vanilla.

Mrs. Greenwood says that the brownies can be served hot or kept in refrigerator several days. They will remain moist.

BARBECUE SAUCE

1/2 bottle catsup
2/3 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
4 tablespoons mustard
4 teaspoons red pepper
1 bottle vinegar

Mix well: catsup, mustard, salt, red peppers and brown sugar. Be sure to dissolve brown sugar entirely. Then add vinegar. If not hot enough, add more red pepper to taste.

PARTY PUNCH

1/2 gallon orange sherbert or raspberry sherbert
2 cans Hawaiian punch, use either pink or yellow according to which sherbert used.
1 bottle ginger ale
1 bottle Seven-Up
1 package cherry or orange Kool Aid

Mix all liquid ingredients into punch bowl. Mix well, add sherbert and stir. This will form a milky foamy topping on punch. Serves 36 to 50.

ID Card Applications To Be Received

DEXTER -- The Missouri department of liquor control will accept applications at Dexter for the new liquor identification cards being issued by the department.

T. J. Greer, liquor agent, said pictures will be made and applications filled out from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the City Hall basement at Dexter.

Persons age 21 or older are eligible to obtain the cards, which are an aid to liquor dealers in determining if the buyer is of legal age. The liquor department encourages tavern operators and package store owners to accept no other form of identification.

Malden Library To Be Dedicated

MALDEN -- The Malden branch of Dunklin county library and the Malden historical museum will hold an open house June 25 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the new building at 113 North Madison.

The building, which houses the library and museum, will be dedicated to Mrs. Elise Kochtitzky Byrd in a ceremony conducted by city officials at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

I strongly suspect that there is a functional relation between freedom and development, as well as between development and nation-state. The weight of historical example is on the side of this argument. Pharaohs built pyramids and Fascists made the trains run on time, but neither succeeded in creating a highly specialized modern society dedicated to relativism and pragmatism in the settlement of dispute, and open to individuals to seek their places according to what they have been able to become and not according to what they are born to. The fact that the Western democracies have not been able to achieve perfection on these scores is no reason to deny all validity to the social meaning of Western libertarianism, science, and pragmatism.

Boyer Low Bidder on Caruthersville Housing

CARUTHERSVILLE -- A Sikeston firm submitted the low bid on Caruthersville's 184 unit low-rent housing project, the Housing Authority announced and now final approval to begin construction must come from the federal government.

Ralph E. Boyer, the Sikeston contractor, submitted a bid of $1,765,500 for the construction job which will be carried out on three different sites within the city.

There were four other bids submitted, executive director Howard Teeters said Thursday, and all were within the limits allowed for the project. Most of them were close, Teeters stated, but the bid by Boyer was considerably lower than the other four.

One hold up which might delay the awarding of the contract involves a routine legal suit the Housing Authority had to file in order to get a clear title on one of the three sites selected for the low-rent units.

Teeters stated Friday that there has been no indication that the legal action will be contested but explained the move was necessary since some of the property had been sold under tax bills sometime in the past.

While it is difficult to state any schedule with accuracy, hope the contracts will be awarded by late July and actual work on the project could get underway sometime in August. This, he stressed, is purely tentative.

Indications from the Housing Authority and engineers who are planning the project were that Boyer's firm seems completely acceptable for the contract. The firm has done similar projects in the past.

"WHAT'S A "SUPPLEMENTAL" WATER SYSTEM?

What's a "supplemental" water system? According to the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, it's an individual well used by a homeowner to supplement the water he gets from the local utility during periods of drought, when the utility can't keep up with the demand. Over 50,000 supplemental wells are drilled each year. This is in addition to the half million that are drilled for families that depend on wells for 100 percent of their water supply.

Educated Missourians Are Readers, Others Watch and Listen

COLUMBIA, Mo., --When contrasted with people of other lands, Americans are said to have insatiable appetites for the mass media. Quite unlike citizens in underdeveloped countries where a village grocer may possess the only daily link with the outside world -- a radio-- Americans from all stations in life surround themselves with televisions, radios, newspapers, magazines, newsreels, and reports of all varities. Scarcely an event of general interest occurs without comprehensive coverage by the mass media of communications.

But the fact that Americans consume the media in large quantities does not mean that they are necessarily well-informed. Despite the best efforts of the journalism profession many people do not approach the media for information. They are spectators seeking entertainment. Thus, for example, in-depth coverage of important public issues or educational television programs consistently run sorry seconds to variety shows, westerns, or situation comedies. The front page and the editorial section are skimmed while the funnies and the letters from the lovelorn are studied.

The education of the media consumer may be an important factor determining how much and what he reads, listens to, or watches.

In an effort to see how education is related to media consumption, the Public Opinion Survey Unit asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians a series of questions about their exposure to television, radio, newspapers, and magazines. The results indicate that the extent of formal education makes a slight difference in the frequency of watching television news coverage, but for all other media it makes a great deal of difference.

Three-fourths of all adult Missourians watch televised news reports on a regular basis. Those with higher education are somewhat more likely to watch them. The most popular times for viewing the news are around the 6:00 o'clock dinner hour and at 10:00 p.m. Nearly 50 percent of the sample claimed to watch televised news programs at those hours. An equal number watched the sports review.

Missourians turn to radio news during breakfast. Forty-seven percent of the sample regularly listened to news reports on radio at 8:00 a.m. or before. But consumption of radio news differs greatly by education: those with the least education and the greatest education rely on radio news far less than those in the middle ranges. Sixty-one percent of those whose formal education stopped in grade school and 49 percent of those who had pursued graduate or professional degrees listened to radio news regularly; one the other hand, 67 percent of those with high school educations and 70 percent of those who had gone to college listened to radio news coverage on a regular basis.

The greatest differences occur, however, when the medium changes from something that can be watched or heard to something that must be read. The relationship between extent of formal education and the number of newspapers and magazines Missourians regularly read is vividly demonstrated in Table 1 and 2 below. The POSU sample was asked: "Is there any newspaper you read regularly . . . .Which one is that? Are there any others?" "How about magazines? Which ones are they?" The results are presented according to the level of formal education.

TABLE 1. NEWSPAPERS

No. Read Regularly	Level of Education: Grade	High	College	Advanced
None	22%	6%	3%	5%
1	39	37	38	15
2	33	45	47	49
3 or more	6	12	12	31

TABLE 2. MAGAZINES

No. Read Regularly	Level of Education: Grade	High	College	Advanced
None	50%	24%	10%	8%
1-2	31	40	39	26
3-4	15	23	31	35
5 or more	4	13	20	31
	100%	100%	100%	100%

Both tables indicate that, in almost all instances, a higher level of education is associated with regular readership of a larger number of newspapers and magazines. The relatively high percentages of people whose formal education did not extend beyond grade school who also fail to read newspapers and magazines (22 percent and 50 percent) hints at the functional illiteracy of a large segment of Missouri population. (32 percent of the total adult sample were in the "grade school" category.) To be sure, this does not guarantee that those with greater exposure to the written word will be more well-informed. It may mean simply that more highly-educated people find reading to be more entertaining than listening and watching.

Certainly the reverse is true at the lower end of the educational ladder. The lower the education, generally, the greater the number of hours spent watching television. This can be seen in Table 3.

TABLE 3. TELEVISION VIEWING

No. Hours Weekly Viewing Television	Level of Education: Grade	High	College	Advanced
20 hours or less	72%	74%	81%	97%
More than 20 hours	28	26	19	3
	100%	100%	100%	100%

When one recalls that watching television news coverage is more common among those with higher educations and the fact that news coverage seldom accounts for more than 20 hours of a video week, it becomes clear that, for people with less education, television is primarily a medium of entertainment rather than a medium of information.

When all the forms of media exposure were examined together, the Missouri Poll found that, at a minimum, 20 percent of all adult Missourian's are exempt from any public information coverage--other than perhaps word-of-mouth--in a normal week.

For them, the mass media either do not exist or they are not sources of information about public affiars.

The American Automobile Association says the cost of insurance, registration and depreciation of a car has risen from an average of $807 a year in 1965 to $982.

The largest diamond ever found in the South was the Cullinan, weighing 3,106 carats, or about one and a third pounds. It was discovered near Petroria in 1905.

Court Ruling Transfers Trust Fund Assets to MU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The board of trustees of the University of Kansas City has been ordered to turn over all assets of trusts willed by Miss Lena Haag to the University to curators of the University of Missouri.

The ruling was handed down Tuesday by Judge Harr A. Hall of the Jackson County Circuit Court in a declaratory judgment suit.

Miss Haag died July 15, 1951 and her will set up a trust fund of $100,000 to be called the "Lena Haag Fund for Deserving Students." Income from the fund is to be used for loans to needy and deserving students of the University of Kansas City.

After her death, however, the university became a branch of the University of Missouri.

The question before the court, Judge Hall said, was whether the University of Kansas City ceased to exist within terms of the will, which would have allowed Park College to benefit from such a change.

The action of Miss Haag during her lifetime and the wording of the will "clearly indicate that her interest was in the university continuing as an educational institution rather than its particular corporate name or whether it received its financial support from public or private funds," the judge ruled.

He said the school "as she knew it continued to exist after the transfer the same as before," and he ruled that the educational institution named in the will continues to exist within the meaning of the will.

The will also set up the Lena Haag endowment fund for the University of Kansas City "with income to be used to establish and maintain teaching chairs in some departments to be known as the Lena Haag chairs. Also, $500,000 was donated for the school's liberal arts building to be named Haag Hall as a memorial to her parents and herself.

Venus' Arms

It is generally believed by art authorities that the statue of Venus de Milo had arms. When unearthed, it was in two parts and pieces of the arms were found with it, as well as a pedestal with an inscription. These later disappeared and have never again been found.

"WHAT'S A "SUPPLEMENTAL" WATER SYSTEM?

What's a "supplemental" water system? According to the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, it's an individual well used by a homeowner to supplement the water he gets from the local utility during periods of drought, when the utility can't keep up with the demand. Over 50,000 supplemental wells are drilled each year. This is in addition to the half million that are drilled for families that depend on wells for 100 percent of their water supply.

If you'd like to know more about the possibility of having your own well, write for a booklet titled "How Water Wells Can Help You Solve Your Water Problems -- Easily and Economically." It's available free from the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606.

HOLE IN THE HEAD

"Open wide!" demanded the dentist as he began his examination of a new patient.

"Good grief!" he exclaimed. "You've got the biggest cavity I've ever seen -- the biggest cavity I've ever seen!"

"You didn't have to repeat it!" snapped the patient.

"I didn,'t," said the dentist. "That was the echo!"

Educated Missourians Are Readers, Others Watch and Listen

COLUMBIA, Mo., --When contrasted with people of other lands, Americans are said to have insatiable appetites for the mass media. Quite unlike citizens in underdeveloped countries where a village grocer may possess the only daily link with the outside world -- a radio-- Americans from all stations in life surround themselves with televisions, radios, newspapers, magazines, newsreels, and reports of all varities. Scarcely an event of general interest occurs without comprehensive coverage by the mass media of communications.

But the fact that Americans consume the media in large quantities does not mean that they are necessarily well-informed. Despite the best efforts of the journalism profession many people do not approach the media for information. They are spectators seeking entertainment. Thus, for example, in-depth coverage of important public issues or educational television programs consistently run sorry seconds to variety shows, westerns, or situation comedies. The front page and the editorial section are skimmed while the funnies and the letters from the lovelorn are studied.

The education of the media consumer may be an important factor determining how much and what he reads, listens to, or watches.

In an effort to see how education is related to media consumption, the Public Opinion Survey Unit asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians a series of questions about their exposure to television, radio, newspapers, and magazines. The results indicate that the extent of formal education makes a slight difference in the frequency of watching television news coverage, but for all other media it makes a great deal of difference.

Three-fourths of all adult Missourians watch televised news reports on a regular basis. Those with higher education are somewhat more likely to watch them. The most popular times for viewing the news are around the 6:00 o'clock dinner hour and at 10:00 p.m. Nearly 50 percent of the sample claimed to watch televised news programs at those hours. An equal number watched the sports review.

Missourians turn to radio news during breakfast. Forty-seven percent of the sample regularly listened to news reports on radio at 8:00 a.m. or before. But consumption of radio news differs greatly by education: those with the least education and the greatest education rely on radio news far less than those in the middle ranges. Sixty-one percent of those whose formal education stopped in grade school and 49 percent of those who had pursued graduate or professional degrees listened to radio news regularly; one the other hand, 67 percent of those with high school educations and 70 percent of those who had gone to college listened to radio news coverage on a regular basis.

The greatest differences occur, however, when the medium changes from something that can be watched or heard to something that must be read. The relationship between extent of formal education and the number of newspapers and magazines Missourians regularly read is vividly demonstrated in Table 1 and 2 below. The POSU sample was asked: "Is there any newspaper you read regularly . . . .Which one is that? Are there any others?" "How about magazines? Which ones are they?" The results are presented according to the level of formal education.

Senate Holds To Lower Pay Scale

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate has settled on $7,200 a year for the legislative pay scale compared with the present $4,800.

The House voted for $9,000 with a bonus for the speaker, whose salary would have been the same as the lieutenant governor, now $12,000.

But the Senate went back to its original $7,200 figure and cut out the extra money for the speaker so the bill must return to the House for final action.

Meanwhile a bill to ban wiretapping or other electronic snooping appeared dead for this session. It was scheduled for a House committee hearing Tuesday night but the sponsor failed to appear.

Also apparently dead is a bill that would have given the legislature instead of the Conservation Commission power to set hunting and fishing fees.

The Senate Judiciary Committee heard proponents of the measure Tuesday but put off hearing opponents until next week, giving it practically no chance of passage even if approved by the committee.

The Senate passed and sent to the governor bills to move the statue of Gen. John J. Pershing from the Capitol grounds to Pershing State Park at Laclede, and another to allow milk processors to package milk in sizes of half gallons or multiples thereof. Some want to sell 2½ gallon cartons.

Sent back to the House with Senate changes were bills to:

Require trucks carrying sand, gravel or other loose material to have protective coverings.

Require trucks without back fenders to have mud flaps.

CANCER'S WARNING SIGNALS

1 Unusual bleeding or discharge
2 A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere
3 A sore that does not heal
4 Change in bowel or bladder habits
5 Hoarseness or cough
6 Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing
7 Change in a wart or mole

These signals do not usually mean cancer, but they are warnings; if one lasts more than two weeks, it is important to go to your doctor.

Grants Seen Threat To Governments

The growing size and complexity of grants made by greater to lesser government bodies poses a threat to the fiscal well - being and independence of the smaller units dependent on the higher governments' largesse, a new Tax Foundation, Inc. study said.

In a 64-page Handbook of State and Local Government Finance, C. Lowell Harriss, Economic Consultant to the Foundation and Columbia University Professor of Economics, said that Federal government influence through grants "continues to multiply and the pattern of controls has become so largely fixed that modification proves very difficult."

In the 1954-65 period, Federal grants to states almost quadrupled from $2,668 to $9,874 million, while Federal monies paid local governments increased similarly from $298 to $1,155 million. In the same period, funds received by local governments from state governments more than doubled, from $5,635 to $14,077 million.

The Handbook, first of its kind, is intended, said the Foundation, as a guide to the layman wishing to know more about state-local government and the factors influencing those governments' spending and taxing.

The book's eight chapters cover such points as the reasons for the growth of state-local spending; how state and local bodies are trying to effect economies and encourage efficiency but are handicapped by past decisions made on spending; and the criteria for judging a revenue system.

Pressures to increase state-local spending, said the Foundation study, remain powerful, despite increases in tax rates and imposition of new taxes which together have increased total yields by about 120 percent in 10 years.

The book noted that although state-local revenue systems are yielding far more than only a few years ago, they cannot pay for everything, and the states turn to borrowing or Federal grants to make ends meet. Gross debt of state-local governments has more than quadrupled in the 1940-1964 period, from $20.3 billion to $92.2 billion.

In the chapter on Federal-state-local government financial relations, Professor Harriss said that Americans who hope to use government to force one group to pay for benefits to others often press for these grants by pointing out what desirable things will result, "with little or no mention of how the cost will be met." State and local lawmakers feel compelled to accept Federal money when offered. "To get the grant," said the Handbook, "even when the Federal dollars are a small fraction of the total, the receiving government may need to modify its operations to meet Federal requirements."

The amount of spending over which state-local government officials now have "effective control," according to the Handbook, may be only a small fraction of the whole spending budget of the particular government entity. "The strongest pressures," said Professor Harriss, "will usually be those which require great spending." Some of this will come from inside government, as from the agency staffs; some from outside government, from neighborhood groups, from PTA's, highway users, etc.

Thieu Enters Race Against Ky

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu announced today that he will run for president in the Sept. 3 election against his military colleague Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

Thieu, a lieutenant general in the army, said the fact that both he and Air Vice Marshal Ky were running would not split the military.

But unless Ky or Thieu pulls out of the race, they will be competing for the votes of 600,000 members of the armed forces. To prevent diversion of military interest from the war effort, American officials had tried to persuade Thieu not to run.

In Scottsdale, Ariz., a Mormon church planned a western - style barbecue as a fund - raising benefit. To attract a sizable crowd from around the countryside, they hit upon the idea of using Indian smoke signals. But, to their surprise, they couldn't find an Indian who knew how to send smoke signals. "We never use them," said an Apache. "We've forgotten how," said a Hopi.

The chairman of the Colorado River Tribes admitted that he had once made a smoke signal when he worked for the movies. "But if I were to send up a smoke signal today," he said, "it would have to be one big white puff and two dark puffs -- the Indian Bureau requires two carbons of everything." Don Dedra

Indian Calumets

The ceremonial pipes, or calumets, of the Indians were respected symbols and were used only on special occasions. One end of the calumet was usually decorated with the head of a bird and colored feathers were added for special meanings, such as red for war and green for peace or safe conduct.

Senate Holds To Lower Pay Scale

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate has settled on $7,200 a year for the legislative pay scale compared with the present $4,800.

The House voted for $9,000 with a bonus for the speaker, whose salary would have been the same as the lieutenant governor, now $12,000.

But the Senate went back to its original $7,200 figure and cut out the extra money for the speaker so the bill must return to the House for final action.

Meanwhile a bill to ban wiretapping or other electronic snooping appeared dead for this session. It was scheduled for a House committee hearing Tuesday night but the sponsor failed to appear.

Also apparently dead is a bill that would have given the legislature instead of the Conservation Commission power to set hunting and fishing fees.

The Senate Judiciary Committee heard proponents of the measure Tuesday but put off hearing opponents until next week, giving it practically no chance of passage even if approved by the committee.

The Senate passed and sent to the governor bills to move the statue of Gen. John J. Pershing from the Capitol grounds to Pershing State Park at Laclede, and another to allow milk processors to package milk in sizes of half gallons or multiples thereof. Some want to sell 2½ gallon cartons.

Sent back to the House with Senate changes were bills to:

Require trucks carrying sand, gravel or other loose material to have protective coverings.

Require trucks without back fenders to have mud flaps.

CANCER'S WARNING SIGNALS

1 Unusual bleeding or discharge
2 A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere
3 A sore that does not heal
4 Change in bowel or bladder habits
5 Hoarseness or cough
6 Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing
7 Change in a wart or mole

These signals do not usually mean cancer, but they are warnings; if one lasts more than two weeks, it is important to go to your doctor.

Services for Traffic Crash Victim Thursday

Edward L. Payne

Services for Edward Leon Payne, 47, who lost his life in an automobile collision Monday near Mt. Carmel, Ill., will be in the First Assemby of God church, Thursday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in the Garden of Memories cemetery with Welsh Funeral Home in charge.

Payne was returning from a visit in Michigan, not in Portland, Me., and Kokomo, Ind., as first reported.

It was reported in yesterday's Standard that his car was passing another vehicle when the accident occurred. Reports from the sheriff's office stated that Payne's auto was struck headon by a car occupied by Richard M. Dudley and Jerry P. Lovellette, both of Mt. Carmel, which was passing another car.

Payne's auto was reported to have come almost at a complete stop. It was off the shoulder of the road.

O. S. Payne of Memphis, a brother, is among the survivors.

Mrs. Payne was transferred from a Mt. Carmel hospital to an East St. Louis hospital today. She has two broken legs, broken hip and a broken jaw bone.

Wage Dispute Headed for Supreme Court

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)— A temporary court order restraining the federal government from enforcing provisions of the federal wage law will remain in effect until the U. S. Supreme Court rules on the case.

That was the only unanimous decision by a panel of three federal judges Tuesday as it handed down three differing opinions.

The judges ruled 2-1 that minimum wage provisions of the 1966 legislation were valid. But one of the majority judges said overtime provisions might be unconstitutional, and the third judge said both wage and overtime provisions are unconstitutional.

Maryland and 25 other states, including Kansas and Missouri, attacked the 1966 amendments to the fair labor standards act.

The law was to take effect Feb. 1. It requires a minimum hourly wage of $1.15 for employes of public schools, hospitals, nursing homes and institutions for the mentally and physically handicapped. It would increase the minimum wage to $1.60 an hour by Feb. 1, 1971. It provides for overtime for nonexecutive, nonprofessional and nonadministrative workers in these institutions who work more than 40 hours a week.

At the heart of the case is the question of where federal authority ends and states' rights begin.

John H. May Service Today

MORLEY - Services for John H. May, 72, were today at 2 p.m. in the Morley Baptist church, with the Rev. Grady Ethridge officiating. He died Sunday morning in the Missouri Pacific hospital in St. Louis.

Burial was in the old Morley cemetery, with Nunnelee Funeral Home in Sikeston in charge.

Pallbearers were Don May, Tom May, Jerry May, Jim May, Joe May and Jim O'Neal.

TO CHANGE THE THINGS I CAN

She, feeling a little eerie,
Said "The noise annoys me."
The night was dark and dreary,
And, thinking to make her carefree,
I said, "It's only the shutters;
You cannot stop the wind."
"No, but I can close the shutters --"
She did, and I was chagrined.

Mighty Mo Tops Levees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri River levees in the Waverly, Mo., area were broken today as flood crests hit that section.

Farm families were evacuated north of the river as the Sugar Tree and Wakenda levees and one private levee owned by the Davis-Noland-Merrill Grain Co. of Kansas City were broken and the bottomland was inundated.

Army Engineers expect the stream to crest today at Waverly at 26.2 feet, 8.2 feet above flood stage.

Little rain was in prospect today for the flood area and tributaries of the Big Muddy were receding from dangerous levels.

At Kansas City Tuesday night the river crested about two feet above its banks.

At Lexington the stream was expected to crest about 8½ feet above flood stage.

This was enough to impede traffic on old sections of U. S. 24 west of town and on Missouri 13 north of the Lexington bridge. It was also enough to flood about 10,000 river bottom acres. It was not high enough to flood the Lexington waterworks, and the town itself is on high bluffs.

The Missouri was scheduled to go 8½ feet above bankfull later today at Waverly, 4½ feet at Glasgow. It is expected to crest six feet above bankfull at Boonville and a foot above at Jefferson City on Thursday.

Crests 7½ to 11½ feet above bankfull were scheduled for today and Thursday at Chillicothe, Sumner and Brunswick on the Grand River, which drains a large area of north-central and northwest Missouri and is a notorious flooder.

At those levels, the river cuts back roads, touches some main highways and covers lowland farm lands — something it does early every year and sometimes three times a year. Few houses and buildings are involved.

The passing of widespread and heavy downpours in northwest Missouri led the weather bureau to exclaim:

"After 10 long days, a nice evening finally came to Missouri."

South - central and northeast Kansas were under several storm watches Tuesday night, but little action developed.

Tornado funnels were sighted near Meade and Russell in western Kansas, but there were no reports of damage.

The forecast for today: Partly cloudy with a chance of scattered thunderstorms.

Billboard Bill Advances

The Missouri Senate passed and sent to the House today a billboard regulatory measure designed to meet federal highway beautification standards.

The vote was 20-11.

Opponents said it would destroy the billboard industry and could cost the state as much as $150 million. Others objected to Missouri being made a guinea pig in setting billboard standards.

They urged delay until Congress decides how stringent the regulations should be.

Sponsors said Missouri could lose $10 million in federal high way funds because the present law, passed last year, is not acceptable to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

The House has passed a much looser bill which is still in Senate committee.

After years of trying the legislature finally passed a bill to abolish the open range in the few Ozark areas where livestock still is allows to roam at large.

The Senate accepted a House change making the effective date Jan. 1, 1969, then sent the bill to the governor on a 32-1 vote.

In years past the bill has sometimes passed the Senate but has always aroused heated opposition in the old rural dominated House.

Also passed and sent to the governor was a bill to make Missouri a member of the multistate Tax Compact Commission to which 10 states now belong.

Dodd Makes Impassioned Plea to Fellow Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an impassioned appeal to his fellow senators, Thomas J. Dodd asked today if any of them knew of any time he had lied, or cheated or broken his word to them.

The 60-year-old Connecticut Democrat, defending himself against charges of financial misconduct, pounded one fist against his other hand and cried:

"What has happened to the United States Senate if I can't look you in the eye and say this is a fact."

"I've talked with you, I've walked among you, I've lived with you for more than eight years," Dodd said. "Does any one of you know any time I have lied to you, ever cheated, ever done a dishonorable thing, ever given you my word and then done something else?"

Dodd spoke in his own defense in the second day of debate on the Senate ethics committee's recommendation that he be censured for conduct that "tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

After a 14-month investigation, the bipartisan committee unanimously reported that Dodd had converted $116,083 in political funds to his own use and had double-billed for travel expenses.

Dodd said he had nothing to do with billing the government for travel expenses also paid by private organizations, and declared that if his colleagues judged him a thief, they should expel him.

He said he had nothing to do with the double billing and pinned the blame on sloppy bookkeeping, particularly by Michael V. O'Hare, a former employe who was one of the chief witnesses against the senator.

O'Hare, one of four ex-employes who took some 4,000 documents from Dodd's office and turned over copies to columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Jack Anderson, testified that he had double billed on Dodd's instructions.

Dodd said that O'Hare was acting out of vengeance after his girl friend, Terry Golden, was dismissed by the senator.

"How can you take the testimony of such a man as credible and reliable and say I'm a thief because he says so?" Dodd cried.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the ethics committee chairman, said at the start of the censure debate Monday that he found O'Hare's testimony "very convincing."

"It's Dodd against O'Hare," said the senator, who contended there was not an iota of evidence to support his former bookkeeper's testimony.

"Perhaps I shouldn't blame the committee for being deceived by O'Hare," Dodd said. "He deceived me. He is a very deceptive fellow."

A member of the Senate since 1959, the white-haired Connecticut Democrat spoke slowly and forcefully and appealed to his colleagues to decide the issue on its merits and without political considerations.

He hit hardest at the charge he bilked the government on travel expenses. He said if he is judged a thief, he should be expelled from the Senate.

Dodd acknowledged the use of some campaign and testimonial funds for personal expenses — but not to the extent reported by the bipartisan ethics committee.

The wife of the 60-year-old senator and four of their six children listened from the gallery as he said "a man's reputation is his most precious possession" and appealed for justice, not mercy.

More than 80 of the 100 senators were in their seats and listened attentively.

Edward L. Payne

Services for Edward Leon Payne, 47, who lost his life in an automobile collision Monday near Mt. Carmel, Ill., will be in the First Assemby of God church, Thursday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in the Garden of Memories cemetery with Welsh Funeral Home in charge.

Payne was returning from a visit in Michigan, not in Portland, Me., and Kokomo, Ind., as first reported.

It was reported in yesterday's Standard that his car was passing another vehicle when the accident occurred. Reports from the sheriff's office stated that Payne's auto was struck headon by a car occupied by Richard M. Dudley and Jerry P. Lovellette, both of Mt. Carmel, which was passing another car.

Payne's auto was reported to have come almost at a complete stop. It was off the shoulder of the road.

O. S. Payne of Memphis, a brother, is among the survivors.

Mrs. Payne was transferred from a Mt. Carmel hospital to an East St. Louis hospital today. She has two broken legs, broken hip and a broken jaw bone.

Wage Dispute Headed for Supreme Court

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)— A temporary court order restraining the federal government from enforcing provisions of the federal wage law will remain in effect until the U. S. Supreme Court rules on the case.

That was the only unanimous decision by a panel of three federal judges Tuesday as it handed down three differing opinions.

The judges ruled 2-1 that minimum wage provisions of the 1966 legislation were valid. But one of the majority judges said overtime provisions might be unconstitutional, and the third judge said both wage and overtime provisions are unconstitutional.

Maryland and 25 other states, including Kansas and Missouri, attacked the 1966 amendments to the fair labor standards act.

The law was to take effect Feb. 1. It requires a minimum hourly wage of $1.15 for employes of public schools, hospitals, nursing homes and institutions for the mentally and physically handicapped. It would increase the minimum wage to $1.60 an hour by Feb. 1, 1971.

It provides for overtime for nonexecutive, nonprofessional and nonadministrative workers in these institutions who work more than 40 hours a week.

At the heart of the case is the question of where federal authority ends and states' rights begin.

John H. May Service Today

MORLEY - Services for John H. May, 72, were today at 2 p.m. in the Morley Baptist church, with the Rev. Grady Ethridge officiating. He died Sunday morning in the Missouri Pacific hospital in St. Louis.

TO CHANGE THE THINGS I CAN

She, feeling a little eerie,
Said "The noise annoys me."
The night was dark and dreary,
And, thinking to make her carefree,
I said, "It's only the shutters;
You cannot stop the wind."
"No, but I can close the shutters -"
She did, and I was chagrined.

Merry Making With Meringues

From the Swiss town of Mehringhem came one of the most delightful, delicate cooking concoctions. It was in this village, nearly 250 years ago that a baker came up with the idea of --meringue!

Though it is nothing more than a combination of egg white, sugar, flavoring and air, a meringue is one of the most glamorous of kitchen creations.

It's a meringue that puts the crowning touch on that unique dessert, Baked Alaska. Firm or hard meringues make dainty cookies . . . special pie shells . . . hollow nests for ice cream or fruit. And familiar to all are the soft meringues which top pies, puddings and custards.

It takes a bit of skill, however, to produce a fluffy, lightly browned meringue topping on your favorite cream pie. Many a cook has wept to see her meringue weep.

To make a near-perfect meringue, the U. S. Department of Agrilculture's Consumer and Marketing Service suggests:

*Blend in the sugar gently, about a tablespoon at a time.

*Beat meringue only until sugar is dissolved.

*Be sure pie filling is medium-warm. A cold filling leads to leaking; hot one may cause beading.

Also, remember that egg whites beat to greatest volume at room temperature. Separate the eggs (carefully, for even a speck of yolk will cut down the volume) and return the yolks to the refrigerator. These will keep two or three days in a covered container (with water) until you can make good use of them in such dishes as French toast, scrambled eggs, puddings, etc.

RECIPES FOR MAKING MERRY MERINGUES

3 Egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
3/4 cup sugar

Preheat oven to 250 degrees F. (very slow). Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt and cream of tartar. Beat until soft peaks form. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly, and continue beating until very stiff peaks form. Shape meringue into six mounds on heavy brown paper on a baking sheet. Using the back of a spoon, form a hollow in the center of each mound. Bake 1 hour. Turn off heat and let meringues cool in oven. Serve filled with ice cream, fruit, or pudding, or a combination.

(Note: One teaspoon lemon juice may be used instead of cream of tartar. Add it after the sugar has been beaten into the egg whites.)

STRAWBERRY SUPREME

Swirl a whipped meringue mixture (hard) into a pie plate and bake about an hour at 250 degrees F. Cool and fill with strawberry or vanilla ice cream. Top with fresh strawberries.

FLOATING ISLANDS

2 or 3, as desired Egg whites
1/4 teaspoon Salt
2 tablespoons for each egg white Sugar

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly, and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Pile meringue in 6 mounds on a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 325 degrees F. (slow oven) 10 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned. Or drop mounds of meringue on simmering water. Cover and cook 12 to 15 minutes, or until set. Remove from the water immediately. Pop the mounds atop servings of soft custard pudding.

COCONUT KISSES

Into a stiffly beaten meringue, fold coconut (or finely chopped walnuts or slivered almonds). Drop by tablespoons onto a cookie sheet and bake at 250 degrees F. until firm--aboug 30 minutes. Makes a dainty cookie.

Birth of A Skyscraper

NEW YORK'S FIRST SKYSCRAPER

In the acute - angled triangle made by the scissors-like intersection of Broadway and Fifth Avenue at 23rd Street in midtown Manhattan stands what was known during its first years as "the world's most famous skyscraper" -- the Flatiron Building.

Completed in 1902 under the direction of Chicago-based Daniel Burnham on a site aptly described at the time as "a stingy piece of pie", the 21-story building sinks its foundations 35 feet below ground and rises to a height of 307 feet. Pointing northward, it presents an edge almost as sharp as the bow of a ship at what tradition says is the windiest corner of the city.

First of its kind in New York, the building contains 3,680 tons of structural steel -- with its masonry walls and its individual floors supported by its then "new style" steel frame. It was described at the time of its dedication as "Capable of sheltering 1700 office workers, or more than the population of a respectable suburban village."

The Architectural Record of October 1902 granted grudingly that the Flatiron Building was "quite the most notorious thing in New York," attracting "more attention than all the other buildings now going up put together."

Another observer of the day noted: "The Flatiron Building facing Madison Square is distinctly responsible for a new form of hurricane, which meets unsuspecting pedestrians as they reach the corner, causing them extreme discomfort. Loafers congregate upon the curb to gloat over the distress of ladies whose skirts are blown into their eyes as they round the treacherous corner." Recently modernized to meet today's comfort, efficiency, and aesthetic demands within its walls, the Flatiron Building is today the grand old lady of New York skyscrapers -- still going and blowing strong.

Torpedoed U.S. Ship Limps Into Port on Own Power

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)— The torpedoed U.S. Navy ship Liberty, an American victim of the Arab-Israeli war, crept into Malta's harbor today with orange cannon marks on her gray paint matching the colors of the dawn.

The 11,000-ton Liberty, victim of an Israeli air and sea attack in the eastern Mediterranean Thursday, came in under her own power.

She was down by the bow, and her starboard side a gaping torpedo hole and cannon and rocket holes spread from the waterline to the top of her gray funnel. The shells had scraped through the gray naval paint to expose the orange primer beneath.

Twenty-four of the Liberty's 275 crewmen were presumed dead, trapped in flooded holds. The bodies of nine other crewmen and the most seriously of the ship's 75 wounded have been transferred to the carrier America.

The ship will be put into drydock in Malta. A canvas "bandage" will be put over the torpedo hole in her starboard side while the water is drained from the two flooded holds to ensure that the trapped bodies will be recovered quickly.

The U.S. Navy threw a strict security wrap around the crew and said none would be available for interviews until the Navy's court of inquiry was completed, a process likely to take some days.

The Israelis have apoligized for the attack, saying it was an accident. A Navy spokesman said the Liberty was armed with only four .50-caliber machine guns.

A cultured pearl is produced by inserting a bead in the mantle of the pearl oyster.

Vendetta's Origin

The term vendetta originated in Corsica, where it played an important part in social life. It is Italian in origin, from the Latin "vindicare," which means to "defend oneself," according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Merry Making With Meringues

From the Swiss town of Mehringhem came one of the most delightful, delicate cooking concoctions. It was in this village, nearly 250 years ago that a baker came up with the idea of --meringue!

Though it is nothing more than a combination of egg white, sugar, flavoring and air, a meringue is one of the most glamorous of kitchen creations.

It's a meringue that puts the crowning touch on that unique dessert, Baked Alaska. Firm or hard meringues make dainty cookies . . . special pie shells . . . hollow nests for ice cream or fruit. And familiar to all are the soft meringues which top pies, puddings and custards.

It takes a bit of skill, however, to produce a fluffy, lightly browned meringue topping on your favorite cream pie. Many a cook has wept to see her meringue weep.

To make a near-perfect meringue, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service suggests:

*Blend in the sugar gently, about a tablespoon at a time.

*Beat meringue only until sugar is dissolved.

*Be sure pie filling is medium-warm. A cold filling leads to leaking; hot one may cause beading.

Also, remember that egg whites beat to greatest volume at room temperature. Separate the eggs (carefully, for even a speck of yolk will cut down the volume) and return the yolks to the refrigerator. These will keep two or three days in a covered container (with water) until you can make good use of them in such dishes as French toast, scrambled eggs, puddings, etc.

RECIPES FOR MAKING MERRY MERINGUES

3 Egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
3/4 cup sugar

Preheat oven to 250 degrees F. (very slow). Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt and cream of tartar. Beat until soft peaks form. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly, and continue beating until very stiff peaks form. Shape meringue into six mounds on heavy brown paper on a baking sheet. Using the back of a spoon, form a hollow in the center of each mound. Bake 1 hour. Turn off heat and let meringues cool in oven. Serve filled with ice cream, fruit, or pudding, or a combination.

(Note: One teaspoon lemon juice may be used instead of cream of tartar. Add it after the sugar has been beaten into the egg whites.)

STRAWBERRY SUPREME

Swirl a whipped meringue mixture (hard) into a pie plate and bake about an hour at 250 degrees F. Cool and fill with strawberry or vanilla ice cream. Top with fresh strawberries.

FLOATING ISLANDS

2 or 3, as desired Egg whites
1/4 teaspoon Salt
2 tablespoons for each egg white Sugar

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly, and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Pile meringue in 6 mounds on a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 325 degrees F. (slow oven) 10 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned. Or drop mounds of meringue on simmering water. Cover and cook 12 to 15 minutes, or until set. Remove from the water immediately. Pop the mounds atop servings of soft custard pudding.

COCONUT KISSES

Into a stiffly beaten meringue, fold coconut (or finely chopped walnuts or slivered almonds). Drop by tablespoons onto a cookie sheet and bake at 250 degrees F. until firm--aboug 30 minutes. Makes a dainty cookie.

WHAT PAINT WILL DO to improve the appearance of a commercial building is apparent in the redecorated front of this Portageville store. The side of the building shows what the building looked like before paint.

Time, Labor, Worry Involved in Portageville Betterment Effort

BY DON ROBERTS

PORTAGEVILLE - It takes time, labor and worry in order to achieve goals in any Missour community betterment program no matter the size of town," Dr. O. A. Huck, community betterment project chairman, said.

Four projects were chosen when the program began: awareness, informing the public of community betterment and educate them about its benefits; beautification, encouraging individuals as well as organizations to promote projects to clean up the town; youth activities, sponsoring leisure time activities as well as finding jobs; attitute, finding out what people feel about the town and what they would like to do to improve it.

In a booklet titled, "Overall Economic Development Plan for New Madrid County" problems regarding the development of the county have been compiled. For Portageville these problems have been evaluated, an extension of the city limits, federal low cost housing, an airport for the city, a rural water system, curbing and guttering, beautification, 162 highway bypass, enlargement of water system, new fire truck, remodel fire station, improve park facilities, park on Interstate 55, beautification of cemetery.

Some needs have been met. Others are in the process of being met. Portageville businessmen say that these needs require time to be achieved.

A board has been set up by the service clubs to discuss the MCB program. There are two members of each club and two members of the high school student council on this board.

The Chamber of Commerce has extended an associate membership to persons wishing to participate but are non-business people.

A 16-acre lot option for an industrial site was acquired last year. Annual Soybean Festival proceeds of approximately $30,000 made the Chamber the major stockholder in the factory site. The land is at the north edge of the city limits.

The race is on for betterment as the community strives for a five-star.

The five star program consists of standards to be met in education, utilities, transportation, community planning and community service.

In the program the community plans and compares its work with the standards set up by such organizations as the state department of education, the state division of health, the water pollution board, the University of Missouri extension service, the Missouri Good Roads association, utilities and other groups.

When the community meets the minimum requirements it will be awarded a star in each of five categories.

Education: When a community provides a strong effort to provide the best elementary and secondary public schools as possible. It should meet the AAA standards of classifications as outlined by the State Department of Education.

Some schools may meet the qualifications with an AA or even A if financial resources and number of pupils make it impractical for them to meet or strive for the AAA classification. The district supervisors of the state department of education determine if the school has met the standard it is capable of attaining.

Utilities: Approved water supply available.

The availability of water in some areas is not as great as others. For some small communities it is not practical to install a water treatment plant. Therefore no community is required to have a public water supply. However, any community with public water must meet certain criteria to qualify for the five-star program.

The criteria for approval of public water supplies includes sanitary features of construction, competency of an reliability of operation and acceptable bacteriological and chemical quality. A designed criteria of a plant of 100 gallons per capita per day must be met.

Sewage: The proper handling and treatment of sewage is an important factor to consider. The system should be so constructed that it will be adequate for the needs of industry and for the future needs of the community. The Missouri water pollution board feels that all communities with the population of 213 to 415 can have a sanitary sewage system with a lagoon that can be constructed for as little as $30,000.

Lighting: Without available funds it will be impossible for all communities to meet all the requirements.

Street lighting should not be constructed until the community has some type of maintenance program.

Transportation: The streets are the arteries of the community and if the streets are in poor condition then the health of the community is poor.

Paving, curbing and guttering are three factors in streets that determine the wealth of the town. The MCB program requires that at least 80% of the streets be paved with a curb.

Air Markings: The minimum critera for this is that the community have an air marker on top of a prominent roof top in town.

The marker must meet the state and federal requirements.

Community Planning and Zoning: This part of the program is designed to help the community to develop and prosper in the future. It involves such things as the way the community is laid out, the traffic circulation and streets through the community, the public buildings, parks and play grounds, the costs of developing the community on a long range basis.

This long range plan is a necessity for the town to continue to develop. It must be flexible and be continually up to date.

Community Services: This includes health services, fire and police protection and leisure time activites. This is simply an obligation of the city government to provide these protections to its citizens and promote the services to contribute to the happiness of the citizens in their leisure time.

Portageville Chamber of Commerce President Leonard Hand says they qualify for two stars, one in education and the other in utilities. Stars will soon be obtained in transportation and community services and a star is hoped to be obtained in community planning by the end of the year.

For the third star, transportation, the community qualifies in having adequate street paving and lack an air marking which is to be placed on the roof of the hightest and largest building in town.

For the fourth star, community planning, the community has undertaken the State 701 Plan which surveys the area and plans and zones the area for industrial development.

For the fifth star, community services, the community qualifies in health services and lack a few minor details in providing facilities for leisure time activities. For police protection two men must be sent to school two weeks a year to train for their positions as city law officials. In fire protection a new fire truck and equipment is being purchased which will qualify them for fire protection.

Lack of Money No Student Bar

COLUMBIA -- Lack of money is no excuse for an academically qualified student not obtaining a college education.

Under the federal work-study program, operating not only in Missouri but throughout the nation and available at all public and private college and universities, students with college ability are assured of higher education opportunities.

The University of Missouri, Columbia, actually seeks out this type of potential student. Its admissions representatives outline the program at career days held in high schools; when they get a lead on such a prospect, they literally go after him. The objective is to make sure that no promising student is denied a chance to attend college, even if family finances are low.

The 18-month old program has eliminated previous advice to working students -- that they have sufficient capital to pay their estimated expenses through the first year of school. Now such prospects are placed in summer jobs, may qualify for scholarships or waiver of fees, get federal educational opportunity grants, and are found part-time jobs during the school year and otherwise are assured of securing the estimated $1,600 annual expenses required to attend the University.

The Columbia campus of the University has about 600 students enrolled in the program. They work full time in the summer and most of them work part time while in school to pay nearly half their expenses. They are entitled to a modest educational grant to supplement the family contribution, the amount of which is worked out in advance. Expenses for the year are estimated at $1,600.

George C. Brooks, assistant director of student financial aids at the University here, is in charge of the work-study program, which is sponsored jointly by the U.S. Office of Education and the University of Missouri since 1965.

To illustrate how the plan works, Brooks cited a hypothetical case. If the income of a family with three children is $6,000 a year, it is estimated that $350 can be contributed toward the student's schooling. The boy should save a minimum of $300 from the summer job which the University obtains for him. This leaves a balance of $950 on the year's expenses. The student is entitled to a $450 educational opportunity grant offered by the Office of Education. This would leave a deficit of $500 which the student can earn by working 10 to 15 hours a week on the work-study program at $1.25 an hour while in school or by qualifying for a scholarship. The cycle starts all over each summer.

"We think highly of this program as a means of financial assistance," Brooks said. "The program is good for the student, good for his character, and the taxpayers get their money's worth since the boy or girl is doing worthwhile work in the community or on the campus."

He said that many of the students in the program are very good academically, and that the rate of retention during the year in all classes is 90 per cent. The 10 per cent loss contrasts with the usual 30 per cent of freshmen who drop out of university classes at the end of one year.

One recent recruit is the eldest of 13 children in a family whose income is less than $4,000 a year. He was in the upper fourth of his high school class and among students taking the Ohio Psychological Test. He was awarded a Curators waiver of fees and may receive a small loan if that is necessary. Another incoming freshman who is working in the program this summer finished near the top of his high school class and in the 95 percentile on the Ohio test.

University extension directors stationed in each county of the state are primary contacts for students interested in entering the work-study program. They handle initial phases of registration and are aware of job opportunities in the area. Students are usually placed in non-profit operations such as the state park department, county courts, schools, soil conservation offices, and libraries. This Office of Education pays 90 per cent of the hourly wage - - which has a $1.25 minimum generally and reaches a $1.62 minimum in St. Louis. The participants or employers pay the remaining 10 per cent plus social security and workmen's compensation assessments. During the winter there are ample opportunities on the campus for the students to work in libraries, offices, laboratories, or in janitorial service.

The work-study program, national in scope, is marked by a high degree of cooperation among educational institutions. In Missouri the University obviously is the largest employer in the program and is in better position to find summer jobs. All four campuses of the University, junior colleges and other four-year colleges offer similar programs. Hence a student may find it to his advantage to start there and then transfer to the University.

How They Were Named

Columbus set out to seek India and thought he had found it when he reached America so the natives of the western hemisphere came to be called Indians.

Population Decreased

The population of Warsaw, Poland, decreased from an estimated 1,289,000 before World War II to about 153,000 in 1945 due to the attacks and extermination policies of both the Soviet Union and Germany.

The North Pole was located near Hawaii in pre-Cambrian times, some 500 million years ago.

First Balloon Flight

First balloon flight in U.S. history was made by Jean Pierre Blanchard in 1793. Blanchard flew from Philadelphia to nearby Woodbury, N.J., in 45 minutes.

Warmer Than New York

Reykjavik, capital of Iceland, has an average temperature of 35 degrees in January. New York's temperature averages 30 degrees that month. A current extending from the Gulf Stream is responsible for the milder temperature in the Reykjavik area.

The 10,000 lakes of Saskatchewan, Canada, yield 19 million pounds of fish a year.

Namesake to Uphold Key Tradition

SEATTLE (AP) — The man who will oversee tonight's Flag Day ceremonies at the suburban Lake City Elks Club is something of an expert in the field.

He is Francis Scott Key, 40, the great-great-great grandson of the man who wrote the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Key, a salesman, served in the Navy in the latter part of World War II but saw no battles to compare with the one in the War of 1812 that inspired his ancestor.

That Key, lawyer, scholar and district attorney, watched the shelling of Ft. McHenry near his Baltimore home from an enemy ship. He had gone aboard the British vessel to seek release of a friend, Dr. William Beanes, prominent Baltimore physician.

Throughout the day and night of Sept. 13, 1814, the shells rained down. But "as dawn's early light" brightened into the day of Sept. 14, Key saw that the "broad stripes and bright stars" still flew "o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Of special significance to Elks on this day is that the stars on that flag that flew over Ft. McHenry were cut out by Miss Margaret Young, who later became the mother of Henry Sanderson, the grand exalted ruler of the order of Elks in 1884.

Key's great-great grandfather was one of 11 children born to the man who wrote the words of the national anthem and the famous name has been handed down through the generations.

His father also was Francis Scott as is his 15-year-old son.

Key said he has never had any inclination to write, but his daughter, Carol, 11, is "interested in writing poems and the words for songs."

BY DON ROBERTS

PORTAGEVILLE - It takes time, labor and worry in order to achieve goals in any Missour community betterment program no matter the size of town," Dr. O. A. Huck, community betterment project chairman, said.

Four projects were chosen when the program began; awareness, informing the public of community betterment and educate them about its benefits; beautification, encouraging individuals as well as organizations to promote projects to clean up the town; youth activities, sponsoring leisure time activities as well as finding jobs; attitute, finding out what people feel about the town and what they would like to do to improve it.

In a booklet titled, "Overall Economic Development Plan for New Madrid County" problems regarding the development of the county have been compiled. For Portageville these problems have been evaluated, an extension of the city limits, federal low cost housing, an airport for the city, a rural water system, curbing and guttering, beautification, 162 highway bypass, enlargement of water system, new fire truck, remodel fire station, improve park facilities, park on Interstate 55, beautification of cemetery.

Some needs have been met. Others are in the process of being met. Portageville businessmen say that these needs require time to be achieved.

A board has been set up by the service clubs to discuss the MCB program. There are two members of each club and two members of the high school student council on this board.

The Chamber of Commerce has extended an associate membership to persons wishing to participate but are non-business people.

A 16-acre lot option for an industrial site was acquired last year. Annual Soybean Festival proceeds of approximately $30,000 made the Chamber the major stockholder in the factory site. The land is at the north edge of the city limits.

The race is on for betterment as the community strives for a five-star.

The five star program consists of standards to be met in education, utilities, transportation, community planning and community service.

In the program the community plans and compares its work with the standards set up by such organizations as the state department of education, the state division of health, the water pollution board, the University of Missouri extension service, the Missouri Good Roads association, utilities and other groups.

When the community meets the minimum requirements it will be awarded a star in each of five categories.

Education: When a community provides a strong effort to provide the best elementary and secondary public schools as possible. It should meet the AAA standards of classifications as outlined by the State Department of Education.

Some schools may meet the qualifications with an AA or even A if financial resources and number of pupils make it impractical for them to meet or strive for the AAA classification.

The district supervisors of the state department of education determine if the school has met the standard it is capable of attaining.

Utilities: Approved water supply available.

The availability of water in some areas is not as great as others. For some small communities it is not practical to install a water treatment plant. Therefore no community is required to have a public water supply. However, any community with public water must meet certain criteria to qualify for the five-star program.

The criteria for approval of public water supplies includes sanitary features of construction, competency of an reliability of operation and acceptable bacteriological and chemical quality. A designed criteria of a plant of 100 gallons per capita per day must be met.

Sewage: The proper handling and treatment of sewage is an important factor to consider. The system should be so constructed that it will be adequate for the needs of industry and for the future needs of the community. The Missouri water pollution board feels that all communities with the population of 213 to 415 can have a sanitary sewage system with a lagoon that can be constructed for as little as $30,000.

Lighting: Without available funds it will be impossible for all communities to meet all the requirements.

Street lighting should not be constructed until the community has some type of maintenance program.

Transportation: The streets are the arteries of the community and if the streets are in poor condition then the health of the community is poor.

Paving, curbing and guttering are three factors in streets that determine the wealth of the town. The MCB program requires that at least 80% of the streets be paved with a curb.

Air Markings: The minimum critera for this is that the community have an air marker on top of a prominent roof top in town.

The marker must meet the state and federal requirements.

Community Planning and Zoning: This part of the program is designed to help the community to develop and prosper in the future. It involves such things as the way the community is laid out, the traffic circulation and streets through the community, the public buildings, parks and play grounds, the costs of developing the community on a long range basis.

This long range plan is a necessity for the town to continue to develop. It must be flexible and be continually up to date.

Community Services: This includes health services, fire and police protection and leisure time activites. This is simply an obligation of the city government to provide these protections to its citizens and promote the services to contribute to the happiness of the citizens in their leisure time.

Portageville Chamber of Commerce President Leonard Hand says they qualify for two stars, one in education and the other in utilities. Stars will soon be obtained in transportation and community services and a star is hoped to be obtained in community planning by the end of the year.

For the third star, transportation, the community qualifies in having adequate street paving and lack an air marking which is to be placed on the roof of the hightest and largest building in town.

For the fourth star, community planning, the community has undertaken the State 701 Plan which surveys the area and plans and zones the area for industrial development.

For the fifth star, community services, the community qualifies in health services and lack a few minor details in providing facilities for leisure time activities. For police protection two men must be sent to school two weeks a year to train for their positions as city law officials. In fire protection a new fire truck and equipment is being purchased which will qualify them for fire protection.

How They Were Named

Columbus set out to seek India and thought he had found it when he reached America so the natives of the western hemisphere came to be called Indians.

Population Decreased

The population of Warsaw, Poland, decreased from an estimated 1,289,000 before World War II to about 153,000 in 1945 due to the attacks and extermination policies of both the Soviet Union and Germany.

The North Pole was located near Hawaii in pre-Cambrian times, some 500 million years ago.

Lack of Money No Student Bar

COLUMBIA -- Lack of money is no excuse for an academically qualified student not obtaining a college education.

Under the federal work-study program, operating not only in Missouri but throughout the nation and available at all public and private college and universities, students with college ability are assured of higher education opportunities.

The University of Missouri, Columbia, actually seeks out this type of potential student. Its admissions representatives outline the program at career days held in high schools; when they get a lead on such a prospect, they literally go after him. The objective is to make sure that no promising student is denied a chance to attend college, even if family finances are low.

The 18-month old program has eliminated previous advice to working students -- that they have sufficient capital to pay their estimated expenses through the first year of school. Now such prospects are placed in summer jobs, may qualify for scholarships or waiver of fees, get federal educational opportunity grants, and are found part-time jobs during the school year and otherwise are assured of securing the estimated $1,600 annual expenses required to attend the University.

The Columbia campus of the University has about 600 students enrolled in the program. They work full time in the summer and most of them work part time while in school to pay nearly half their expenses. They are entitled to a modest educational grant to supplement the family contribution, the amount of which is worked out in advance. Expenses for the year are estimated at $1,600.

George C. Brooks, assistant director of student financial aids at the University here, is in charge of the work-study program, which is sponsored jointly by the U.S. Office of Education and the University of Missouri since 1965.

To illustrate how the plan works, Brooks cited a hypothetical case. If the income of a family with three children is $6,000 a year, it is estimated that $350 can be contributed toward the student's schooling. The boy should save a minimum of $300 from the summer job which the University obtains for him. This leaves a balance of $950 on the year's expenses. The student is entitled to a $450 educational opportunity grant offered by the Office of Education. This would leave a deficit of $500 which the student can earn by working 10 to 15 hours a week on the work-study program at $1.25 an hour while in school or by qualifying for a scholarship. The cycle starts all over each summer.

"We think highly of this program as a means of financial assistance," Brooks said. "The program is good for the student, good for his character, and the taxpayers get their money's worth since the boy or girl is doing worthwhile work in the community or on the campus."

He said that many of the students in the program are very good academically, and that the rate of retention during the year in all classes is 90 per cent. The 10 per cent loss contrasts with the usual 30 per cent of freshmen who drop out of university classes at the end of one year.

One recent recruit is the eldest of 13 children in a family whose income is less than $4,000 a year. He was in the upper fourth of his high school class and among students taking the Ohio Psychological Test. He was awarded a Curators waiver of fees and may receive a small loan if that is necessary. Another incoming freshman who is working in the program this summer finished near the top of his high school class and in the 95 percentile on the Ohio test.

University extension directors stationed in each county of the state are primary contacts for students interested in entering the work-study program. They handle initial phases of registration and are aware of job opportunities in the area. Students are usually placed in non-profit operations such as the state park department, county courts, schools, soil conservation offices, and libraries. This Office of Education pays 90 per cent of the hourly wage - - which has a $1.25 minimum generally and reaches a $1.62 minimum in St. Louis. The participants or employers pay the remaining 10 per cent plus social security and workmen's compensation assessments. During the winter there are ample opportunities on the campus for the students to work in libraries, offices, laboratories, or in janitorial service.

The work-study program, national in scope, is marked by a high degree of cooperation among educational institutions. In Missouri the University obviously is the largest employer in the program and is in better position to find summer jobs. All four campuses of the University, junior colleges and other four-year colleges offer similar programs. Hence a student may find it to his advantage to start there and then transfer to the University.

Namesake to Uphold Key Tradition

SEATTLE (AP) — The man who will oversee tonight's Flag Day ceremonies at the suburban Lake City Elks Club is something of an expert in the field.

He is Francis Scott Key, 40, the great-great-great grandson of the man who wrote the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Key, a salesman, served in the Navy in the latter part of World War II but saw no battles to compare with the one in the War of 1812 that inspired his ancestor.

That Key, lawyer, scholar and district attorney, watched the shelling of Ft. McHenry near his Baltimore home from an enemy ship. He had gone aboard the British vessel to seek release of a friend, Dr. William Beanes, prominent Baltimore physician.

Throughout the day and night of Sept. 13, 1814, the shells rained down. But "as dawn's early light" brightened into the day of Sept. 14, Key saw that the "broad stripes and bright stars" still flew "o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Of special significance to Elks on this day is that the stars on that flag that flew over Ft. McHenry were cut out by Miss Margaret Young, who later became the mother of Henry Sanderson, the grand exalted ruler of the order of Elks in 1884.

Key's great-great grandfather was one of 11 children born to the man who wrote the words of the national anthem and the famous name has been handed down through the generations.

His father also was Francis Scott as is his 15-year-old son.

Key said he has never had any inclination to write, but his daughter, Carol, 11, is "interested in writing poems and the words for songs."

John Murphy and sister, Miss Ella Murphy, will leave the first of next week for Charleston, W. Va., to reside. One brother is already living there.

The heavy rain last Friday night caved in the basement of the Scott County Milling Company's new building on Center street, entailing a loss of approximately $100. The new forms for concrete have already been built and the new concrete poured in.

Company C of the Sixth Regiment, National Guards of Missouri, had the first drill Sunday afternoon on the paved streets near Malone Park. Cape. Malone says the boys made a splendid showing for their first drill and will soon be in good shape. As many of the company live out of town, the company will drill on Sunday for the present.

COFFEE CORNER

I can remember not so very long ago, about five years to be exact, when my father opened his mouth and made one of those rash statements people are prone later to regret, his being, "I can't figure out how any damn fool could chase a little white ball all over a cow pasture and think he's having fun!" That any "damn fool" in had been trying to explain the intricacies of the game to his father-in-law. Charles gave up after being laughed at and scorned and finally decided my father just wasn't much of a sport. Ha -- he doesn't know pops! My daddy is not only a sport, but when he decides to take up whatever happens to strike his fancy at that moment, he becomes the King of the Sports. I can remember when we use to have motor boats, then we flew airplanes (back in the olden days when even the ones that flew in the air were made of paper), we were for awhile, a great white hunter, then we bowled until we'd flattened everything in sight and so, it was only inevitable that at his age, (boy, will that ever bring dad up out of his easy chair --oh well, he needs the exercise, cause he sure doesn't get it on the golf course!), began to tell he became forced to take up a more sedate sport - what else - golf. He not only has taken it up, he breathes, eats, sleeps, drinks, and if you popped him on the noggin, all that would fall out would be golf balls. He doesn't just chase those balls around the cow pasture, he fleetingly pursues them in a gaily colored little cart (which he trades every six months), boasting a surrey with the fringe on top, he uses the very (from day to day), latest equipment, makes all the tournaments, and is now dressing to match his mood and conveyance. Did anyone notice that vision in hot yellow and chili pepper orange on the course here this Sunday? Yep, that's my Pop, and I'll tell you something else. I can laugh WITH him, and tease and taunt him about that silly game and his fancy get up all I want, but Charles and the rest of you better lay off. After all, he belongs to me and anyway, I sorta think he looks pretty all dressed up fit to kill in the latest golfing fashion, besides, I'm sure it improves his game 100%, if not improve his, at least it doesn't help his opponent any who are blinded by the glare. See, there's method in his modness, he knows what he's doing! And, while you're reading this dad, (he just happens to be, or was, one of my favorite and most devoted fans), I'd like to make a date for Sunday, to bestow a little Father's Day love upon your brow -- I promise I'll make it quick -- just slow that darn cart down somewhere between the 5th and 6th hole and I'll catch you on the run.

Sinatra Now Art Patron

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now it's Frank Sinatra, patron of the arts.

The new role was disclosed last weekend at the First Annual Frank Sinatra Musical Performance Awards Concert in Royce Hall at UCLA. The concert was presented by the College of Fine Arts and attended by 1,500, including the donor of the awards.

Sinatra's presence was denoted by a cluster of youthful autograph seekers around his aisle seat before the performance began. The singer played it cool and academic, smiling courteously as he signed the programs. He was obviously relieved when the concert began.

It was a heady mixture of classical and pop. William Cosby of Torrance, Calif., second prize winner in instruments, played a couple of intricate, moody pieces on the accordion, making listeners wonder why that versatile instrument is neglected for serious music. Next came the instrumental winner, Gary Gray of Indianapolis, Ind., who delivered free-wheeling versions of "Georgy Girl" and "The Shadow of Your Smile" on the clarinet. Then he demonstrated his scholarship with a rhapsody by DeBussy.

Diana Sims lilted through a Schubert composition and "Musetta's Waltz." From Beverly Hills, Calif., she won first prize for vocals. She was followed by Andrew Belling of San Francisco, second-prize winner for creativity. He sang and played his own compositions on the piano and also conducted the New Chatsworth Band, a youthful group.

The program listed "comments by Mr. Sinatra" after the intermission.

He strode swiftly to the stage and shook the hand of Dean William Melnitz of the College of Fine Arts.

"Young people insist on believing that they can work miracles — and they can. I am here to see if I can help talented young musicians make some miracles on their own," Sinatra said.

"I believe we should try to keep all lines of creativity open. I hope we can all strive to bring a little more joy, love, wit, kindness and talent into the world. If we can do that, then perhaps some of us will stop disbelieving miracles."

He then presented checks totalling $5,000 to the winners, who will use the money for graduate studies. They expressed their gratitude with a "Sinatra Tribute," arranged by young Belling and played with the full band.

Decline Seen for Schools Opposed To Federal Aid

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) --- Southern Baptists have been warned that church-supported colleges, which reject federal aid on grounds of separation of church and state, face probable decline.

The prediction came Monday night from Dr. Charles G. Dobbins, executive secretary of the American Council on Higher Education, as more than 300 top Baptists opened a four-day higher education study conference.

A key issue facing the session is that of federal aid, rejected by most of the 54 Southern Baptist colleges and universities on grounds that acceptance would violate separation of church and state.

Dobbins urged acceptance of federal grants and loans.

Otherwise, he said, Baptist schools "are likely to decline in financial strength while millions of Baptist tax dollars are spent to support and build quality in other institutions."

Southern Baptist institutions, mostly concentrated in the south and southwest, have an overall total of approximately 100,000 students.

Baylor University in Waco, Tex., is the largest with an enrollment of 8,500.

In our parish, Gail entered a Catholic school that had several Negro families. At dinner the first night her mother asked, "Are there any colored children in your class?"

"What color?" Gail wanted to know.

The great fun of getting up in the morning, even to men in prison, is that something you cannot predict may happen to you that day. Although we have laws on the books against gambling, life itself is an immense gamble -- and let's be thankful for that. The man who invents a Futuroid camera will have done more to make life unlivable than the man who invented the H-bomb.

Family Hit By Tragedy

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP) -- Cape County Magistrate Roland G. Busch and his wife, who lost a son in a Navy plane crash six years ago and a grandson in a traffic accident two weeks ago, were notified this week their only other son, Air Force Capt. Elwin A. Busch, was killed in Vietnam.

Capt. Busch, 35, a 12-year Air Force veteran, was shot down Friday over enemy territory.

His brother, Navy Lt. Roland G. Busch, Jr., was killed in a plane crash off the California coast in 1961. Lt. Busch survived a plane crash during the Korean war, but was captured and spent 17 months in a prison camp.

The grandson, 9-year-old Corwin McClure, was the son of Mrs. Thomas McClure of Sikeston, Mo., one of the three Busch daughters.

History shows that Christ on the cross has been more potent than anything else in arousing a compassion for suffering and indignation at injustice.

F.J. Foakes-Jackson.

O God of the Infant Jesus, God of the Man Christ Jesus, God of his cross and resurrection, how can we thank Thee enough for coming into our human life as a Baby born in Bethlehem long ago, to grow into manhood and to bring us salvation into life eternal? May we lift our celebration of this glorious event out of all that is unworthy, that Christ himself may be born in our hearts anew, and in the hearts of Thy children everywhere. For Thy love's sake. ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My husband insisted that I write and reply to that woman who signed herself "Lady From Ohio" -- the one who had cancer surgery three years ago and lives in constant fear.

I had cancer surgery, too -- mine was five years ago, and I had those same feelings. But a dear friend gave me a few lines that have been enormously helpful and I would like to pass them on to "Lady From Ohio."

"Fear knocked at my door."
"Faith opened that door."
"And no one was there."

---LADY FROM INDIANA

Dear Lady: Thank you, on behalf of the Lady From Ohio, and all the others who may find strength in those lines. It's amazing how a few words can get a person through some very dark days. I appreciate your taking the time to share yours.

Dear Ann Landers: A neighbor passed away recently. He was only 55 and an alcoholic. His sisters carried on at the funeral something awful. They wanted to give the impression that they loved their brother dearly and were deeply grieved.

Everyone in the family knew he suffered from emphysema. The doctors had warned him repatedly to stay away from liquor. Yet his sisters served him cocktails when he came to their homes and treated him as if he were normal.

Please tell people the time to help their relatives is when they are alive. It doesn't do any good to weep and wail over a casket.

---FED UP WITH PHONIES.

Dear Fed: Who appointed you judge and jury? How do you know to what extent the sisters attempted to help their brother? Nothing is so futile (or frustrating) as trying to force help on an alcoholic who refuses to accept it.

No one ever helped a problem drinker by locking up the liquor or pretending there wasn't any around -- or by refusing to serve him a cocktail when others in the room are drinking. Such antics make an alcoholic more determined than ever to have his own way.

So please don't be critical of the sisters. What you don't know about this family situation could probably fill a library.

Dear Ann Landers: Seven years ago our marriage would have been voted as the one most likely to succeed. Last week I filed for divorce. My mind is made up, so please don't think I am writing to ask how to save the situation. It isn't worth saving. I didn't say much when he ran around with every chippie in town but when he started to bring them home I decided I'd had enough.

Now my question: What should a wife say when her husband announces, "You can have the children but I want the dogs."

Thank you for your help. -- NO CLASS CLARA (his name for me)

Dear Clara: Why say anything? Give him the dogs and consider yourself fortunate that he didn't put up a fight for the children. Some husbands do--not because they want the children, but because they want to be puntitive. Don't be surprised if you end up with the dogs, too. The guy doesn't sound as if he has the maturity to accept any responsibility -- not even for the dogs.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with you request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE NEUROTIC DOG

Andy's police dog must have been a schizoid because at the crack of each dawn he acted more like a rooster than a dog. He'd rear up on his legs and begin howling and barking at the rising sun.

In desperation, Andy's bleary-eyed neighbors finally wobbled off to court where they demanded that Andy be ordered to stop his dog from barking every morning and waking them up.

"Being awaked at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning," they complained to a judge, "is making us a nervous wreck. All day we hear a ringing in the ear and have a pounding in the head."

"If the barking bothers them," answered Andy, "then they should use earplugs. After all, it's not illegal for a rooster to crow in the morning and, in our tough neighborhood, it's more important to have a watchdog than a rooster. It's necessary protection."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you side with Andy or his sleepy neighbors?

This is how the judge ruled: He held for the neighbors. In doing so, he said that while nothing seemed impossible in these fast moving times, no one has learned how to stop a rooster from crowing in the morning except by wringing its neck. Fortunately, he added, Andy does not have to try to wring his dog's neck to keep him from barking. All he has to do is keep his dog in the house where his dog will be that much closer and give him that much more comfort. And, the judge ordered him to do so.

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

When applying for insurance, fill out the application honestly or you may be paying premiums for years for nothing. As example, if you conceal a material fact while applying for life insurance, such as that you were a patient in a mental institution or that you had had a heart attack, the company can very likely void the policy upon discovering the truth. And, if it's discovered after you've died, your beneficiary will collect nothing except, maybe, the returned premiums.

The Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen United States of America.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by able rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness - that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security.

Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity, which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world. . .

(There follows the enumeration of the Colonies' grievances against the King, ranging from "He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good," to "He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us. . .")

We, therefore, the representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in general congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of the Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these united colonies are, and of right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do.

And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

25 Policewomen Assigned To Guard Jackie in Ireland

WATERFORD, Ireland (AP) — Twenty-five Irish policewomen will work in three shifts to protect Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children around the clock from curious Irishmen and newsmen during her vacation here.

Waterford's County Council has begun putting up 30 no-parking signs around the 241 acres of woods and lawns surrounding Woodston House, the 40-room Regency mansion where the Kennedys will stay. The house overlooks Waterford harbor.

Two new iron gates have been set up at the main entrance.

"The emphasis of the whole vacation is a vacation to be spent quietly," said Mrs. Kennedy's secretary, Nancy Tuckerman, at a news conference in Dublin Tuesday.

Mrs. Kennedy with 9-year-old Caroline and 6-year-old John is to arrive at Shannon Airport on Irish Airlines Thursday morning. They will travel the 85 miles from Shannon to Waterford by car.

From Woodston House on clear nights the Kennedys should be able to see New Ross, the County Wexford town from which President Kennedy's ancestors emigrated to America.

New Ross is 15 miles north, up the River Barrow, from the mansion.

Miss Tuckerman said "although a six-week vacation was originally planned, as of tonight it's four weeks."

During her stay Mrs. Kennedy is expected to accept an invitation to visit Irish President Eamon de Valera.

The two children of Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, will probably join the Kennedys at Woodston House, Miss Tuckerman said. They live in London and their mother is making her stage debut in Chicago this week.

The Kennedys will spend much of their time horseback riding and swimming, the secretary said.

Seventy-one reporters, photographers, radio and television personnel are already at Waterford's Tower Hotel.

A local resident, Mrs. John Harrigan, told a newsman: "She deserves all the peace and quiet in the world and we hope you journalists will let her have it. The Irish people are not going to bother her."

"We'd like to think Mrs. Kennedy will come to Ireland for many years," said Brian Brophy. "As an Irishman I'm terribly pleased she's going to holiday here. We have the greatest respect for her and her late husband."

Soon the season will be when
The poet grabs his ballpoint
pen
To scribble silly lines like these,
Of daffodills and honey bees.
The blooming daffodils will
Bloom and bloom to bloom

Busy little honey bees
Will go on their buzzing
sprees
De-nectarizing columbines
To store up grub for harder
times.
A young man's fancy turns
about
And late at night he will stay
out
To hold a silly maiden's
paw
On verge of a mother - in-

Are my harbingers of spring.

MISSOURI COTTON PRODUCERS

It was a privilege to address the annual meeting of the Missouri Cotton Producers in Sikeston on June 9 when I presented some of my thoughts on the future of cotton and soybeans, two of our most important cash crops.

With respect to the Kennedy Round of trade negotiations with Europe, which has now been completed, not all of the details concerning these negotiations are available. We do know that the Grains Agreement will raise minimum prices of wheat moving in world trade.

In connection with Europe, several major United States farm commodities already had duty-free access to the European Economic Community and some other countries, by virtue of previous negotiations. Among these are vegetable oilseeds (including soybeans), oilcake and meal, hides and skins, and raw cotton.

The variable levies, however, which the Common Market countries have imposed on certain commodities in the past, still exist. These levies prevent our selling poultry to the Common Market. They also stimulate European production of wheat and feed grains. As a result we could be hurt.

Our Government says it is pleased with the results of these latest negotiations, but I want further details before registering any endorsement.

EMPLOYMENT DROPS IN MISSOURI

Seven areas in Missouri will be removed from the persistent unemployment list as of July 1, according to the annual review of area labor classifications made by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Missouri areas include Alton (Oregon County), Ellington (Reynolds County), Eminence (Shannon County), Hermitage (Hickory County), Perryville (Perry County), Poplar Bluff (Butler County), and Versailles (Morgan County).

The classifications are based on local surveys of the employment conditions in the areas made by the Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security in cooperation with affiliated State Employment Security Agencies. When an area's unemployed equals 6 percent or more of its work force, discounting seasonal or temporary factors, and it is anticipated that the rate of unemployment during the next two months will remain at 6 percent or more, it is classified as an area of "substantial unemployment."

MISSOURI 4-H

Ths summer over 400 Missouri 4-H members will participate in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Courses held at the National 4-H Center in Washington and the University of Maryland.

Again this year, Missouri leads all states in the number of 4-H members who will participate in these short courses.

Groups of approximately 40 each attend classes for one week, and it is always a pleasure to meet with these fine young people during their stay in Washington.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON PRODUCT SAFETY

A seven-member commission to study and report to the Congress on any remedial action needed to protect the public from unsafe household products would be established under a measure recently passed by the Senate.

The National Commission on Product Safety would identify categories of household products which may be hazardous, then review the extent to which self-regulation by the industry provides protection.

A review and assessment of present Federal, State and local laws designed for consumer protection would also be undertaken by the Commission. Members of the Commission would be appointed by the President under the measure referred to the House for approval.

Presbyterians Moving Toward Church Merger

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S., meeting here for its 107th session, has reaffirmed its intention to "proceed as rapidly as possible" toward merger with the Reformed Church in America.

The proposed union would create a new church with a membership of more than one million persons provided the final draft for such a merger is approved by future sessions of the two denominations' governing bodies.

The vote was 405 to 16 Monday as the Genral Assembly approved a resolution affirming "once again our confidence in the providence of God and the serious and enthusiastic purpose to proceed as rapidly as possible looking toward union of our two churches."

The General Synod of the Reformed Church, also meeting here through Wednesday, approved a similar statement Saturday. Final drafts of plans for such a merger are due for presentatation to the two governing bodies next year.

The Assembly also reaffirmed last year's action in making the church a full participant in the Consultation On Church Union, an organization seeking to unite 10 denominations which have a combined membership of 25.5 million.

42 Attend Bible School

MOREHOUSE -- The Rauch-Spencer Memorial Methodist church conducted a one-week vacation Bible school last week with Mrs. W. S. Dillion, superintendent, and Mrs. Wendell Fox, assistant. Forty-two pupils were enrolled and 24 had perfect attendance.

The program of promotion was Friday night. Each department had an exhibit of handwork and crafts. The program was:

Prelude, Geraldine Estep; welcome, the Rev. James L. Estep; prayer-scripture reading, Bill Deane; pledge to the American flag, Mike Rogers; pledge to the Christian flag, Holly Hendon; pledge to the Holy Bible, Rhea Estep; piano solo, Brenda Estep.

Kindergarten class leaders Mrs. Grace Schuchart and Mrs. John Ward, "The Bible Is For Me;" pupils Keith Ryan, Bill Kasting, Blanche Estep, Elisa Deane, Donna Schuchart, Greg Stanberry, Mark Lacy sang "Jesus Loves Me" and "Put Your Toys Away."

Primary class leaders Mrs. Willa Alsup and Mrs. Lois McWilliams and helpers Misses Kathy McIntyre and Brenda Estep, "Our Bible Helps Us;" pupils Deborah Ferrell, Mary Estep, Annette Ward, Trace Lannum, Cindy Menees, Laurie Deane, Dwight Hendon, Gordon Powell Jr., Veda Barnett, Tammy Gromer, Lisa Taylor, Tim Ward, Angie Sullivan, Tim Marlin, Danny Freeman sang "With Folded Hands" and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."

Junior class leaders Mrs. Nelson Gruen and Mrs. Carl Stroud, "Light from My Bible for Today;" pupils Mark Deane, John Word, Regina Curry, Pam Marlin, Roni Ryan, Holly Hendon, Bonnie Schuchart, Dana Freeman, Brenda Orr, Lester Powell, Thurman Estep, Sheila Rettig, Monta Breeden, Kathy Farrell.

Junior high class leaders Mrs. Shirley Hammon and Mrs. Ginny Deane; pupils Bill Deane, sharon Carmack, Rhea Estep, Mike Rogers, Cathy Freeman.

Thank you speech by Mrs. W. S. Dillon to Mrs. James L. Estep for music, Mrs. Gladys Crumpecker and her kitchen helpers for refreshments and to all leaders and helpers; hymn and closing prayer.

The New Madrid County Library will have the Tom Sawyer reading program at the service center June 15-July 5. Miss Linda Leonberger of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau will direct the program.

She will also conduct a story hour at the service center Fridays at 2 p.m. Films will be chosen by David Wolfe of the library staff. All grade school children are invited to register at the center.

Every morning at five, cartons of fresh doughnuts are delivered to the back door of our College Snack Shop. For several days the girl who arrived at 7:30 found the top box opened and missing six to ten doughnuts. Suspecting the students, the night watchman gave special vigilance to the area, but the thefts continued.

On the fifth day the guard stationed himself at a high window nearby. The theft, confident that the coast was clear, appeared with three companions who acted as lookouts. After carefully checking around, he proceeded to cut the cord, open the carton, reach in and distribute the doughnuts to his companions. Then he retreated to a high tree limb to enjoy the feast with his fellow squirrels.

John Murphy and sister, Miss Ella Murphy, will leave the first of next week for Charleston, W. Va., to reside. One brother is already living there.

The heavy rain last Friday night caved in the basement of the Scott County Milling Company's new building on Center street, entailing a loss of approximately $100. The new forms for concrete have already been built and the new concrete poured in.

Company C of the Sixth Regiment, National Guards of Missouri, had the first drill Sunday afternoon on the paved streets near Malone Park. Cape. Malone says the boys made a splendid showing for their first drill and will soon be in good shape. As many of the company live out of town, the company will drill on Sunday for the present.

COFFEE CORNER

I can remember not so very long ago, about five years to be exact, when my father opened his mouth and made one of those rash statements people are prone later to regret, his being, "I can't figure out how any damn fool could chase a little white ball all over a cow pasture and think he's having fun!" That any "damn fool" in question being my husband, who had been trying to explain the intricacies of the game to his father-in-law. Charles gave up after being laughed at and scorned and finally decided my father just wasn't much of a sport. Ha -- he doesn't know pops! My daddy is not only a sport, but when he decides to take up whatever happens to strike his fancy at that moment, he becomes the King of the Sports. I can remember when we use to have motor boats, then we flew airplanes (back in the olden days when even the ones that flew in the air were made of paper), we were for awhile, a great white hunter, then we bowled until we'd flattened everything in sight and so, it was only inevitable that at his age, (boy, will that ever bring dad up out of his easy chair --oh well, he needs the exercise, cause he sure doesn't get it on the golf course!), began to tell he became forced to take up a more sedate sport - what else - golf. He not only has taken it up, he breathes, eats, sleeps, drinks, and if you popped him on the noggin, all that would fall out would be golf balls. He doesn't just chase those balls around the cow pasture, he fleetingly pursues them in a gaily colored little cart (which he trades every six months), boasting a surrey with the fringe on top, he uses the very (from day to day), latest equipment, makes all the tournaments, and is now dressing to match his mood and conveyance. Did anyone notice that vision in hot yellow and chili pepper orange on the course here this Sunday? Yep, that's my Pop, and I'll tell you something else. I can laugh WITH him, and tease and taunt him about that silly game and his fancy get up all I want, but Charles and the rest of you better lay off. After all, he belongs to me and anyway, I sorta think he looks pretty all dressed up fit to kill in the latest golfing fashion, besides, I'm sure it improves his game 100%, if not improve his, at least it doesn't help his opponent any who are blinded by the glare. See, there's method in his madness, he knows what he's doing! And, while you're reading this dad, (he just happens to be, or was, one of my favorite and most devoted fans), I'd like to make a date for Sunday, to bestow a little Father's Day love upon your brow -- I promise I'll make it quick -- just slow that darn cart down somewhere between the 5th and 6th hole and I'll catch you on the run.

Sinatra Now Art Patron

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now it's Frank Sinatra, patron of the arts.

The new role was disclosed last weekend at the First Annual Frank Sinatra Musical Performance Awards Concert in Royce Hall at UCLA. The concert was presented by the College of Fine Arts and attended by 1,500, including the donor of the awards.

Sinatra's presence was denoted by a cluster of youthful autograph seekers around his aisle seat before the performance began. The singer played it cool and academic, smiling courteously as he signed the programs. He was obviously relieved when the concert began.

It was a heady mixture of classical and pop. William Cosby of Torrance, Calif., second prize winner in instruments, played a couple of intricate, moody pieces on the accordion, making listeners wonder why that versatile instrument is neglected for serious music. Next came the instrumental winner, Gary Gray of Indianapolis, Ind., who delivered free-wheeling versions of "Georgy Girl" and "The Shadow of Your Smile" on the clarinet. Then he demonstrated his scholarship with a rhapsody by DeBussy.

Diana Sims lilted through a Schubert composition and "Musetta's Waltz." From Beverly Hills, Calif., she won first prize for vocals. She was followed by Andrew Belling of San Francisco, second-prize winner for creativity. He sang and played his own compositions on the piano and also conducted the New Chatsworth Band, a youthful group.

The program listed "comments by Mr. Sinatra" after the intermission.

He strode swiftly to the stage and shook the hand of Dean William Melnitz of the College of Fine Arts.

"Young people insist on believing that they can work miracles — and they can. I am here to see if I can help talented young musicians make some miracles on their own," Sinatra said.

"I believe we should try to keep all lines of creativity open. I hope we can all strive to bring a little more joy, love, wit, kindness and talent into the world. If we can do that, then perhaps some of us will stop disbelieving miracles."

He then presented checks totalling $5,000 to the winners, who will use the money for graduate studies. They expressed their gratitude with a "Sinatra Tribute," arranged by young Belling and played with the full band.

Decline Seen for Schools Opposed To Federal Aid

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) --- Southern Baptists have been warned that church-supported colleges, which reject federal aid on grounds of separation of church and state, face probable decline.

The prediction came Monday night from Dr. Charles G. Dobbins, executive secretary of the American Council on Higher Education, as more than 300 top Baptists opened a four-day higher education study conference.

A key issue facing the session is that of federal aid, rejected by most of the 54 Southern Baptist colleges and universities on grounds that acceptance would violate separation of church and state.

Dobbins urged acceptance of federal grants and loans.

Otherwise, he said, Baptist schools "are likely to decline in financial strength while millions of Baptist tax dollars are spent to support and build quality in other institutions."

Southern Baptist institutions, mostly concentrated in the south and southwest, have an overall total of approximately 100,000 students.

Baylor University in Waco, Tex., is the largest with an enrollment of 8,500.

In our parish, Gail entered a Catholic school that had several Negro families. At dinner the first night her mother asked, "Are there any colored children in your class?"

"What color?" Gail wanted to know.

The great fun of getting up in the morning, even to men in prison, is that something you cannot predict may happen to you that day. Although we have laws on the books against gambling, life itself is an immense gamble -- and let's be thankful for that. The man who invents a Futuroid camera will have done more to make life unlivable than the man who invented the H-bomb.

Family Hit By Tragedy

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP) -- Cape County Magistrate Roland G. Busch and his wife, who lost a son in a Navy plane crash six years ago and a grandson in a traffic accident two weeks ago, were notified this week their only other son, Air Force Capt. Elwin A. Busch, was killed in Vietnam.

Capt. Busch, 35, a 12-year Air Force veteran, was shot down Friday over enemy territory. His brother, Navy Lt. Roland G. Busch, Jr., was killed in a plane crash off the California coast in 1961. Lt. Busch survived a plane crash during the Korean war, but was captured and spent 17 months in a prison camp.

The grandson, 9-year-old Corwin McClure, was the son of Mrs. Thomas McClure of Sikeston, Mo., one of the three Busch daughters.

O God of the Infant Jesus, God of the Man Christ Jesus, God of his cross and resurrection, how can we thank Thee enough for coming into our human life as a Baby born in Bethlehem long ago, to grow into manhood and to bring us salvation into life eternal? May we lift our celebration of this glorious event out of all that is unworthy, that Christ himself may be born in our hearts anew, and in the hearts of Thy children everywhere. For Thy love's sake. ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My husband insisted that I write and reply to that woman who signed herself "Lady From Ohio" -- the one who had cancer surgery three years ago and lives in constant fear.

I had cancer surgery, too -- mine was five years ago, and I had those same feelings. But a dear friend gave me a few lines that have been enormously helpful and I would like to pass them on to "Lady From Ohio."

"Fear knocked at my door."
"Faith opened that door."
"And no one was there."

---LADY FROM INDIANA

Dear Lady: Thank you, on behalf of the Lady From Ohio, and all the others who may find strength in those lines. It's amazing how a few words can get a person through some very dark days. I appreciate your taking the time to share yours.

Dear Ann Landers: A neighbor passed away recently. He was only 55 and an alcoholic. His sisters carried on at the funeral something awful. They wanted to give the impression that they loved their brother dearly and were deeply grieved.

Everyone in the family knew he suffered from emphysema. The doctors had warned him repatedly to stay away from liquor. Yet his sisters served him cocktails when he came to their homes and treated him as if he were normal.

Please tell people the time to help their relatives is when they are alive. It doesn't do any good to weep and wail over a casket.

---FED UP WITH PHONIES.

Dear Fed: Who appointed you judge and jury? How do you know to what extent the sisters attempted to help their brother? Nothing is so futile (or frustrating) as trying to force help on an alcoholic who refuses to accept it.

No one ever helped a problem drinker by locking up the liquor or pretending there wasn't any around -- or by refusing to serve him a cocktail when others in the room are drinking. Such antics make an alcoholic more determined than ever to have his own way.

So please don't be critical of the sisters. What you don't know about this family situation could probably fill a library.

Dear Ann Landers: Seven years ago our marriage would have been voted as the one most likely to succeed. Last week I filed for divorce. My mind is made up, so please don't think I am writing to ask how to save the situation. It isn't worth saving. I didn't say much when he ran around with every chippie in town but when he started to bring them home I decided I'd had enough.

Now my question: What should a wife say when her husband announces, "You can have the children but I want the dogs."

Thank you for your help. -- NO CLASS CLARA (his name for me)

Dear Clara: Why say anything? Give him the dogs and consider yourself fortunate that he didn't put up a fight for the children. Some husbands do--not because they want the children, but because they want to be puntitive. Don't be surprised if you end up with the dogs, too. The guy doesn't sound as if he has the maturity to accept any responsibility -- not even for the dogs.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with you request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE NEUROTIC DOG

Andy's police dog must have been a schizoid because at the crack of each dawn he acted more like a rooster than a dog. He'd rear up on his legs and begin howling and barking at the rising sun.

In desperation, Andy's bleary-eyed neighbors finally wobbled off to court where they demanded that Andy be ordered to stop his dog from barking every morning and waking them up.

"Being awaked at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning," they complained to a judge, "is making us a nervous wreck. All day we hear a ringing in the ear and have a pounding in the head."

"If the barking bothers them," answered Andy, "then they should use earplugs. After all, it's not illegal for a rooster to crow in the morning and, in our tough neighborhood, it's more important to have a watchdog than a rooster. It's necessary protection."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you side with Andy or his sleepy neighbors?

This is how the judge ruled: He held for the neighbors. In doing so, he said that while nothing seemed impossible in these fast moving times, no one has learned how to stop a rooster from crowing in the morning except by wringing its neck. Fortunately, he added, Andy does not have to try to wring his dog's neck to keep him from barking. All he has to do is keep his dog in the house where his dog will be that much closer and give him that much more comfort. And, the judge ordered him to do so.

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

When applying for insurance, fill out the application honestly or you may be paying premiums for years for nothing. As example, if you conceal a material fact while applying for life insurance, such as that you were a patient in a mental institution or that you had had a heart attack, the company can very likely void the policy upon discovering the truth. And, if it's discovered after you've died, your beneficiary will collect nothing except, maybe, the returned premiums.

The Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen United States of America.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by able rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness - that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security.

Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity, which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world. . .

(There follows the enumeration of the Colonies' grievances against the King, ranging from "He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good," to "He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us. . .")

We, therefore, the representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in general congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of the Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these united colonies are, and of right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do.

And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

25 Policewomen Assigned To Guard Jackie in Ireland

WATERFORD, Ireland (AP) — Twenty-five Irish policewomen will work in three shifts to protect Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children around the clock from curious Irishmen and newsmen during her vacation here.

Waterford's County Council has begun putting up 30 no-parking signs around the 241 acres of woods and lawns surrounding Woodston House, the 40-room Regency mansion where the Kennedys will stay. The house overlooks Waterford harbor.

Two new iron gates have been set up at the main entrance.

"The emphasis of the whole vacation is a vacation to be spent quietly," said Mrs. Kennedy's secretary, Nancy Tuckerman, at a news conference in Dublin Tuesday.

Mrs. Kennedy with 9-year-old Caroline and 6-year-old John is to arrive at Shannon Airport on Irish Airlines Thursday morning. They will travel the 85 miles from Shannon to Waterford by car.

From Woodston House on clear nights the Kennedys should be able to see New Ross, the County Wexford town from which President Kennedy's ancestors emigrated to America.

New Ross is 15 miles north, up the River Barrow, from the mansion.

Miss Tuckerman said "although a six-week vacation was originally planned, as of tonight it's four weeks."

During her stay Mrs. Kennedy is expected to accept an invitation to visit Irish President Eamon de Valera.

The two children of Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, will probably join the Kennedys at Woodston House, Miss Tuckerman said. They live in London and their mother is making her stage debut in Chicago this week.

The Kennedys will spend much of their time horseback riding and swimming, the secretary said.

Seventy-one reporters, photographers, radio and television personnel are already at Waterford's Tower Hotel.

A local resident, Mrs. John Harrigan, told a newsman: "She deserves all the peace and quiet in the world and we hope you journalists will let her have it. The Irish people are not going to bother her."

"We'd like to think Mrs. Kennedy will come to Ireland for many years," said Brian Brophy. "As an Irishman I'm terribly pleased she's going to holiday here. We have the greatest respect for her and her late husband."

REVERSE GEAR

There are so many questions that bother my mind,
Such as which way to travel,
and what will I find;
With a brain composed mainly of goo and of fuzz.

thought I wuz. Walter E. Howell

MISSOURI COTTON PRODUCERS

It was a privilege to address the annual meeting of the Missouri Cotton Producers in Sikeston on June 9 when I presented some of my thoughts on the future of cotton and soybeans, two of our most important cash crops.

With respect to the Kennedy Round of trade negotiations with Europe, which has now been completed, not all of the details concerning these negotiations are available. We do know that the Grains Agreement will raise minimum prices of wheat moving in world trade.

In connection with Europe, several major United States farm commodities already had duty-free access to the European Economic Community and some other countries, by virtue of previous negotiations. Among these are vegetable oilseeds (including soybeans), oilcake and meal, hides and skins, and raw cotton.

The variable levies, however, which the Common Market countries have imposed on certain commodities in the past, still exist. These levies prevent our selling poultry to the Common Market. They also stimulate European production of wheat and feed grains. As a result we could be hurt.

Our Government says it is pleased with the results of these latest negotiations, but I want further details before registering any endorsement.

EMPLOYMENT DROPS IN MISSOURI

Seven areas in Missouri will be removed from the persistent unemployment list as of July 1, according to the annual review of area labor classifications made by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Missouri areas include Alton (Oregon County), Ellington (Reynolds County), Eminence (Shannon County), Hermitage (Hickory County), Perryville (Perry County), Poplar Bluff (Butler County), and Versailles (Morgan County).

The classifications are based on local surveys of the employment conditions in the areas made by the Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security in cooperation with affiliated State Employment Security Agencies. When an area's unemployed equals 6 percent or more of its work force, discounting seasonal or temporary factors, and it is ancitipated that the rate of unemployment during the next two months will remain at 6 percent or more, it is classified as an area of "substantial unemployment."

MISSOURI 4-H

Ths summer over 400 Missouri 4-H members will participate in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Courses held at the National 4-H Center in Washington and the University of Maryland.

Again this year, Missouri leads all states in the number of 4-H members who will participate in these short courses.

Groups of approximately 40 each attend classes for one week, and it is always a pleasure to meet with these fine young people during their stay in Washington.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON PRODUCT SAFETY

A seven-member commission to study and report to the Congress on any remedial action needed to protect the public from unsafe household products would be established under a measure recently passed by the Senate.

The National Commission on Product Safety would identify categories of household products which may be hazardous, then review the extent to which self-regulation by the industry provides protection.

A review and assessment of present Federal, State and local laws designed for consumer protection would also be undertaken by the Commission. Members of the Commission would be appointed by the President under the measure referred to the House for approval.

Presbyterians Moving Toward Church Merger

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S., meeting here for its 107th session, has reaffirmed its intention to "proceed as rapidly as possible" toward merger with the Reformed Church in America.

The proposed union would create a new church with a membership of more than one million persons provided the final draft for such a merger is approved by future sessions of the two denominations' governing bodies.

The vote was 405 to 16 Monday as the Genral Assembly approved a resolution affirming "once again our confidence in the providence of God and the serious and enthusiastic purpose to proceed as rapidly as possible looking toward union of our two churches."

The General Synod of the Reformed Church, also meeting here through Wednesday, approved a similar statement Saturday. Final drafts of plans for such a merger are due for presentatation to the two governing bodies next year.

The Assembly also reaffirmed last year's action in making the church a full participant in the Consultation On Church Union, an organization seeking to unite 10 denominations which have a combined membership of 25.5 million.

42 Attend Bible School

MOREHOUSE -- The Rauch-Spencer Memorial Methodist church conducted a one-week vacation Bible school last week with Mrs. W. S. Dillion, superintendent, and Mrs. Wendell Fox, assistant. Forty-two pupils were enrolled and 24 had perfect attendance.

The program of promotion was Friday night. Each department had an exhibit of handwork and crafts. The program was:

Prelude, Geraldine Estep; welcome, the Rev. James L. Estep; prayer-scripture reading, Bill Deane; pledge to the American flag, Mike Rogers; pledge to the Christian flag, Holly Hendon; pledge to the Holy Bible, Rhea Estep; piano solo, Brenda Estep.

Kindergarten class leaders Mrs. Grace Schuchart and Mrs. John Ward, "The Bible Is For Me;" pupils Keith Ryan, Bill Kasting, Blanche Estep, Elisa Deane, Donna Schuchart, Greg Stanberry, Mark Lacy sang "Jesus Loves Me" and "Put Your Toys Away."

Primary class leaders Mrs. Willa Alsup and Mrs. Lois McWilliams and helpers Misses Kathy McIntyre and Brenda Estep, "Our Bible Helps Us;" pupils Deborah Ferrell, Mary Estep, Annette Ward, Trace Lannum, Cindy Menees, Laurie Deane, Dwight Hendon, Gordon Powell Jr., Veda Barnett, Tammy Gromer, Lisa Taylor, Tim Ward, Angie Sullivan, Tim Marlin, Danny Freeman sang "With Folded Hands" and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."

Junior class leaders Mrs. Nelson Gruen and Mrs. Carl Stroud, "Light from My Bible for Today;" pupils Mark Deane, John Word, Regina Curry, Pam Marlin, Roni Ryan, Holly Hendon, Bonnie Schuchart, Dana Freeman, Brenda Orr, Lester Powell, Thurman Estep, Sheila Rettig, Monta Breeden, Kathy Farrell.

Junior high class leaders Mrs. Shirley Hammon and Mrs. Ginny Deane; pupils Bill Deane, sharon Carmack, Rhea Estep, Mike Rogers, Cathy Freeman.

Thank you speech by Mrs. W. S. Dillon to Mrs. James L. Estep for music, Mrs. Gladys Crumpecker and her kitchen helpers for refreshments and to all leaders and helpers; hymn and closing prayer.

The New Madrid County Library will have the Tom Sawyer reading program at the service center June 15-July 5. Miss Linda Leonberger of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau will direct the program.

She will also conduct a story hour at the service center Fridays at 2 p.m. Films will be chosen by David Wolfe of the library staff. All grade school children are invited to register at the center.

Every morning at five, cartons of fresh doughnuts are delivered to the back door of our College Snack Shop. For several days the girl who arrived at 7:30 found the top box opened and missing six to ten doughnuts. Suspecting the students, the night watchman gave special vigilance to the area, but the thefts continued.

On the fifth day the guard stationed himself at a high window nearby. The theft, confident that the coast was clear, appeared with three companions who acted as lookouts. After carefully checking around, he proceeded to cut the cord, open the carton, reach in and distribute the doughnuts to his companions. Then he retreated to a high tree limb to enjoy the feast with his fellow squirrels.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, June 14, the 165th day of 1967. There are 200 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, the Germans occupied Paris in World War II.

On this date:

In 1777, the Continental Congress adopted the Stars and Stripes as the U.S. flag.

In 1811, the author of Uncle Tom's Cabin, Harriet Beecher Stowe, was born.

In 1922, President Warren G. Harding became the first U.S. president to broadcast, his speech was carried by radio station WEAR in Baltimore.

In 1934, Italy's Benito Mussolini and Germany's Adolf Hitler met in Vienna.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered the freezing of German and Italian assets in the United States.

In 1944, American forces invaded Saipan Island in the Marianas.

Ten years ago — Military officers in Haiti ousted President Daniel Fignole after only 19 days in office.

Five years ago — President John F. Kennedy said the agreement on a coalition government in Laos might lead to better relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One year ago — Chicago's police chief shook up his department after two nights of rioting in the city's Puerto Rican neighborhood.
